Farley's Three Virtues.
To Change a Good Name.
Reflation, Not Inflation.
An Honest Senate.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 8.

J. DAVID STERN, who owns the Philadelphia Record and worries his competitors, gave a dinner party last night at the Miami Biltmore, with many Democratic committeemen present. James A. Farley came. A remarkable man, in three ways, is this James A. Farley, who steered the Roosevelt ship past many obstructions into a safe harbor. He doesn't drink, or smoke, and he doesn't talk.

Occasionally he looks as though he were about to say something, then changes his mind. He smiles a great deal, calls everybody by his first and last names, and whatever you say he seems to agree with you. Such a man wears out slowly.

WHILE MR. FARLEY was smiling at everybody, with an occasional "Hello, Jim," "Hello, George," between smiles, in came L. P. Bonfoey, literally filled with fresh air, looking like an old fashioned Democrat, cut out of well-seasoned mahogany. Mr. Bonfoey makes dyes at Quincy, Ill., for a living. For amusement he mixes in politics, and for excitement he flies.

He had just flown his Bellanca Skyrocket monoplane from Quincy to the Miami Biltmore dinner, 1,400 miles, in eight and one-half hours.

IT WAS gratifying to observe Mr. Farley's interest in Mr. Bonfoey's flight.

As Postmaster General, Mr. Farley will be able to do more than all the rest of the United States to develop flying. And development of flying is what this country needs.

Depressions are ended by something NEW AND STRIKING. The discovery of steam ended the depression after the battle of Waterloo as you know, the 1849 gold rush ended another depression, wide use of electric light and power ended another.

Full development of flying might end this one, bringing San Francisco within 10 hours of New York.

If smiling Mr. Farley accomplishes that he will be remembered after many presidents have been forgotten.

ANOTHER POLITICIAN out of the ordinary run attended the dinner, Arthur Mullen, of Nebraska, who was Gov. Roosevelt's floor manager at the Chicago convention. He reads serious books, that have long words in them, and he discusses such books when he might be guessing the names of new cabinet officers.

LAVERGNE, French-Canadian member of Parliament, suggests that Canada's name be changed from Dominion of Canada to Kingdom of Canada. He says it would have been called "kingdom" originally but "fear of offending United States sentiment prevented."

Canadians fear nothing, as the old Gauls told Alexander the Great, "except that the sky may fall on us."

And they certainly need not fear United States sentiment. It would seem rather silly, however, for a free people, with a king more or less of a figurehead, three thousand miles away, to call themselves a kingdom.

All we ask of Canada is to increase in property and power and act as a good pacemaker for this country.

POLITICAL TALK and prophecy deals largely with inflation.

You hear solemn men saying, as does Mr. Rainey of Illinois:

"Inflation of some kind seems inevitable."

"Inflation" in the usual sense of the word, blowing up and "inflating" one dollar until it becomes ten or a thousand dollars is not inevitable, and would be stupid folly.

To say we must not discuss "any money not protected by a gold base" is foolish, if you take "gold base" literally.

THERE ARE now outstanding more than twenty thousand million dollars' worth of United States government bonds printed on beautiful yellow paper, all "payable in gold." And there does not exist in all the world twenty thousand million dollars' worth of gold.

Our savings bank depositors are entitled to payment of their deposits IN GOLD, and in the whole world there isn't one-quarter enough gold to pay the savings bank depositors. Not gold, but SOUND CREDIT, is the foundation of value.

ALL THE monetary gold in the world amounts to less than eleven billion dollars. And in good times the NET INCOME of the United States nominally all payable in gold, is ninety billion dollars.

There is not enough money for convenience, or if there is enough, it is so tightly locked up in banks that must maintain "liquidity" or its owners so thoroughly frightened by doubt as to the value of all collateral, that money does not get into circulation.

The matter must be studied and remedied without conservative hysterics or foolish inflation, rather as W. R. Hearst has put it, by "reflation" bringing currency and the dollar back to where they were in good times.

MR. BARRY, sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, who said only a few Senators take money for their votes and they are very well known, adds insult to injury by quoting members of the Senate to the same effect.

LINES DRAWN FOR RELIEF BATTLE

Pinchot Maps Program As 3 New Bills Are Offered

Developments in the Legislature as it adjourned today until next Monday night were these:

Gov. Pinchot prepared a special message on unemployment relief as proposals to provide new funds came from three factions.

A bill to repeal the state prohibition enforcement act was passed on first reading, and a resolution providing a board to study liquor control was adopted by the House.

The Sunday sports measure was in Senate committee with a public hearing slated for next Tuesday.

The Senate Utilities Investigating Committee remained dormant with the chairmanship unfilled.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—Gov. Pinchot today was finishing a special unemployment relief message to the General Assembly as three different factions introduced measures to appropriate new funds from the state treasury to cover relief in the next two years.

Mr. Pinchot probably will deliver his message before a joint session of the House and Senate next Tuesday. He plans to rebuff Speaker Grover C. Talbot for his plan to convert highway funds to

LIQUOR BOARD BILL APPROVED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The House of Representatives today passed on first reading a measure to repeal the state prohibition enforcement act and approved a resolution to set up a board to study and draft legislation for liquor traffic control in the event the Eighteenth Amendment is modified.

The Sowers-Conner bill, repealing the Snyder-Armstrong act, passed first reading after being reported favorably by the House Law and Order Committee yesterday afternoon five minutes after a two-hour public hearing. It will come up for second reading next Monday night and is listed for final action Tuesday.

The House swept aside party lines to adopt the Rhodes (Monroe) resolution to create a state liquor commission to study and draft legislation to control liquor traffic if the Eighteenth Amendment is modified. The resolution of the Democratic House leader was adopted by a vote of 106 to 48. Principal opposition came from Philadelphia Republicans who planned to support a somewhat similar resolution by Representative Sowers, Philadelphia.

Great Grandson Of Adams Weds 'Flapper' of 74

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—John Quincy Adams, 74, great-grandson of a President, and Caroline Sutherland, whose age is the same, of Washington, were wedded today in "The Little Church Around the Corner."

The event culminated a romance that began more than 50 years ago. The principals had grown up together in Newburyport, Mass., and Washington.

The bride was dressed in a lavender suit. She wore a black hat that was neither ultra-modern nor like the one Queen Mary, of England, favors. She had a corsage of orchids pinned to her black coat.

The bridegroom, with his white mustache carefully curled, was dressed in a business suit and wore a gardenia in his lapel.

They both spoke up firmly in answer to the interrogations of the matrimonial ritual by the Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray. As Caroline marched up the aisle on the arm of her husband she winked girlishly at a group of her friends and relatives.

The bridal couple marched into the street, still arm in arm. Outside, John Quincy skipped occasionally to keep in step with Caroline. They turned into their hotel to get ready for their honeymoon voyage to Bermuda.

DAVIS REBUFFED ON FUND PLEA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Chairman Nye, of the now defunct senatorial campaign funds investigating committee of 1930, said today he had refused an informal request of Senator Davis (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, that he lend aid to a move for the Senate to pay more than $20,000 counsel expenses Davis incurred in presenting his case before the committee.

Nye, a North Dakota Republican, took the position that his committee, in inquiring into expenditures of Davis and others in the 1930 primaries and elections, was a fact-finding group and heard no contests. The custom his been for the Senate to defray the expenses of contests, Nye said:

"Senator Davis came to me some weeks ago and asked me informally to support a resolution to have the Senate pay his counsel fees of more than $20,000.

"I couldn't give any encouragement to a plan of that kind. In doing so we would establish a precedent that any witness appearing before such a committee could engage counsel and be reimbursed."

Paderewski Silent On Polish Candidacy

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Ignace Jan Paderewski, famous pianist and former Premier of Poland, refused today to deny a report from Warsaw that he was to be a candidate for the presidency of his native land.

PARK FIGHTS APPEAL BY KLINE

Files Objection With Supreme Court Clerk Here

District Attorney Andrew T. Park fought back today against the attempts of Mayor Kline to upset the conviction returned against him in Butler last May.

With the Supreme Court clerk here, Park filed his retort to the Mayor's application for a review of the action of the Superior Court, which had restored the verdict tossed out by Judge Thomas D. Finletter.

Park quoted Superior Court rulings to show that only in exceptional, grave cases should reviews be granted.

He pointed to the law in denying the Mayor's contention that he—the Mayor—had no real responsibility in the letting of city contracts.

He argued that simply because the Mayor must forfeit his office as a part of the sentence is not grounds for a review by the highest court.

In this instance he cited the case of the late Mayor Joseph Cauffiel, of Johnstown, who, upon being sentenced after conviction of malfeasance, was removed from office.

With the Kline case still in court, Park announced today that Bertram L. Succop, former city supplies director convicted with the Mayor, probably will go to jail on a one-year sentence the last part of this week.

Police Guard Fails To Balk Red Rally

Sixty-five police surrounded the City-County Building today to keep out alleged Communists who had threatened to invade the offices of the Emergency Association and demand cash relief. But somehow the complainants got in while the police stood guard. Thirty-five of them were found in the basement, planning also a hunger march to Harrisburg. They were ejected. Later a second group was scattered in Scout street.

Widow's Indictment As Slayer Refused

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Madeline McDonald, who admitted, police say, that she shot and killed her husband, A. Craig McDonald, after "enduring his abuse for 20 years," stands exonerated today. She was freed by a Washington County grand jury which refused to indict her for murder.

New Dail Re-elects De Valera President

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Eamon de Valera, head of the Fianna Fail party, was re-elected president of the Irish Free State today by a vote of 82 to 54 as the new Dail Eireann convened for its first meeting.

THE RUINS OF PHILLIPS SCHOOL, LIBRARY ROAD . . . FIREMEN FOUND TRACES OF A BONFIRE

SLAYING 'JUST,' WIDOW FREED

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anna Mae McNeil, 30-year-old mother of two children, who killed her husband as he threatened to beat her because she danced with other men at a party in their home, is free today.

The young matron, who said she fired a revolver "to scare" her husband, was discharged last night following a hearing before Alderman L. C. Mantz.

After hearing Mrs. McNeil's story of her husband's jealousies, how he had beaten her many times before and how he threatened to beat her "as you have never been beaten before," District Attorney John S. Powers recommended that she be discharged.

W. J. McNeil and Mrs. Alice L. Clinefelter, father and sister of the dead man, corroborated Mrs. McNeil's story, whereupon the Alderman discharged her on the ground that she was "justified" in slaying her husband.

The shooting followed a drinking party in the McNeil home early last Sunday morning.

Divorce Ends 'Threat' Marriage

A former Pitt co-ed's marital venture that she said was launched with a threat and ended the next day with desertion was terminated today in a divorce.

Willa Hann was granted a decree from William LeRoy Hann, of Philadelphia, by Judge William H. McNaugher. She is a daughter of Dr. William J. Salisbury, of Westinghouse avenue, Wilmerding.

The wife said the romance began when Hann met her on the Pitt campus and took her for automobile rides. She refused to marry him several times, she said, but one day in September, 1930, they drove out the Steubenville pike for dinner, and there Hann threatened harm unless she married him.

They went to Wellsburg, W. Va., and were married, she testified, and the following day Hann left for Philadelphia, where he was a student in the Hannemann Medical School.

WORST COLD OF WINTER ON WAY

Mercury Begins Drop As Western Storm Hits Section

A blinding snowstorm, carried along by a 20-mile wind, swirled through the downtown district this afternoon, impairing visibility for autoists and making driving hazardous. In the outlying districts the snow caused numerous skidding accidents.

As the snow increased in intensity, them ercury dropped from 26 at 8 a. m. to 18 at 2 p. m. Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, said he expected zero tonight.

Indications point to the most severe cold wave of the winter, to continue for several days. Weather Bureau forecasts are for bitter cold weather the last of the week.

Chicago reported 13 inches of snow, but the storm which gave that city its snow moved on the St. Lawrence Valley. This morning in Indianapolis and Fort Wayne the mercury was six degrees above zero and points further west and northwest showed sub-zero temperatures.

U. S. East of Rockies In Grip of Cold

International News Service.

Almost the entire country remained today at the mercy of the record-breaking frigidity as an aftermath of one of the severest storms in recent years. And colder sub-zero temperatures were in sight for the country from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians and from Canada to the Gulf.

The Eastern seaboard and the West Coast alone were untouched by the chilling temperatures, but the weather experts predicted these sections would feel the cold in the next 24 hours.

Late today the storm and intense cold had taken its toll of lives and property. The Middle West was hit hardest by the fury of its worst snowstorm in recent years as a forerunner to sub-zero blasts. The North and Northwest sections of the country were shivering in temperatures that plunged as low as 60 degrees below zero.

Every point in the Rocky Mountain area reported below-zero temperatures during the night and day. The polar gales extended as far south as New Mexico. In the North the storm was said to be moving northeastward, but new Arctic blasts were predicted for tomorrow. At Salt Lake City it was warmest, with the thermometer at zero. At Yellowstone Park the thermometer stood at 28 below.

Eight deaths were reported in Chicago, while transportation was crippled and the schools closed. Temperatures from 2 to 9 below were recorded, with no relief in sight.

MYSTERY FIRE RAZES SCHOOL

Fire of mysterious origin early today destroyed the Phillips School, on Library road, at Mollenauer, Bethel Township, with a loss estimated at $10,000 by Fire Chief Joe Kepowski, of the Bethel Volunteer Fire Department.

A bonfire close to the rear of the building ignited the three-story wooden structure containing six rooms and housing 150 students, firemen said.

Steve Morgan, engineer at Mine No. 3, of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, who discovered the fire, said flames were shooting from the rear of the building when he sounded the alarm.

A high wind and lack of water handicapped firemen. The Bethel Township firemen were aided by Broughton and Castle Shannon volunteers and were forced to lay 1,600 feet of hose to a plug at the coal mine.

Tenants of a number of nearby coal company houses poured water on rooftops as sparks from the burning school building threatened to ignite their homes.

Children of the community enjoyed a holiday today while arrangements were being made to transfer classes to nearby schools.

Five Die as Flames Ruin Canadian Hotel

TISDALE, Saskatchewan, Feb. 8. — (AP.) — Five persons were killed and several others injured, perhaps fatally, when fire destroyed the Imperial Hotel here early today.

Robins' Invasion Routs Sparrows

Robins took possession of Gayly, old but seldom publicized hamlet on the Steubenville pike, west of Crafton. They came yesterday in a flock, it was reported, took possession of the wooded sections and drove out the sparrows.

Today, it was said, there were only a few in sight, evidently having sought warmer quarters, with the advent of the third wintry blast of the season.

CARNEGIE FRIENDS PRAISE BIOGRAPHY

The Sun-Telegraph yesterday began publication of the Life of Andrew Carnegie By Burton J. Hendrick, the only serialization of the celebrated work authorized for any newspaper.

Requests for comment on the book and its Pittsburgh serialization were sent to several former and present Pittsburgh leaders who knew Mr. Carnegie well or who were quite familiar with the Pittsburgh of the Carnegie days.

Herewith are several of the replies.

Santa Monica, Cal.

"Mr. Hendrick has written an unusually interesting biography, and even those who knew Andrew Carnegie intimately will be agreeably surprised to find this work replete with information which they believe was known only to two or three persons.

"Mr. Carnegie's outstanding character, ability, business instinct and industry are disclosed in a fascinating manner so that friend and stranger alike will enjoy thoroughly Hendrick's book which reads like a novel of great literary merit.

"It could have been made more complete only if the author had been privileged to confer with Mr. Carnegie a few years before his death."

Lawrence Phipps, former United States senator, was former treasurer of the Carnegie Steel Company, a nephew of Henry Phipps Jr., who was a "bottom hooshier," boyhood friend and later partner of Carnegie.]

From Col. Samuel Harden Church, Carnegie Institute:

"Please accept my cordial congratulations on your enterprise in undertaking publication from day to day of Burton Hendrick's Life of Andrew Carnegie.

"This is the only authorized and the only authentic biography of Pittsburgh's king of steel and is written by a rarely gifted author.

"In showing the marvelous development of Mr. Carnegie's character and the transformation of our greatest captain of industry into our greatest philanthropist, these daily chapters are going to constitute a narrative that will fascinate all of your readers."

[Col. Church, president of Carnegie Institute, formerly was secretary of the Institute, and also secretary of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Lines West. He has written several books of fiction and historical works.]

From William Penn Snyder, Jr.:

"Fine opportunity for readers of Sun-Telegraph to learn of a man who did much for Pittsburgh and the iron and steel industry."

From Gen. Albert J. Logan:

"The Sun-Telegraph should be highly commended for publishing the life of Mr. Carnegie. Citizens of this period should know of his achievements and what he has done for humanity, especially the people of Allegheny County."

On Way to Poorhouse, Mother Dies in Plunge

Half an hour after she applied for admission to the poorhouse this morning, the body of Mrs. Mary Henesky, 51, mother of five children, was found on the B. & O. Railroad tracks below the McKeesport-Duquesne Bridge, according to a report by McKeesport police.

Mrs. Henesky, who lived at [illegible] Gas street, McKeesport, came the police station at 8 a. m. to ask asking if she might be admitted the poorhouse, according to Chief of Police John J. Whalen. She explained she had been poverty-stricken since her husband lost his job, Whalen said.

After Whalen told her he would get in touch with authorities today about her admission, she asked for car fare to reach her home, which is quite distant, Whalen said. He gave her the fare.

At 8:30 o'clock her body was found beneath the bridge.

Members of the family, questioned by police, said there was no cause for Mrs. Henesky's action, as one of her daughters was working, and the family had enough to live on.

ROOSEVELT CALLS GOVERNORS TO 'PROSPERITY' PARLEY

TAXES, RELIEF SLATED FOR DISCUSSION

Heads of 48 States Called to Meet At White House

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—President-elect Roosevelt's invitation to the 48 Governors to meet him March 6 at the White House in a conference extraordinary was seen by his supporters today as a move to map a program in which the governmental units would march in step in a drive to regain prosperity.

The subjects Mr. Roosevelt outlined for discussion, in the invitation made public here last night, were:

Taxes, federal aid for unemployment relief, mortgage foreclosures, especially on farm lands; better land use by reforestation, elimination of marginal agricultural land, flood prevention and other steps, and the reorganization and consolidation of local government to decrease tax costs.

TAX REFORM CHOSEN

Tax reform has been chosen for a prominent place in the discussion. The President-elect listed the subject of taxes first in his invitation, under the title "Conflicting Taxation by Federal and State Governments." One aim of the conference is believed to be an attempt to draft a plan whereby state and nation would confine their taxes to separate fields, so far as possible.

Besides the subjects listed, the discussion will be open for other problems in which the states and nation have a common vital interest, Mr. Roosevelt indicated.

Although it was not officially disclosed whether the unemployment relief discussion would center around direct or indirect relief by the national government, it was believed likely direct relief would be talked of, as well as indirect.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, was among those who commented. At Harrisburg he called the conference an "admirable" idea and said he would be "delighted to attend."

Reorganization Measure Now Before House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—The approval of the House was asked today for the Senate plan of conferring upon President-elect Roosevelt the greatest power ever accorded a Chief Executive, to reorganize the federal government from top to bottom.

The Byrnes plan, giving the President authority to regroup, consolidate, transfer or abolish any agency in the whole government service, was adopted by the Senate as a part of the general economy measure, attached as a "rider" to the $893,000,000 treasury-postoffice appropriation bill.

The President—and the power is limited to Mr. Roosevelt—could make any change he saw fit in the functions of the government departments and bureaus.

A Senate Hearing on Blue Laws -:- By QUIN HALL

LIFT BATHING BAN AT 20 BELOW

Associated Press.

CHICAGO—Dame fashion was cast to the four winds as women appeared in the blizzard wearing men's golf socks over chiffon hose. One young woman in high riding boots was observed peering through a store window at a display of—not fur coats, but—straw hats for spring.

MINNEAPOLIS—With the thermometer at 20 degrees below zero the Park Board Committee on Ordinances met and adopted a bathing suit provision described as "let your conscience be your guide."

It will be in effect at city beaches next summer.

KANSAS CITY—All American Association hockey games at Kansas City and Wichita, Kan., postponed indefinitely.

It wasn't because of a lack of ice, either, but because snow drifts delayed the Tulsa and St. Louis teams en route to Wichita and Kansas City, respectively.

He had them under his regular street clothes.

KANSAS CITY—The means Charles Bindom, 24, a negro, took to keep warm landed him in prison for life.

He told Judge Thomas A. Seehorn he killed an unidentified Negro, stripped him of his clothes and traded them for whisky.

ALBION, Neb.—With the temperature at 12 degrees below zero John Morgan, 32, of Kimball, S. D., walked 23 miles from Spalding yesterday and appeared none the worse for the experience. He wore just ordinary winter clothes.

Chicago—Police warned owners of horses that failure to cover the animals with blankets while standing was punishable by fines of from $3 to $100. Horses generally got around better than autos. A motorized snow plow was reported stuck in the drifts in LaSalle street in the heart of the financial section.

Mrs. Charlotte Hunt, president of the Anti-Cruelty Society, announced the organization would pay the cab fares to the organization's shelter of any stray dogs or cats found wandering around in the cold.

LATEST BRITISH OFFER UNDER 10 PCT.

$339,000,000 Final Payment Urged In Commons

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Payment of £100,000,000, currently about $339,000,000, in a lump sum to the United States as full and final settlement of Great Britain's war debt was proposed in the House of Commons today by Geoffrey Mander, a Liberal.

A representative of Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said in the Chancellor's absence that Mr. Chamberlain was aware of various suggestions of that nature but that he would express no opinion upon them pending the debt negotiations at Washington next month.

Great Britain's debts to America now stand at approximately $4,499,520,000. The payment proposed by Mr. Mander, therefore, would affect final settlement on a basis of something less than 10 per cent, approximately the scale on which the Lausanne conference settled the German reparations.

SETTLEMENT FOR ALL

Recently there was a proposal in London to offer the United States a lump payment of $1,250,000,000 to $2,000,000,000. This was interpreted as a proposal to cover Europe's entire debt to America, on a scale similar to that by which the reparations problem was settled at the Lausanne conference.

Meanwhile the first of three cabinet sessions which will give final approval in about a week to the British policy for negotiations with President-elect Roosevelt and formal debt talks after his inauguration was held today at Premier MacDonald's residence.

Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay will leave London for Washington in about a week. Final approval of the British program was planned before his departure.

BORAH RAPS PLAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Chairman Borah, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, today threw his influence against a lump sum cash settlement of the European war debts or any other settlement that embraces no trade concessions for this country.

Commenting on dispatches from abroad that the British would propose in the coming negotiations with President-elect Roosevelt a cash settlement of between $1,250,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 in payment for the $11,000,000,000 of Europe's war obligations, the Idaho Senator, in a statement, said:

"I am not interested in any plan which deals with the debts that does not include the adjustment of the currency question and certain other problems which stand in the way of opening up world markets and trade and commerce.

"A lump sum payment would not do us any good of a permanent nature unless we can find markets and restore the purchasing power of the people."

Meanwhile, Rumania was told that President-elect Roosevelt will grant its request for discussion of debts after the British discussion has been completed.

HERRIOT GETS POST

PARIS, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, who advocated payment of the debt to the United States last December, was elected chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies today, by acclamation.

Herriot, answering a question, promised that the debt problem with the United States would be discussed at a future unspecified date.

BARRY URGES 'FAITH' IN CONGRESS

Ousted Senate Aide Warns Against Demagoguery

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—David S. Barry, dismissed Senate sergeant-at-arms, in a statement today said the motive back of the magazine article which caused his removal was a desire to defend Congress, but warned the country against demagoguery.

The 73-year-old employe, who was removed by the Senate on a 53 to 17 vote last night for his article in the New Outlook saying some members of Congress would accept bribes, said the people of the country should have faith in the honesty of Congress. He added:

"The danger lies in demagoguery. The man who will serve you against his convictions will serve you falsely in the end."

Throughout his trial, Barry insisted his purpose in writing the article was to defend Congress against a widespread popular belief that it was corrupt.

The dismissed official, in his statement today, said he wanted to explain his position. He said:

"To make my motive entirely clear, my article was written to defend the integrity of Congress as a whole against a widespread belief in the prevalence of corruption in Washington.

"In doing this, I referred generally to the isolated, individual instances of grafting to which Senators have often referred and which are historically undeniable.

"Apparently such criticism is intolerable to certain Senators, but I feel that I have justifiably and reasonably represented the situation. The people should have faith in the honesty of the Congress.

"The danger lies in demagoguery. The man who will serve you against his convictions will serve you falsely in the end."

ROOSEVELT OFF TO ISLAND

Today's message read:

"Going swimming this morning and during afternoon. Expect to proceed across tongue of the ocean to Andros Island."

Another message, dated late last night, read:

Senate Dismisses Battle on Schall

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Thomas D. Schall, the blind Senator from Minnesota, will continue in office during the term beginning March 4, he was assured today, following the Senate's dismissal of the contest brought by Einar Hoidale, Democrat.

A resolution unanimously adopted by the Senate Elections Committee was adopted by the Senate last night without record vote.

Two U. S. Bureaus Study Leaps of Frogs, Fleas

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Urged by a member of the Cabinet, two government departments today issued official verdicts on the distance a flea and a frog can cover in leaping from dog to dog, and lily pad to lily pad.

An ordinary flea, said the Agricultural Department's Bureau of Entomology, can leap 13 inches horizontally and seven and three-quarter inches vertically.

An ordinary frog, said the Commerce Department's Bureau of Fisheries, under normal conditions, san leap three feet; under deep emotion five feet, and under deep emotion with firm footing, six feet.

The purpose of this extraordinary research was to ease the mind of a California "citizen and taxpayer," not named, who wrote Secretary Wilbur that the question had troubled him four years.

GIANT POWER PLAN PUSHED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Legislation to make President-elect Roosevelt's vision of a vast industrial empire in the Tennessee valley a reality will be proposed on the opening day of the expected special session in April, Representative McSwain (Dem.), of South Carolina, chairman of the House Military Affairs Commitee, announced today.

With the President-elect backing government development of Muscle Shoals in conjunction with Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, McSwain predicted passage in the special session.

The proposal of the President-elect is the Muscle Shoals legislation over which Congress has fought for 12 years, with the addition of provisions embracing the entire Tennessee valley.

Peru and Colombia Near Armed Clash

GENEVA, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Information received today by the League of Nations indicates that an armed clash is approaching between Peru and Colombia as a result of their dispute over the Leticia territory, it was said today.

AL SMITH URGES WORK DICTATOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Alfred E. Smith suggests the country needs a public works dictator to slash red tape and scrap hampering statutes in the fight for prosperity.

Before departing last night for Washington to seek a $93,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan for Gov. Lehman's emergency public works commission, he spoke to the Catholic conference on industrial problems. He said:

"There is no use in appropriating public money for public works to relieve the business depression if the government is going to be tied to earth by red tape regulating the use of public money on public works.

"Now I say, that in a depression we're in a state of war. This stagnation of business is doing more damage at home to our own people than the war ever did. The only thing to do is to lay aside the red tape.

"We've got to appoint a director general of public works to wipe out these laws and put the buildings up."

Transport Carries Hoover Belongings

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Between 60 and 70 crates of the personal effects of President and Mrs. Hoover, ranging from small parcels to automobiles, were aboard the Navy transport Henderson when she sailed today for the West Coast.

BARE BALLOT IRREGULARITIES

Thirty straight Democratic ballots in the Second District, Third Ward, had markings for Senator James J. Coyne, Congressman M. J. Muldowney and Representative J. D. Scorza, Republicans, it was shown today at the recount of ballots in the Bar Association's election fraud charges.

These, with other ballots on which apparent differences in the "X" markings were found, are to be passed upon later by Judge Heber W. Dithrich, presiding at the recount. All ballot boxes so far examined are in the Thirty-second Congressional District, where Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democrat, has challenged the election of Muldowney.

Non-Resident Ban On Angleworms Aim of Bill

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—"An act to restrict the taking of worms for bait in Massachusetts" was before the Legislature today.

The measure, filed by Representative Thomas F. Carroll, of Revere, provides that permits be required by non-residents before they be allowed to take worms in this commonwealth for the purpose of luring fish.

"Massachusetts worms for Massachusetts fishermen" is the slogan of the proponents of the bill.

CLAIRTON BLAST RAZES HOME

An explosion and fire demolished the home of Tony Melongi, 518 Seventh street, Clairton, while the family was absent late last night. The blast shook the neighborhood, and for a time it was feared Melongi, his wife and two children were trapped in the place.

Both sides and the inner wall of the structure collapsed, leaving only the front and rear and portions of the roof standing. It was a two-story frame dwelling.

Firemen said the explosion possibly was caused by gas.

BANKS PUSHING NESBIT CLAIM

Testimony was being brought out today before Judge James H. Gray to show that the late Harrison Nesbit, former president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, was worth $1,000,000 when he set up a life insurance trust which is being attacked by some of his creditors.

Banks are endeavoring to have the fund, amounting to more than $80,000, used to satisfy claims against Nesbit and not turned over to his family. It is asserted that Nesbit's income for more than 10 years amounted to $160,000 and that for 1929 he paid taxes on an income of $301,000.

The protestants are seeking to have the court rule that the trust be decreed to be in fraud of the creditors of Nesbit. H. Fred Mercer is representing the members of the family in efforts to have the insurance trust paid to them as intended by Nesbit.

Today

He quotes Senator Glass' statement of last spring that he had documentary proofs that bankers "hired some Congressmen." You can't "hire Congressmen" without paying money for votes, presumably.

Every legislative body in the world includes a certain number of dishonest men. There is probably no legislative body with a higher average of integrity than the United States Senate of today. The less fuss the Senate makes about Barry, the better opinion the people will have of the Senate.

Roosevelt 'Counted in' Amid Congress Cheers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner were "counted in" as President and Vice President respectively amid cheers and gales of laughter in a quaint ceremony at a joint session of the Senate and House today.

The ceremony of election was carried out with Vice President Curtis presiding and tellers counting the electoral vote of each state separately as the sealed ballots were taken from mahogany boxes.

As Representative Jeffers (Dem.), of Alabama, a teller, read off the first vote, "Alabama, 11 for Roosevelt and Garner," the Democrats cheered.

Vice-President Curtis, defeated for re-election, banged his gavel for order. Sensing that Curtis was urging quiet for his "political funeral," both Senators and House members broke into laughter.

"Eight votes for Hoover and Curtis" were announced as the Republicans rose and applauded.

And the Democrats, to show there are no hard feelings, rose and applauded with them.

But the applause made no difference. When the ceremony was over, Roosevelt and Garner had 472 electoral votes to 59 for Hoover and Curtis.

Coolidge Silenced Talk Of 1936 Candidacy

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Edward T. Clark, his most intimate attache at the White House, today said Calvin Coolidge "did not choose to run" for President in 1936 and silenced any discussion of such a move only a few days before his death.

Clark, one-time secretary to the late United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, spoke before the Middlesex Club at its annual Lincoln night dinner. He read a personal letter received from Mr. Coolidge shortly before the former President's death at Northampton. The letter said:

"This will offer to you and yours the best wishes of the new year.

"Of course a new man is new. Ordinarily he can wait a little. The difficulty now is that everything is in an emergency requiring immediate action.

"I would be glad to tell anybody anything I know and I think it is a time when partisanship ought to be laid aside. I should not want to serve in any bodies or commissions. The fact is that I feel worn out. No one can tell these days what a short time of three or four years may bring forth, but of course I know my work is done. I could not pick it up again.

"I imagine that was one trouble Cleveland had in trying to administer a second term. Any time you hear anybody talking of me just tell them to stop it.

"With kindest regards, I am,

"Very truly yours,

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

WEST VIEW SCHOOL HEAD LAYS OUSTER TO POLITICS

HOLDS BURGESS RESPONSIBLE FOR ACTION

Refuses to Let Pupils Strike in Protest; Citizens Aroused

Harvey N. Hennon today blamed his dismissal as supervisor of West View schools on the political influence of Dr. D. A. Atkinson, Burgess of West View.

Hennon, discharged last night by a bare majority vote of the school board while a crowd of 500 citizens hooted the action, declared:

"It is my personal belief that Dr. Atkinson is back of all this and is using his political influence.

"I believe there is one member of the school board that has a personal grievance. Another member called on me to sell a set of books a number of years ago. I failed to buy the books. The other two members I believe have been misinformed."

Hennon, West View's supervisor for 16 years, added that when he learned the school children were planning a protest of his dismissal he urged them not to desert their books.

500 HISS ACTION

The booing and hissing crowd of 500, representing a citizens' committee came to the meeting with a petition, bearing more than 2,000 signatures, singing Hennon's praises. They stormed the little meeting room until the directors were forced to move to the junior high school auditorium.

The motion of Mrs. Louis Swope, only woman member of the board, that Robert McKee, assistant principal, replace Hennon for a three-year term, made the audience noisy and brought a protest from F. S. Brown, minority board member. He declared:

"A motion has been made to replace an efficient man, who has put West View schools where they are, with a man who has no experience.

"It is an unfair action. I have not been consulted nor have I seen any applications. The law provides that all the directors shall elect a principal, not a few of them."

He was supported by Howard Wilt and George Lang, other minority members.

WOMAN DEFIES 'THREAT'

During the hour of discussion that followed her motion, Mrs. Swope complained that she had been threatened in a letter from one of Hennon's supporters. She read the letter, and to the audience she declared:

"My stand is the same. I'm not afraid of any of you, and you can't threaten me."

The board's ultimatum followed:

"Mrs. Swope has withdrawn her motion. The principal cannot succeed himself. A meeting will be held later to select his successor."

Shouts from the crowd demanding an explanation of the action were answered by Dr. A. E. Torrens, president of the board:

BRITISH ARREST OFFICER AS SPY

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Suspected of espionage in connection with the alleged leakage of secret information to a foreign power, a young lieutenant in a crack British regiment was under arrest in the Tower of London today. He was taken into custody three weeks ago as a result of evidence obtained by the government Intelligence Service.

The prisoner is permitted a certain amount of liberty, being allowed to exercise within the Tower gates every day in the custody of an officer of the Coldstream Guards.

The officer's identity was kept secret. It was believed the first time in many years that an officer of a British regiment has been suspected of espionage.

GELTZ DENIES DEATH GUILT

J. E. Geltz, carrier of air mail from the McKeesport postoffice to Bettis Field, took the witness stand in his own defense today to deny that he murdered Mary White, 27, of 126 Cherry alley, McKeesport, last June 27. Testimony was closed after Geltz's denial and the case was to go to the jury late this afternoon.

Several character witnesses testified for Geltz late yesterday after the state had completed its case before Visiting Judge S. L. Reed, of Cambria County.

State witnesses told of Geltz having taken Miss White and Marie Prior, also of McKeesport, for a ride in his mail truck the night she was killed.

Marie Prior testified she and Miss White had been drinking and took a bottle with them, which Geltz threw away. Miss White, she said, became obstreperous, and twice fell out of the truck. Geltz helped her back in both times, but when she fell out a third time, near the Point Bridge, he drove away, leaving her in charge of the other girl, who hailed another machine, which took her to McKeesport. Upon arrival there it was found she had died from her injuries.

3 Russian Whalers Fined by Japanese

TOKIO, Feb. 8. — (AP.) —The captains of three Russian whalers were fined $300 each today for unauthorized entry into the closed port of Futami, in the Bonin Islands, a fortified area.

Reports that their ships would be confiscated were not borne out. It was understood that pressure from higher authorities prevented issuance of a confiscation order by the District Court, to avoid the possibility of Russo-Japanese complications.

Vincent Astor Sells Sands Point Estate

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Vincent Astor has sold his country place at Sands Point, Long Island, to Allan J. McIntosh, member of a stock exchange firm. The estate, one of the show places of Long Island, is assessed at about $600,000.

HITLER TO STAY AS DICTATOR

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—The semi-dictatorial character of the Fascist - Nationalist government, headed by Adolf Hitler, was confirmed by Hitler himself this afternoon.

Speaking to a group of German newspapermen, Hitler intimated that even if his government is defeated in the Reichstag elections March 5, he will not bow to the will of the people and resign but will continue in office.

But his coalition cabinet would not retire, he indicated, because he saw no other solution to the present political tangle.

He predicted that Marxism, in all its phases, would be stamped out in Germany within a decade.

MRS. ROOSEVELT DINNER REPLY TO CRITICS

Mrs. Andrew Carnegie Among 1,750 Guests To Pay Tribute

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—As a tribute to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt for her varied activities, some of which recently have brought her considerable published criticism, more than 1,700 men and women will attend a dinner in her honor at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight.

Criticism directed at the wife of the President-elect in letter and in print has been that she was too much in the limelight and that it was bad taste for her, in her position, to enter into commercial contracts to speak and write.

Her reply has been that she had not been doing anything more since her husband's election than she had been doing before, but that his position had brought them to the public attention. She has also said she will curtail considerably her activities after March 4.

TRIBUTE PLANNED

Mrs. Emma D. Partridge, chairman of the dinner arrangements, said today:

"The dinner is not an answer to whatever criticism there may have been of Mrs. Roosevelt, for we had planned it long before that arose.

"But it is to be a tribute to her activities. Speakers will discuss the things in which Mrs. Roosevelt has been actively interested."

Speakers at the dinner, in which 50 New York women's organizations are participating, will be: Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College, who was appointed by President Hoover a member of the American delegation to the Geneva disarmament conference last year; Representative Ruth Bryan Owen; Fannie Hurst, writer; James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany; Henry Goddard Leach, editor of Forum magazine, and Claude Bowers, newspaper executive. James McDonald, secretary of the Foreign Policy Association, will be toastmaster.

MRS. CARNEGIE GUEST

Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip is chairman of the general committee in charge of the dinner, and among those who will attend are Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mrs. Ogden Reid, Miss Anne Morgan, Mayor O'Brien, Samuel Seabury, and many other men and women prominently identified with the political and civic life of New York.

JIGSAW BANDIT PAIR HELD

The jig-saw puzzle bandits today were held for trial on 14 robbery charges.

Abe Liebman, 18, of 42 Reed street, and John Kurcheck, 19, of 32 Vine street, who, police say, confessed to the murder of Druggist Charles F. Huber, of 560 Faulson avenue, last Wednesday, after they had purchased a jigsaw puzzle, were identified in 14 robberies committed during January, Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd testified.

The names of Police Capt. Philip L. Senneway and Patrolman Harry G. Close, both of the East End Police Station, today were the first to be placed on the new Police Honor Roll, after being called before Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and commended for their work in clearing up the slaying of Huber and apprehending Liebman and Kerchak.

Critics Sadly Deny Feasting With Lenore

Fraternity Attacks Actress' Claim She Fed Them

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Theatrical critics, to a man, today had voiced surprise and ignorance about the entertainment item for which Lenore Ulric unsuccessfully sought tax exemption. But the actress was prompt with a rebuttal that there most certainly were such expenditures attached to the pursuit of a stage career.

Miss Ulric asked permission to subtract some $11,130 from her taxable income for 1927 and 1923, alleging that she spent that amount in incidental expenses, including entertainment of critics.

TAX APPEAL DENIED

The Board of Tax Appeals, in Washington yesterday, denied this, reminding Miss Ulric that "the potency of donated favors, especially of food, in securing adherence, is recognized," but that, unfortunately, such gratuities were not tax exempt.

When these tidings reached the critics, they fractured a long standing record and got together for once. The spectacle was edifying.

Alexander Woollcott, whose wit is almost as famous as his rotundity, interrupted the ritual of being shaved. With as much dignity as a lathered man can muster, he said:

"I will emerge from my retirement just long enough to say that Miss Ulric's statements to the income tax authorities provide the only real good entertainment she ever afforded me."

Brooks Atkinson, of the Times, said he "never even got an autographed photograph," adding that he could say some other things, but guessed he wouldn't.

HAMMOND SHOCKED

Percy Hammond, of the Herald Tribune, was so astonished words failed him for once. He said:

"Put it any way you like. I wasn't a recipient."

Burns Mantle, of the Daily News, already had read about it and was all set. Sorrowfully he said:

"Yes, it just goes to show what I've long believed—that I'm not meeting the right people."

Gilbert Gabriel, of the American, said he was sorry to report he "hadn't even Miss Ulric's friendship," but added solicitously:

"I hope she had more pleasure entertaining critics than I've had entertaining actresses."

John Anderson, of the Journal, said:

Jigsaw Marathoner Quits in 81st Hour

LANSDALE, Pa., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The jigsaw puzzle craze may be all right, but Raymond Snyder, 26, has had enough—with 80 hours of puzzle-solving and only 16 hours of sleep.

Snyder said he set out to establish a world's jigsaw puzzle marathon record. He intended to continue for a month, but concluded the pieces in the thirty-fifth puzzle all looked alike.

4 Army Fliers Die As Bomber Crashes

SALISBURY, England, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Four men of the Royal Air Force were killed today when their bombing plane crashed.

BRITISH BREAK DISTANCE MARK

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The British fliers, Squadron Leader O. R. Gayford and Flight Lieut. G. E. Nicholetts, landed at Walfish Bay at 4:40 p. m. (10:40 a. m. Pittsburgh time), after setting a new long-distance non-stop record.

They beat the American long distance mark established by Russell Boardman and John Polando by more than 300 miles. 8hey were in the air 57 hours and 28 minutes.

DAKAR, Senegal, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Capt. James A. Mollison, who is attempting a speed flight by stages from England to Brazil, arrived this morning at Thies, near here, from where he plans his trans-Atlantic takeoff.

PARIS, Feb. 8. — (AP.)—Le Bourget aviation field has received reports that Victor Smith, England-South Africa flier, wrecked his plane in landing at Oran, Algeria, today and suffered injuries including a cut over one eye.

The message indicated the plane was so badly damaged that Smith was unable to continue his effort to beat Amy Mollison's England-South Africa record.

GUY TO ATTACK YACHT STORY

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Cuthbert Wills, engineer on the vagabond adventure yacht Carma, faced cross-examination today on his testimony he conducted William J. (Curly) Guy to "Captain" Walter Wanderwell a few minutes before the craft's skipper was shot to death last December 5.

Wills was the third witness in Guy's trial for murder to identify the handsome young Welshman, disgruntled former associate of Wanderwell, as "the man in gray" who sought Wanderwell out the night of the killing.

Miss Marian Smith, of Rockmart, Ga., preceding Wills on the stand, said Guy was the stranger who appeared at a porthole and asked for Wanderwell. She was one of eight women, who, with seven men, had signed up for an expense-sharing Wanderwell cruise to distant ports.

Another girl member of the crew, Mary Parks, of East Saugus, Mass., told the jury yesterday that she did not know who the caller was. She said he was a "good looking, smooth shaven young man."

U. S. AID ASKED IN AUTO STRIKE LAID TO REDS

3,000 More Quit Work; Man Shot, 1 Stabbed 3 Others Beaten

DETROIT, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A federal investigation of alleged Communist activity in two strikes among automobile body workers here was a possibility today.

A request for intervention by Secretary of Labor Doak was made last night by Cal M. Wideman, Democratic Representative-elect in Congress. Wideman communicated with Washington following receipt of a petition which said:

"An attempt is being made by certain groups who are opposed to our form of government to wrest control of said strike from loyal American citizens."

3,000 MORE WALK OUT

The move to enlist the aid of the federal government in sifting the underlying causes of the strikes and arbitrating differences followed the walkout yesterday of 3,000 workers at the Hudson Motor Car Company plant. This move affected a total of 6,000 employes.

With a strike at the Briggs body plant in its third week, officials yesterday announced that production had reached normal with the filling of the strikers' places.

More violence was reported at the Briggs plant. Street cars carrying workers were stopped. One man was shot, another stabbed and three others beaten.

Officials of the Hudson company joined Briggs executives in accusing Communists. Both companies maintain that the strikers have been induced by outsiders, who have forced employes to join in the strikes.

NEW FORD MODEL WAITED

While no definite announcement had been made by Ford Motor Company officials, it was believed here that a new Ford model was to be introduced in a few days. Ford officials predicted all factories would be in production some time this week.

The first three persons to be tried of the 51 arrested in Highland Park in connection with the Briggs strike were found not guilty last night in Justice Court. The jury was composed entirely of unemployed persons.

Justice George L. Badder, who heard the cases, said he expected to take up trials of the remaining 48 persons tomorrow.

Ford Recalls 1,500 To Chester Factory

CHESTER, Pa., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The Ford Motor Company has recalled 1,500 workers to its Chester plant, F. A. Atcheson, general manager, announced. The resumption follows the hiring of new workers after the strike in the Briggs plant, Detroit, where bodies for Ford automobiles are made. Atcheson said:

"The peak months are March and April. We shall increase the force as business conditions permit. Just now they look pretty good."

Four Boys Stage Party In Empty Elks' Home

Admitting they staged a party in the club rooms of Allegheny Lodge, B. O. P. Elks, 400 Cedar avenue, North Side, early today, four youths were being held after police testified in Morals Court that $200 damage was caused through broken mirrors and scattered articles.

The boys are James Markovitz, 20, 704 Salmon way; Edward Thompson, 18, 714 Woods Run avenue; Frank Martin, 16, 1416 Nixon street, employed as pin boy in the club's bowling alley, and Mike Justko, 20, 2333 Matt[illegible]n street. They denied forcing an entrance to the building, testifying a rear door was found unlocked.

Patrolman Joseph Stockline testified he was summoned by operators from a private detective agency when a signal was sounded in their downtown office. Stockline offered a hat with a badge attached in testifying they found the boys had broken open a glass case containing badges and had thrown them on the floor. He said mirrors were broken, cigars and cigarets were taken from a case, and pool balls and cues scattered about the billiard room.

The boys said they had been drinking and had gone to the club to find drinks. They testified to finding liquor. The club trustees were to decide today whether to prosecute the case.

NAZIS PACKING THE STREETS IN BERLIN TO CHEER HITLER (CIRCLED) AS THE CHANCELLOR

Blind Mother Saves Son From Murder Trial

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The plea of a blind mother that her son not be extradited to Pennsylvania to face a charge of murder was granted today by Gov. Ruby Laffoon in rejecting the requisition of Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, for the return of Jesse Hayes, 36, a coal miner.

Hayes, charged with murder in Indiana County, Pa., in connection with the shooting of John Bellas in November, 1928, pleaded self-defense at a hearing yesterday. He has been held in Harlan County on a warrant from Pennsylvania, but was freed by today's action.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Jane Hayes, made a plea in behalf of her son at the hearing.

Extradition of Hayes was urged by District Attorney W. M. Ruddock, County Detective Harry E. Koozer and Deputy Sheriff H. Elmer Borland, of Indiana County.

Gov. Laffoon held the requisition papers were insufficient.

PINCHOT WORKS ON RELIEF PROGRAM

REED OFFERS BILL

Senator George L. Reed, Harrisburg, is sponsor of a bill to appropriate $30,000,000 to counties and poor districts under the same plan governing the two Talbot grants of $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 in 1931 and 1932.

In the House this morning, Representatives Wilson O. Sarig, Democratic floor leader, and Arnold Blumberg, Philadelphia Republican, jointly introduced a bill to appropriate $25,000,000 to the state Emergency Relief Board for the next two years.

The Blumberg-Sarig measure authorizes monthly grants to the counties for food, clothing and shelter or work relief. The sponsorship of the bill was a surprise to most legislators, tying up as it does, the Democratic faction and the Philadelphia organization.

DEPENDS ON ECONOMIES

The Governor believes that economies which he has suggested, and which he will reiterate next week, will provide sufficient funds for direct relief, with the road program continued as a supplemental help through work relief.

As he sets forth his ideas on relief, the Governor is expected to champion the commissary system of feeding the needy. He is known to feel that only through the commissary system can available money be made to reach over the emergency which exists. While he has not commented publicly on the suggestion of Pittsburgh grocers and wholesalers for a plan whereby unemployed might purchase from retailers at a price estimated only slightly above the commissary level of 6 cents per day per person, it is understood on reliable authority that the Governor was not impressed by the figures furnished him by these agencies last week.

SHARE WITH COUNTIES

Some of the tax money, especially that secured through the personal property tax, would remain with the counties of origin. As a base, the counties would be permitted to retain as much money as they have collected in personal property tax in previous years. Fifty per cent of the increased collections, which the Governor believes possible, would remain with the counties, the remainder to go to the state fund for relief.

The total saving through state collection, the Governor has said, would be $89,000,000 in the next biennium. Of this amount $69,000,000 would go toward reducing the cost of government, and $20,000,000 would be made available for relief, to be supplemented by highway construction funds, local contributions and allocations from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

RELIEF DEPOTS SEEN NEEDED

Need for relief in Pennsylvania may have reached the point where the commissary system has become a necessity, according to Arthur Dunham, Lansdowne, Pa., secretary of the child welfare division of the Public Charities Association, who addressed the Allegheny County Welfare Conference today at Hotel Schenley.

Social workers of Allegheny County have opposed the commissary system as ruinous to the morale of unemployed. Dunham declared that while he was reluctant to see the commissary system used, the practical question of getting funds is now most important. He pointed out that 400,000 families are on relief in Pennsylvania in February, representing a yearly bill of approximately $120,000,000, and expressed doubt whether the money would be forthcoming.

Dunham declared the poor boards of Pennsylvania are "usually inefficient." He stated that the Federal government will not agree to have Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds distributed by the poor boards and declared:

Roosevelt Inaugural Proposal Blocked

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Representative Hiram G. Andrews, Cambria, today blocked unanimous consideration of the Steedle (Allegheny) resolution providing for the appointment of a joint legislative committee to arrange for transportation of the General Assembly, the Governor and his cabinet to the Roosevelt inaugural.

The rest of the House had prepared to adopt the resolution, which would pave the way for a Washington trip March 4.

Power of Subpena Asked for Probers

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Representative Elwood J. Turner, Delaware, today introduced a resolution in the House, giving the power of subpena to standing committees investigating state government costs.

He failed to obtain unanimous consent for immediate consideration and the resolution went over for printing.

Stay on Mortgage Foreclosures Urged

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—The police power of the state would be invoked to stay for a two-year period proceedings to sell real estate on mortgage foreclosures, under the terms of a bill introduced by Rep. Matthew J. Welsh, Fayette.

OUSTED SCHOOL HEAD

PRINCIPAL H. N. HENNON.....VOTED OUT OF OFFICE

Mr. Hennon, since 1916 West View Borough's school head, voted out of office; effective July 1, by a school board vote of 4 to 3. He's pictured at his desk today. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

SUNDAY SPORTS UP TO SENATE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8. — The Schwartz bill, permitting Sunday afternoon sports, lay in a Senate committee today as the Legislature adjourned before noon until next Monday night.

The Schwartz measure, passed by the House yesterday, will be called up for a public hearing before the Senate Law and Order Committee at 2 o'clock next Tuesday. A shattering of party lines in the House, evidenced in the vote on the bill, occurred again today as upstate Republicans joined Democrats to approve creation of a state liquor commission.

There was little action in the Senate. Seven bills were advanced on second reading, including one by Mansfield, Allegheny, to decrease by 15 per cent all salaries paid from the county treasury. It will be up for final action next Monday.

The General Assembly sent to the Governor the first two bills of the session. One would place on the state the entire cost of land damages in highway construction projects, and the other would hold counties from which prisoners are sent to penal institutions liable for damages and trial costs for crimes committed during their imprisonment.

Move to Compare State Salaries O. K.'d

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The House has adopted the surface resolution requiring the secretary of Revenue to furnish a comparative list of salaries of state employes for 1913 and 1933.

"MOIST THROAT' STOPPED MY COUGHING SPELLS!"

"I'm certainly glad I learned about moist throat," writes Miss A. S., of New York City.

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny "bottles" continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these pores clog. Phlegm collects. Dangerous germs find a breeding place. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

To cure your cough you must increase the flow of your throat's natural moisture, loosening the phlegm so it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely "deaden" the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble!

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of throat moisture and brings quick relief naturally.

If your throat's raw or dry, take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN now. It's safe, even for children. At drug stores, 60c.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

BOROUGHS SHUN CRASH COSTS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The State Boroughs Association decided today that there should be a law to relieve boroughs of damages in accidents on faulty state roads.

This action was taken after R. J. Firman, Erie, said many boroughs are facing huge damage suits as the result of such smashups.

Next year's session was awarded to Stroudsburg.

John W. Spicer, solicitor of Reading, spoke on the need for greater state regulation of public utilities. He said the Metropolitan Edison Company, which supplies Reading with electricity, charges from 5 to 10 times the actual cost of producting the electricity. He declared:

"If robbery of this kind continues, there is only one alternative, public ownership of electric light plants."

P. S. C. PROBERS STILL LOCKED ON CHAIRMAN

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—The Senate Utilities Investigating Committee, rapidly becoming known as the "futility" committee, met again yesterday, but appears to have made no progress toward organization which would place it in a position to proceed with inquiry into the alleged relations between the Public Service Commission and utilities, or the financial structure of the public service corporations.

No progress has been made toward obtaining an appropriation to provide the committee with funds, or to wipe out financial obligations incurred before the committee's appropriation of $100,000 authorized by the special session last summer was tied up by court injunctions.

Attorney O. K. Eaton, chief counsel for the committee, was in Harrisburg yesterday on special call from the members, and was authorized to push the appeals challenging the committee's authority—but he has no money with which to work.

Senator Thaddeus Krause, of Philadelphia, who was suggested as chairman, appears to be speaking for the committee, but his chances of being named to head the inquisitorial group are dimming.

Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, an organization leader, would like to have the chairmanship, but the organization is hesitant about accepting leadership. Senator Charles H. Ealy, of Somerset, is being advanced as the logical alternative.

Meanwhile the committee by its hesitancy and fumbling on the entire subject is managing to delay any actual investigation while the life of the Legislature runs on.

JUDGE SCORES 'OFFICE TOPERS'

Mrs. Marie Beals Vance, 3803 Perrysville avenue, whose husband, Edwin N. Vance, of Bridgeville, contested her divorce action and defended his drinking by saying he did it to hold his job, has been granted a decree by Judge Ralph H. Smith.

Mrs. Vance charged her husband, a coal salesman, with cruel and barbarous treatment, but Judge Smith refused to recognize the charge, awarding her the divorce on ground of indignities. The Judge said in his opinion:

"His right to continued love and affection and companionship of his wife was sacrificed on the altar of dubious salesmanship, which depended not so much for its success upon the quality of the product or ability of the salesman as it did upon the gullibility of the customer and degree of his intoxication or both."

Lewis' Former Wife Marries Spaniard

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Grace Hegger Lewis, former wife of Sinclair Lewis, was married yesterday to Telestoro Casanova de Ojea.

The bride, like her first husband, is a novelist. She has one son, Wells Lewis, now at school in Andover. Mr. Casanova was graduated from the University of Madrid. Shortly after the wedding, they left for Havana for a honeymoon.

Remove Marble From Boy's Throat

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A marble has been removed from the esophagus of Melvin Crites, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Crites, Cumberland, Md.

The boy swallowed one of his "shooters" at his home and was brought to the bronchoscopic clinic of the University of Pennsylvania Hospital.

ECONOMIC RENT PLAN URGED

Immediate, permanent prosperity is possible if the community collects the "economic rent" on property rather than imposing taxes, W. N. McNair, attorney, said today in an address at the Real Estate Board luncheon, in the Keystone Club.

McNair explained "economic rent" is defined as the surplus which arises in certain localities from the application of the same amount of labor and capital over no-rent land. He said this could best be turned into public channels by gradually eliminating taxes and substituting for them the community fund that would be created. He explained "economic rent" is collected in most instances by a site holder who is not a resident of the community and added that vast sums go out of the city never to return.

He added:

"In other instances the recipient has no use for the money nor does he invest it. But the greatest evil of the situation develops from the fact that the site holders have the power to restrict or forbid the use of the site. This restricts or stops the process of exchange or production in all its various phases necessary to an advanced civilization."

JURIST DEFIES HIGH COURT ON CITIZENSHIP

LIMA, O., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A challenge to the United States Supreme Court decision in the famous McIntosh and Bland citizenship cases came today from Judge E. E. Everett of the Allen County Pleas Court.

Over the protest of Edward J. Kennedy, a Federal naturalization inspector, Judge Everett yesterday granted United States citizenship to John P. Klassen, 46, despite his refusal to swear that he would bear arms, if necessary, in defense of the constitution.

TELLS OBJECTIONS

Klassen, a Russian Mennonite refugee, who came to the United States in 1924 and now is professor of arts at Bluffton College, said that portion of the oath of allegiance would violate his religious principles. Judge Everett then permitted him to swear he would defend the constitution "by rendering any service other than actually bearing arms."

Klassen said he willingly would serve in a non-combatant capacity in the event of war. He served in the Red Cross with the Russian Army in the World War and participated as a non-combatant in the Russian revolution.

Judge Everett, who rejected applications from both Klassen and his wife last September 27 because of their refusal to take the oath without reservations, asserted he would not have awarded the citizenship at this time had Klassen been of military age.

He said a personal inquiry into their qualifications had convinced him both were "worthy of citizenship."

SUPREME COURT EDICT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Regardless of age, the Supreme Court said unequivocally on May 25, 1931, that an applicant for citizenship must take an oath to fight for this country if that becomes necessary.

The decision was close, four justices dissenting, but the other five decreed the oath to bear arms must be taken without any mental reservation.

Prof. Douglas McIntosh, Yale theology professor, had said he would be willing to fight for the United States only if he felt the cause were just.

Marie A. Bland, one-time war nurse, said she would not be willing to fight but would gladly serve in an non-combatant capacity. Both MacIntosh and Miss Bland were Canadians.

Gets $2 for Return Of $90,000 Papers

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Almer A. Kupsky, 24, of Heislerville, N. J., an unemployed chauffeur who took a job as a newsboy, today returned commercial papers worth $90,000 to their owner and was rewarded with a $2 check.

A gust of wind last night blew the crisp, official-looking papers into his hands as he was selling on a street corner, Kupsky said today. Kupsky held them until this morning, when he returned them to the offices of a glue manufacturing concern. They had been lost by an official of the company.

Problems Discussed At Loan Sessions

Round table discussions on problems confronting the loan business were being held at a special meeting today of the Pennsylvania Association of Personal Finance Companies in the Hotel William Penn.

C. W. Loupe, vice president, of Pittsburgh, was presiding. A banquet will close the session tonight at which speakers will be Charles H. Watts, of New York, and Albert R. Moses, Pittsburgh.

BRIDGE COST FIGHT DELAYED

Hearing of the County's effort before the Public Service Commission to collect approximately $500,000, the County Commissioners claim is due from the City of Pittsburgh on the construction of the Sixteenth Street Bridge, was continued for two weeks today by Commissioner S. Ray Shelby.

The claim represents property damages amounting to $347,000 and interest from February, 1921.

Following brief arguments by Special Counsel M. B. Lesher for the County, and Assistant City Solicitor Charles P. Lang, the hearing was continued to give the County time to prepare certified copies of minutes of various meetings and municipal records to be presented as exhibits.

The County has admitted there was no legal contract, but it is said Council, by resolution, agreed to pay the property damages.

PHILA. MANAGER BILL OFFERED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—A bill to permit Philadelphia to adopt the city manager form of government was introduced in the Senate today by Senator George Woodward, and promptly referred to the Committee on Municipal affairs, of which Senator Max Aaron is chairman. Aaron is reported to be unsympathetic to the measure, and it is doubtful if it will come from committee.

The Pittsburgh city manager bill, introduced by Senator Frank J. Harris some weeks ago, was sent to the Committee on Elections. Dividing consideration of the bills may make it more difficult to secure public hearings, unless the two committees agree to sit together, as the bills are similar in text.

Dr. Tyson to Ask For Guidance Fund

Work of the Occupational Guidance Center will be explained to Council today by Dr. Francis D. Tyson, professor of economics, University of Pittsburgh, when he asks for an appropriation of $5,000 annually for the work. Dr. Tyson, chairman of the board, in a letter to Council, said he hoped the $5,000 asked of Council would be matched by grants from the state and federal governments. He said the Center, with temporary headquarters at 4200 Fifth avenue, is endeavoring to determine to what occupation persons are fitted.

Train Derailed; 1 Killed, 3 Hurt

GREEN BAY, Wis., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A brakeman was killed and three passengers were injured early today when a north bound Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific train was derailed two miles south of Sobieski, Wis.

A sleeper carrying seven passengers turned over.

enjoy them a la carte for 25 cents or with dessert and coffee, 40 cents

Spinach, Green Beans, Cole Slaw, Brussels, Carrots, Sprouts, Beets, Mashed Potatoes, Broccoli, Candied Sweet Potatoes, Creamed Fresh Mushrooms

Choose your favorite four and enjoy them for lunch. All are simply prepared . . . cooked until tender and then generously buttered. And if you'd like to substitute macaroni and cheese for one of your vegetables, go right ahead and do it.

Two suggested combinations:

1. Creamed Fresh Mushrooms, Buttered Green Beans, New Carrots and Fresh Spinach (25 cents a la carte)
Nut Bread and Butter, Apple or Lemon Pie, Coffee, Tea or Milk (40 cents . . . complete)

2. Macaroni and Cheese, Broccoli . . . Beets, Buttered Green Beans (25 cents a la carte)
Hot Biscuits, Butter, Vanilla Ice Cream, Coffee, Tea or Milk (40 cents . . . complete)

Can I buy a loaf of that nut bread

You certainly can! Our customers tell us the nut bread served in the cafeteria is the "best they ever ate." Maybe that's so. McCanns nut bread is made with McCanns own butter, fresh eggs, milk and Gold Medal flour. Naturally enough when you use ingredients like that and don't skimp on chopped nuts . . . the nut bread you make simply can't be anything but GOOD. Leave your order with the cashier.

NEW SPRING ARRIVALS ARE DISTINCTLY "Q"

 This is a new term brought out by one of our foremost fashion sources. It expresses Chic, Quality, Smartness, and the more intangible characteristics which go toward making clothes Right.*

Sketched — a jacket costume of dull black rough crepe, dress top and trimmings of Roman stripes. $29.75. For information on where to find it, call GRant 6500, ask for "Shopping."

Take a new lease on life....it's easy with a frock like the one here! You may feel that Spring is still a good distance ahead, but for the sake of your morale, get yourself a frock like this. The stores of this city are doing everything in their power to give you the "Q-ish" wardrobes you wish, for the prices you can pay. No longer must a woman feel that Really Good Looking clothes are beyond her. They Aren't! The advertisements which appear in this newspaper daily prove beyond a doubt that 1933 grooming is as high as its prices are low! Keep an eye on these pages and you'll be convinced!

FATHER COX DUE HOME TODAY

Father Cox, after three weeks in Mercy Hospital, was due to arrive home at Old St. Patrick's this afternoon much improved in health and anxious to again get into the battle against depression.

While he has been in the hospital he has had ample time to map out new plans for helping the destitute and within a week or two he will be putting these plans in action. Under the orders of his physician he will have to go slow for a few days. He will resume his broadcasts on WJAS at 12:30 o'clock noon tomorrow from the pulpit of his church.

The Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph drive for subscriptions still goes on with success. Every home delivery order for the Sun-Telegraph that comes in on the blank on this page brings a liberal cash commission to the Father Cox Unemployment Relief Fund.

PROBE ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP GIRL

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—In the belief an organized gang of kidnapers was responsible for the abduction of Mrs. Mary B. Skeele, 65-year-old wife of the dean of the University of Southern California Music College, police today were investigating the attempted kidnaping of Miss Isobel Smith, 29-year-old daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Merle N. Smith.

Dr. Smith is pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Pasadena.

Miss Smith told authorities a man, representing himself to be a member of the church of which her father is pastor, called her by telephone, saying a surprise party was being planned at the church for her father and that he would call for her.

On the night of last January 27 the man arrived at the home. It was raining at the time, Miss Smith said, and on reaching the automobile in which they were to ride she noticed the moustache which the man wore was false, it having slipped when loosened by the moisture. She refused to accompany him to the "party."

CHANGE SUNDAY SHOW RULES

Figuring on the hundreds of friends interested in the Jewish Home for Babies and Children, 5508 Breckenridge avenue, next Sunday's food benefit show at the Warner Theater promises to be the most successful of the many already sponsored by the Warner Brothers management for the poor of Pittsburgh.

At this benefit the regulations are going to be a little more strict than those employed at preceding benefit shows. The single can of food will not be gratefully accepted as a ticket. All who attend wil be expected to don.te in canned goods or package food the equivalent of the regular box office price of admission. The organization of women behind this home, numbering several hundred, has agreed to each bring no less than 50 cents worth of food. If every one who attends donates food at half this value the affair will be a gratifying success.

The regional director, Harry Kalmine, of the Warner theaters, promises a tremendously big and popular show and requests that those who attend donate in the same spirit that he is giving the show and the theater—all without cost for the poor of Pittsburgh.

Woman Corrects Error in Identity

Mrs. Alberta Frey, of 5385 Warble street, has called the Sun-Telegraph's attention to a story pubished in these pages on December 14, 1932, in which Mrs. Frey was inadvertently identified, incorrectly, as a Negro.

There has never been any other suggestion that Mrs. Frey is not white, and the Sun-Telegraph gladly takes this opportunity of correcting its error.

TAYLOR UPHELD ON COSTS IN BANK CASE

Depositors in the closed Citizens' Trust Company of Bellevue who have objected to expenses of former Special Deputy Secretary of Banking George F. Taylor, today studied a decision in Cambria County clearing Taylor of similar exceptions.

The decision was handed down by Judge Ivan J. McKendrick in the case of depositors' exceptions to Taylor's account as deputy in charge of the Miners' and Merchants' Bank of Nant-y-Glo.

COSTS POINTED OUT

The Nant-y-Glo charges were that Taylor paid too much for his help, ran up excessive traveling expenses and paid dinner and taxi bills of employes working at night and over week-ends and holidays. The expenditures, some 173 items amounting approximately to $12,000 were all upheld. They were largely of the same character as those to which the Bellevue people object.

The exceptions to the Bellevue account were first aired in a three-day hearing before Judge Elder W. Marshall in Common Pleas Court in December. Decision is understood to be waiting argument of attorneys and submission of data explaining the cost of the division of closed banks of the banking department, to which exception was taken.

The data was supposed to be brought to court by William M. McGhee, in charge of the division, early in January.

JUDGE'S RULING

In upholding Taylor's expenses at Nant-y-Glo, Judge McKendrick said:

"The Secretary of Banking under the laws of this commonwealth as we understand them is substantially a dictator, having powers almost czaristic. It seems that when a bank or other financial institution is taken over by the Secretary of Banking, martial law, as it were, is declared. The depositor having money in the bank has no control over his funds.

"Mr. Taylor testified that he followed the policy laid down by his superiors in the Banking Department of this commonwealth and that the expenditures involved in the liquidation of this particular bank are not excessive and are in fact lower than the amount expended in liquidating other similar institutions.

"While there are items in the account which on their face appear excessive and subject to criticism, yet when taken in connection with the explanation of such items they seem entirely reasonable under all the circumstances."

CITY JOINS PLEA FOR TERMINAL

The city's law department today prepared to join the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in an appeal from the findings of the Public Service Commission relative to the proposed Grant street terminal.

The Public Service Commission last year refused to approve a contract between the city and the railroad for the project after utility companies had asserted the work would necessitate costly changes and adjustments.

Council yesterday authorized the law department to petition the Superior Court to let the city intervene in the appeal. The railroad's appeal is to be heard in April.

LUKE LEA, SON IN NEW APPEAL

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Col. Luke Lea and Luke Lea, Jr., have lost their fight against extradition and today staked hopes to escape penalties imposed in North Carolina for bank law violations on habeas corpus proceedings set for hearing February 13.

After Gov. Hill McAllister decided there was "no escape from the conclusion" that the Leas were fugitives from justice and ordered their arrest by agents of North Carolina, attorneys for the convicted men obtained a petition for a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Henry B. Brown at Oneida commanding North Carolina officers and Sheriff J. M. Peavyhouse, of Fentress County, to produce the Leas before Judge J. H. S. Morrison, of Jamestown, for hearing Monday.

The elder Lea, Nashville newspaper publisher, former United States senator and a decorated World War officer, faces a prison term of six to ten years. His son has the alternative of a two to six year prison term or payment of $25,000 in fines and costs.

PIMPLES?
LARGE PORES?
OILY SKIN?

SIX MILLION WOMEN USE THIS QUICK WAY TO END SKIN FAULTS

THE quickest and surest way to get rid of pimples, large pores, blackheads and other skin irregularities is by using Noxzema Skin Cream. That's what 6,000,000 women know today from actual experience!

Noxzema is not an oily cream that simply cleanses the skin surface—nor is it an old-fashioned skin ointment. Noxzema is a rare medicated cream formula prescribed for years by doctors for skin irritations and blemishes.

The corrective medicines in Noxzema penetrate deep—purge the pores of noxious, germ-breeding matter—leave every particle of skin medically pure and clean. That's how pimples are prevented and corrected!

Then Noxzema's bland, smooth oils soothe, lubricate the coarse, irritated skin. Finally its stimulating astringents close the enlarged pores as effectively as an ice-pack. It feels so good, too! Leaves a vibrant, tingling afterglow.

How long does Noxzema take to work? Amazingly—an improvement in only 8 hours! The first application—overnight—shows definite results.

Try Noxzema tonight! (Remember, it's greaseless—won't stain—doesn't look messy.) Tomorrow you'll be tickled pink—your skin noticeably smoother, whiter, finer. Each succeeding treatment will make it lovelier and lovelier. Soon you'll be able to more than hold your own against expensive, beauty-parlor faces. And won't the men notice the difference!

Start on your Noxzema treatment tonight. You'll be well on your way to a lovely skin. Get the inexpensive trial jar at any drug or department store.

WELFARE FUND EXPENDITURE REVIEWED

A report covering the expenditure of about $10,000,000 since 1931 by the Allegheny County Emergency Association and Welfare Fund agencies was issued today at the Allegheny County Welfare Conference in the Schenley Hotel.

Complete set-up and activities of the Emergency Association are discussed at length in the report, published in booklet form by the Pittsburgh Personnel Association and signed by James W. Howell, of Carnegie Tech; Maj. Phillip Mathews, of the Bureau of Governmental Research and former director of the association, and Dr. Francis D. Tyson, Pitt economist.

REPORT REVIEWED

The report declared:

The Emergency Association was formed by men who recognized that "responsibility for the solution of the problem rested first with the employers of labor." Aim was to reduce involuntary idleness and alleviate suffering.

The course of the depression in Pittsburgh was slow, at first. The decline of employment has been less than that of the rest of the country. Payrolls, however, fell before unemployment was marked. Cause is lack of diversified industry, iron and steel being one-third of Pittsburgh's industry.

The program of the association was under way within 15 days after organization. By February 26, 1931, the first group of unemployed men was actually at work. Social agencies provided men, the city, projects.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

The guiding principles in the work relief program was the selection of projects which would be of a permanently useful nature but which could not be undertaken at that time unless the labor was paid by the association. All projects were to be of such a nature that their completion would result in a direct benefit to the taxpayer and a definite contribution to the sanitation, health and material development of the community.

Projects could not be profit-making or competitive. Both public and semi-public work was undertaken, the latter in hospitals, churches, museums and similar places.

From February to September, 1931, 6,736 persons were given work. In the winter of 1931-1932 13,925 men and women were employed.

The association, through subcommittees, is studying the effects of long-range planning of public works, with an eye to providing public work peaks in slack times.

MRS. SARAH HAYNES

Mrs. Haynes, 55, 5118½ Lytle street, fatally stricken in Seventh avenue as she awaited her daughter, Miss Rachel A. Haynes. As Miss Haynes arrived, she found police carrying her mother into the Bell Telephone's emergency hospital.

FARM MEETING TOMORROW

The annual meeting of the Allegheny County Agricultural Extension Association will be held tomorrow in the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce auditorium with State College experts as principal speakers.

The session, beginning at 1:15 p. m., will receive the annual reports of Director Henry R. Eby and Home Economics Extension Representative Miss Lottie B. Hartt.

William V. Dennis, rural sociology expert of State College, will discuss the farming progress in Allegheny County. Miss Grace Bacon nutrition specialist, will speak on "When Every Penny Counts."

The annual election also will be held.

Your Income Tax

Many Can Deduct for Gifts to Charity

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

This is the fifteenth of a series of articles analyzing the Revenue Act of 1932 and discussing the problems of income taxpayers.

A great majority of income taxpayers will be able to claim at least some deductions from their 1932 incomes for charitable contributions.

Direct contributions to individuals are not deductible, but gifts to any corporation, trust, community chest, fund or foundation operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals may be deducted from gross income in compiling tax returns.

The law states, however, that no part of the organizations' income may inure to the benefit of any private stockholders or individuals.

A wide range of contributions for church activities come under the classification of allowable deductions. These include missionary funds, church building funds and similar activities. Pew rents, assessments and dues paid to churches are regarded as contributions.

While gifts to an individual are not deductible, gifts to charitable organizations are deductible even though these organizations may distribute their funds to individuals. Contributions to the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh or to any of the organizations participating in the Welfare Fund are deductible.

Mothers Get Disillusioned Like Anyone Else

Can you run a family by fault-finding?

Can you earn the love and respect of your children by constantly nagging at them, and complaining to the neighbors?

Plainly, Leah's mother thinks you can; for she has kept the home in an uproar ever since they were born. And now—

What's the result? I'll give you three guesses, but wager you'll hit it in one; for you've probably seen mothers like Leah's or, unfortunately, had one.

Worst luck of all, you may be such a mother yourself. If you are, read this letter and see why tenderness and gratitude don't come your way.

Dear Elsie:

I've never seen a problem like mine in your column, so I am asking you to please try to help us out.

MOTHER COMPLAINS

It is my mother. She reads your column, and maybe if she sees this she will realize the harm she is doing us—and herself. The fact is that she likes nothing better than crying to anyone who will listen to her, and telling them her troubles. Ever since I can remember, she has gone around to her friends and neighbors complaining about how bad her children are.

There are three of us—just average kids. I am the only girl. One brother is 23 and the other 13. I started to help her with the housework when I was 9, for she is not strong. But no matter how hard I worked or cleaned, I never got one word of praise or thanks, and she never failed to tell everyone that I was a "terrible daughter because I never helped her," or "didn't help her enough," depending on who it was she was talking to.

I knew, even then, that when I worked before school and as soon as I came home, I was doing more than my share, because none of my friends ever did a fourth of what I did. I was perfectly willing to do it, but what got my goat was that she was never satisfied. Whenever she could get an audience, she acted the part of Mistreated Mother, until everybody began to feel I must be awful.

PRACTICE CONTINUED

This continued for years, all through Hi, where I never could stay for games or anything after school like the other girls. Every night my father heard the same story, too, until he began to lecture me, which kept up until one day he was home and saw the way I worked.

Finally, I went to business (I've been going for two years now), but she has never stopped. Now, I'm so hardened to her continual wailing that I do just enough to get by, and refuse to do any more. And now that she has finally made me into the "bad daughter" she has always wailed about, she keeps telling me "how good I used to be."

She is continually picking on my brothers, too. No matter what any of us do, it's wrong—and an excuse to put on the old Martyr Act. Even my father is joining lodges and clubs to get away from her. My little brother is a Boy Scout, and trying to live up to it, but no matter what he wants to do, she puts her foot down on it. He is getting so he pays as little attention to her as possible.

She thinks nothing of screaming and cursing at us if we do anything she doesn't approve—and she is generally at it.

What ails her? She is driving all of us away from her. Maybe, if she sees this, she'll wake up and get human. I hope so.

LEAH.

What ails her? Nothing unusual, Leah. Just old-fashioned selfishness and conceit.

She thinks only of herself, and wants others to do likewise. When they don't, she not only flies into a tantrum, but she also proceeds to promote her own importance by telling the neighbors what a martyr she is, and what monsters her children are.

AN UNHAPPY WOMAN

Probably, behind all her raving, she's just a blundering, lonely, embittered woman, who feels that life has passed her by. But, because you and your brothers are her children, you don't realize that.

It is very hard for children to realize that mothers are people. It is very hard for mothers, themselves, to realize that fact.

That's why strange, sad situations grow up in homes, which might easily be cured by a gentle word, an admiring gesture, a pretty gift, such as one would give to a stranger, but which one never thinks of giving to that Miserable Mystery—an unhappy mother.

Suppose for a while you try to treat Mother, Leah, as you'd wish to be treated yourself, if you were ill and worried and sore at life. Forget she's your mother and that you are her daughter. Just remember that she is a wretchedly unhappy woman.

Try to understand and befriend her. Flatter her a little. Play with her. Tease her to go on small adventures with you. Perhaps it won't work—but here's hoping, and betting, that it will.

Jigsaw Picture Puzzles Latest Pastime to Fay King

By FAY KING

Jigsaw picture puzzles are the latest fad.

Drop into an office and what seems like a serious round table conference is nothing more than a circle of persons all working at the same time on a new jigsaw picture.

In these days when every one's problem is trying to make ends meet, perhaps it is natural that the popular pastime should be along that line.

Gloomy jigsaw bits that just won't seem to fit in anywhere eventually do, and the picture could not be complete and pretty without them. It's that way with life, too.

When fans run out of professional puzzles they can make their own. Any picture pasted on cardboard and cut up into little bits will make a picture puzzle.

Madge Is Forced to Tell About Kidnaping

Neither Hugh nor I spoke during the short ride back to the Sackettsville Inn, but when he had parked the car and helped me to alight, he put out his hand and clasped mine firmly.

"Don't worry about this any more," he said. "If your husband doesn't change his mind, I shall find some way to manage. But one thing is certain. Lillian must not go. Either Harry or I will come over later and let you know how things are going. We shall not know exactly when we shall make the attack until your husband makes his next report, which will not be for some hours. Then we will send the news along to you. In the meantime you can get me here—if you should need me, I shall be there at intervals all day."

He scribbled a telephone number and address upon a slip of paper, handed it to me, and with the gesture again covered my hand with both his.

"Remember," he said, "I know that you would be there this evening if you could."

He went away upon that assurance, and I went slowly up the steps to the hotel veranda. Noel raised himself from a chair, where he evidently had been watching for me, and, slipping his arm under mine, escorted me into the hotel.

MRS. BRIXTON ILL

"Mrs. Brixton has collapsed," he said in a low voice. "The doctor is there, and they've sent for a nurse. Mr. and Mrs. Underwood and Ronald are with her, and she won't let any of them leave her—screams with terror if one of the three attempts to go out of the room. Mrs. Underwood said some explanation would have to be made to the hotel management—left it to your discretion how much of the truth to tell."

The hotel manager, tall and dignified, came forward before Noel finished speaking, and, though his manner was urbanity itself, I saw clearly that he would welcome some explanation of our activities since coming to the hotel.

I took a sudden resolution and seized upon my rapidly fleeing courage.

"May I see you for a moment?" I asked.

"Certainly. Come into this little room back here. We shall not be disturbed here."

"Please do not think that you have to make any explanation," he said. "I was simply expressing my sympathy with—"

"Explanations are due you," I said, interrupting him ruthlessly, "but I want to ask your utmost co-operation in helping to keep our errand here from public knowledge."

MADGE EXPLAINS

His face changed subtly, and I knew that he was wondering if he was about to hear something which would be embarrassing to the hotel.

"Two girls, the daughters of the Underwoods and the Brixtons, students at Whitney Hall, have been kidnaped," I said. "Because the Underwoods and my father are connected with the government secret service, we have been able to conduct our investigations so far without consulting the police, or incurring any publicity. You can see what it would mean if the news did get out—for the school, as well as for the girls?"

"Oh! How terrible!" he ejaculated. "Of course, nothing shall be said from here. I shall see to that immediately, without telling the staff why. They will know that their places depend upon their seeing nothing, hearing nothing, saying nothing"—he smiled grimly."

Household Hints

Water in which rice has been cooked is excellent for making soup.

Gas mantles will last much long if allowed to soak for an hour or so in vinegar before they are used.

Fish, other than salmon, should never be left to stand in the water in which it has been boiled, or it will lose its sweetness and flavor. If it cannot be served immediately, remove from the water, put on a stand so that it can drain, cover with a cloth, and keep in a warm place.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Word 'Menu'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the correct way to pronounce the word menu? The dictionary gives ma-noo and I hear it called men-u also main-u.

F.

A difficult word, this from the French, but one that we have to use so often that we must at least make an attempt to pronounce it as nearly correct as we can. The first syllable is easy—men, with the e short as in lend. And, when we Anglicize the word as we usually do, this is the syllable that gets the accent.

It is the u that is difficult to pronounce—as if it were a combination of sound that we find in the German umlaut, the two dots over a vowel; the combination of the vowel itself with the sound of e. To pronounce it, you find yourself pulling the corners of the mouth back a little. I wish that I could make this clearer—but one just has to practice the eu sound! The next best pronunciation for the sound is the u in unite.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Neglect of the Mouth Dangerous

We are hearing more and more about the hygiene of the mouth and the care of the teeth. In spite of this, however, too many persons neglect the mouth.

Dr. Copeland

Many germs, some of them capable of causing serious disease, are found in the mouth and throat. If the tissues are neglected, harmful germs may find a lodging place.

Certain inflammations and infections of the mouth and throat are permitted to run a long time without receiving the necessary attention. This is particularly true of "gingivitis," which is the technical name for inflammation of the gums.

Inflammation of the gums is found in persons who are in poor health and have lowered resistance. It may be found in a person convalescing from some acute illness. The gums become swollen and painful. In many instances the pain may be so severe as to prevent sleep and rest. Gingivitis is often found in persons suffering from anemia and other blood disturbances.

The sufferer from gingivitis notices that when he brushes his teeth the gums are sensitive and bleed easily. The breath has an unpleasant odor. The victim complains of headache and digestive disturbance.

When the teeth are X-rayed no deformities can be found in the teeth or jawbones. The trouble is confined to the soft tissues.

Various nervous symptoms may be traced to gingivitis. Nervous twitching, habit spasm, irritability and chronic headaches are common complaints. Of course, nausea, poor appetite and distress after eating caused by faulty chewing can often be traced to diseased and neglected gums.

Gingivitis must not be confused with "Vincent's angina". The latter is an infection of the lining of the mouth and throat. In this affliction, fever, sore throat, headache, ulcer formation and a general feeling of poor health, are a few symptoms.

I cannot over-emphasize the importance of keeping the mouth clean.

If there are cavities in the teeth they should receive proper dental care. Bear in mind that even though the teeth are not painful they may be unhealthy. The true condition can only be determined by an X-ray examination of all the teeth.

The mouth is the gateway for food, but it is also the gateway for the entry of many germs. The evil effects of such germs can be avoided by proper care of the mouth and throat. Guard your mouth against disease and thus protect your general health.

COUNTY PARLEY NEAR ON PAY SLASHES

A showdown on the County Commissioners' proposals to reduce salary and personnel in the offices of other elected officials was in sight today after the other officials had agreed to meet the Commissioners to discuss retrenchments. A date for the conference will be set tomorrow when Commissioner-State Senator W. D. Mansfield returns from Harrisburg.

The Commissioners have asserted they are a year ahead of other county officials in cutting costs.

RIGHT QUESTIONED

Some officials have taken the stand that the Commissioners lack authority to call meetings of the salary board to seek retrenchments. The board consists of the three Commissioners, the Controller and the head of the office in question.

At the conference it is expected each elected official will present some program to pare his office costs, but if the plans are not drastic enough to satisfy the Commissioners, Salary Board meetings may be called. With three votes to two, the Commissioners could make the reductions as large as they deemed necessary.

COYNE SEEKS CURB

The elected officials are awaiting developments in Harrisburg, where State Senator James J. Coyne has presented a bill giving the Commissioners only one vote on the Salary Board.

Another point to be decided is the court action sought by Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, who appointed three deputies to guard ballot boxes in his office at $5 a day and subsequently was met with a refusal when he asked the Commissioners to pay the bill.

The Commissioners held that in an emergency he had the right to appoint deputies, but that the matter of pay should have been handled by the Salary Board. Gollmar has asked the courts to require the Commissioners to pay the bill.

Typewriter May Help Solve This Cipher

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

This is a substitution cipher and a typewriter may aid you. That's almost giving the answer away, so hop to it and see what you can do. "Bogie" is 15 minutes.

As for Cipher No. 53, did you complete it? If you didn't get it the first day, you should have with the tip. The extra letters in the cipher were "len" which, like the entire message, was written backwards. To read the message you took the last set of letters which was: "hernelaes"; writing these out in reverse you had "Sea," then you drop the len and continued to "rch" which gave you your first word which was: "Search," continue to get the completed message.

Anonymous letters and contributions cannot be considered by the Cipher Editor.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Problem of Defense

It is, of course, axiomatic that the question of proper defense is much more difficult than is the play of the Dummy. The Declarer always knows the total resources available to him either in the way of honor-tricks or distributional values. The problem is summed up in the question of determining the location of missing honors, so that he may be guided in the taking of successful finesses or possibly the making of an end-play. The defending players, on the other hand, frequently have to decide on a lead with nothing whatever to guide them, and it is not an infrequent occurrence for even a good player to make what appears to be a good lead, only to find later that, had he made another choice, the contract would have been defeated, but that, as a result of his lead, it was made. Such a case was the following:

South—Dealer.
East—West vulnerable.

	♠A62 ♡1076 ◇KQ7 ♣10875
♠KQJ5 ♡A3 ◇AJ108 ♣K42	North / West East / South	♠109843 ♡J98 ◇642 ♣A6
	♠7 ♡KQ542 ◇953 ♣QJ93

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡ (1)	Double (2)	1 N.T. (3)	2♠ (4)
Pass	3♠	Pass	4♠ (5)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—This bid is designed to prevent, if possible, vulnerable opponents from reaching a game contract.

2—West's hand is too strong to permit the success of the stratagem.

3—A perfectly correct bid. North holds 2 honor-tricks, and the opposing Double should not prevent him from making his correct response to his partner's Opening bid.

4—Obviously West is prepared for a spade response. East holds a five-card suit and an Ace; he must therefore bid.

5—Again correct.

The Opening lead was the King of hearts, which was won with the Ace in Dummy. The King of spades was then led and North won. For lack of anything better, North returned a heart, which South won with the Queen. South now faced the difficult problem of defense.

After studying the situation carefully, it seemed to him that the best chance to defeat the contract rested in the lead of the Queen of clubs through the King in Dummy. This play, however, gave the Declarer his chance to fulfill the contract, as East won 2 club tricks with the Ace and King, ruffed the third club in his own hand, drew the adverse trumps and cashed the high heart. The finesse in diamonds was then taken, but North was helpless. The return of a club would permit the discard of a diamond in the East hand, and the return of a diamond was up to the major tenace.

Incidentally, this hand is an illustration of the fact that it is not always important to have the strong hand as the closed hand, as some so-called authorities contend. As a matter of fact, had West been playing the hand instead of East, as would have been the case except for South's psychic Opening bid, the correct defense would have been clearly marked. South would not have considered leading a club, but would have chosen instead the return of a diamond, which would have saved his partner from the impending end-play.

Today's Question

South, the Dealer, bids two diamonds and West passes. What should North bid, holding the following hand?

♠632 ♡743 ◇52 ♣A9643

Answer—Two notrump. The minimum requirement for a positive response to a Forcing two-bid has been raised to 1 plus honor-trick. Therefore, this hand does not warrant a response of three clubs as formerly.

COLDS GO THROUGH 3 STAGES!

And They are Far Easier Stopped in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily passes through three stages—the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. Relief is twice as easy in the first stage.

For prompt relief take a couple of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine immediately upon catching cold. This will usually expel the cold overnight and thus prevent the spread of the infection within your system.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is effective because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels. Kills the cold germs and fever in the system. Relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful. May be safely taken by young and old and whether you stay indoors or go out. There is absolutely no penalty attached to its use. For more than 40 years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Get yourself a package today and be ready for any cold that may come along. Say "NO" to a substitute!

NOTE: During Epidemics a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine every morning and night will do much to keep your system immune.

ARMY AND NAVY UNION BOOSTS U. S. INDUSTRY

Members of the Army and Navy Union, U. S. A., have pledged themselves to "Buy American." At a meeting of Fort Pitt Garrison, No. 91, James T. Capes, commander, a resolution was passed unanimously.

J. B. Sanders, adjutant, declared:

"The question arose to follow the lead of other organizations by indorsing the movement to 'Buy American,' but as so many manufacturing interests have moved to Canada and are using the 'Made in America' slogan, it was unanimously voted to patronize only those concerns who are facing the business depression and remaining loyal citizens of the United States. The adjutant was instructed to buy a stamp and have all correspondence stamped 'Buy U. S. A.'"

Charleroi's American Legion post, No. 22, has joined the "Buy American" movement, while in San Francisco, Edwin C. Washburn, assistant to the president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, said:

"People are growing more receptive to the plea that they spend their money for goods produced in the United States, for they realize that it directly affects them. It is a serious family affair when a member finds himself out of employment because the firm employing him cannot compete with imported products and must shut down. It hits home."

Patricia Pitt

Have you noticed the marked interest, even more marked than usual, of Pittsburgh women in music this winter? And today I have news of still another new thing in the world of music.

A group of women, long faithful patrons of everything musical in Pittsburgh, has formed a committee to sponsor three Sunday afternoon appearances of the Max Shapiro string quartet.

The first concert of chamber music will be given by the quartet in the home of Mrs. Raymond Kaufmann, Sunday afternoon, February 26, at 3 o'clock; the second in the home of Mrs. William R. Jarvis, and the third probably in the Hotel Schenley ballroom.

Arrange Concerts

Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, who for years has been associated with things musical in Pittsburgh, is a member of the Chamber music committee, and so are Mrs. Raymond Kaufmann, Mrs. William R. Jarvis, Mrs. Josiah Cohen, Mrs. Benjamin Graham, Mrs. Nathaniel Spear, Mrs. Joel Spear, Mrs. Chester Lehman, Miss Helen Rauh, Mrs. William J. Powell, Mrs. Karl Kaufmann, Mrs. Morris Kaufmann, Mrs. D. F. H. McDowell, Mrs. David I. McCahill, Mrs. Edward O. Tabor, Mrs. S. J. Anathan, Mrs. William L. Kann and Mrs. Ralph E. Euler.

Still others on this lengthy committee are Miss Emily McCreery, Mrs. Samuel H. Goldenson, Mrs. Edwin Zugsmith, Mrs. S. Benedetto, Mrs. Oscar Oppenheimer, Mrs. William Klee, Mrs. George D. Macbeth, Mrs. Emmanuel Grafner and Mme. Berthe Levy.

The Max Shapiro quartet is made up of Max Shapiro, first violin; Samuel Kliachko, 'cello; William Loessel, second violin, and William Kleyle, viola.

Visiting In West

Added to those seeking California skies for the remainder of winter are Mrs. Paul Hardy and her daughter, Carol, who are guests of Mrs. Hardy's mother, Mrs. Uriah W. Tinker, at her home in La Jolla.

The William U. Follansbees are at Miami.

Quota Schedules Its Card Party For Monday

Monday evening has been set aside by the Quota Club for its annual card party which will be given at the Mayfair Hotel and at which about 100 guests will be entertained. Miss Frances McKillop, newly elected president, has appointed Mrs. Edna I. St. Clair, Miss Margaret Greeley, Miss Anne Adams, Miss Jennie Beam, Miss Emma Brunner, Miss Edith Coyle, Mrs. Elizabeth Eshelman, Miss Ella Fleming, Miss Marie Hartwig, Miss Julia McKillop, Mrs. Laura Karn, Mrs. Margaret Hibbs, Mrs. Frances Muhlman, Miss Grace Newton, Miss Mary Russell Purman, Miss Clara Rothleder, Dr. Lillian Shook, Miss Jeanette Smiley, Miss Anna Smith, Miss Dorothy Steen, Mrs. Sarah Tomlinson, Miss Agnes Wilkison and Miss Ruby Wright as card table hostesses.

Helen E. Armstrong Becomes Bride of David N. Lewis

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Helen Elizabeth Armstrong, daughter of William M. Armstrong, of Los Angeles, and of Mrs. Helen Elkin Theiss, of Washington, to David Norman Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Enzer Lewis, of Indiana, Pa., which was solemnized at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night in the Christ Episcopal Church, Indiana. Officiating was the Rev. Roger Charnock.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother, and escorted up the aisle by her cousin, John P. Elkin Stewart.

The bride attended the Hollywood School for Girls, the Master's School; St. James, Parish, and the French School in New York. The bridegroom attended Mercersburg Academy and Dartmouth. They will be at home in Indiana after their honeymoon.

College Club Thursday Tea Made Weekly Event

The informal tea planned by the membership committee of the College Club for last Thursday was successful beyond expectations. Titled Europeans Visiting Florida Playground

MIAMI, Fla.—Social activities here assumed international color and brilliance this week as members of the resort colony entertained in honor of a group of titled visitors at the Miami Biltmore Hotel, representatives of some of Europe's most important royal houses.

More than 800 members of the smart winter colony celebrated arrival of the resort's gay mid-season period last week with one of the most brilliant entertainments ever staged here, the "Pageant of America in Dance and Scenic Song," at the Miami Biltmore Hotel.

Forgetting approaching cares of state and relaxing after the arduous duties of a national campaign, Democratic party leaders occupied themselves with fishing, golfing and other resort recreations while on vacation at the Miami Biltmore Hotel this week. In the meantime they kept in touch by radio with their chieftain, Present-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt who was cruising in the blue waters of the Florida keys aboard the Vincent Astor yacht.

A. W. Robertson, industrialist and financier of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Robertson stopped for several days at the Miami Biltmore Hotel en route north from Cuba where they had been on vacation.

Hazelwood Club Women To Hear Dr. M. E. Coffin

R. Nicklas, Jr., Mrs. James M. Nevin, Mrs. Charles H. Spencer, Mrs. Victor Saudek, Mrs. A. C. Manning, Mrs. William Reid Thompson, Mrs. J. H. Lutz, Miss Jane Brice, Mrs. Kathryn Faragher, Miss Harriet Carter, Miss Sara F. Ellis, Miss Helen Faragher, Miss Harriet F. Glendon, Miss Marie J. Henninger, Miss Jane Mercer Kerr, Miss Emma E. Kinne, Miss Martha J. Kroenert, Miss Lois L. Logan, Miss Margaretta M. Martin, Miss Ella McKenna, Miss Nell McKenry, Miss Norma Nevin, Miss Henrietta Zacharias, Miss Susan L. Crozier, Miss Mabel Dickey, Miss Jennie Munro, Miss Helen Davies, Dr. Alice S. Gularski and Dr. Alice S. Renfrew.

Tickets for the benefit, proceeds of which will be used for fellowship and scholarship projects, can be obtained from Miss Nell McKenry, University of Pittsburgh.

QUESTION OF BELTLESS DRESS DECIDED BY PERSON'S SIZE

THERE IS much to be said on both sides of the present fashion argument for and against dresses without belts. In spite of the fact that the majority of the biggest fashion designers are against any sudden leaning of preference for any one kind of silhouette, most of the fashion collections now being shown include a large fraction of the total made on modified lines of what used to be called the princess silhouette.

* * *

ACCORDING TO one important dressmaker, the beltless dress is smartest on tall women, even though they are of ample proportions, or on smaller, slender women. Women who run to curves should never, he declares, go beltless. But no matter what size or build a woman is, if she does wear a beltless dress, it should be fully an inch or two longer than if it were worn with a belt. Nothing so ruins a moulded silhouette, he declares, as a too-short line from waist to hem.

* * *

THE DRESS at the right in today's sketches is an excellent illustration of several of these principles. A dress of this type—with its widened yoke lines, its puffed-out sleeves and its moulded silhouette, require height in the woman who is to wear it successfully. Height is also needed to carry the color contrast—dark brown, with yoke and sleeves in lighter beige-brown, with an orange cast.

* * *

Definite Club Music Plan Advised

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Under the title of "What Our Clubs Can Do For American Music," the Music Clubs magazine, official organ of the Federation of Music Clubs, which, is in the mail today, contains an article that is very much to the point. It is written by Annabel Morris Buchanan, chairman of the department of American music, who begs her readers not to plan in a vague, sentimental way to "foster American music in every possible way," but to do something definite in one or two of the many possible ways for serious composers and real artists and then branch out in as many directions as practicable.

Although American composers are receiving wider recognition than ever before, some of the best compositions of America's best composers remain practically unknown, the writer points out.

MacDowell wrote many compositions beside "To a Wild Rose" and there are many worthwhile American composers of today besides the writers of light songs which are most often heard, Mrs. Buchanan goes on. And what incentive is there for a publisher to assume expense of bringing out larger works if they are not to be used, she asks.

The various chairmen of the American music department have complete lists of material or suggested programs and outlines of study from some of the best available American composition and these will be of distinct aid to clubs.

Sir Thomas Lipton's passing made it melt . . . Bert Wheeler and Sugar Giese are telling each other sugary lies . . . The Sally Blane-Bruce Cabot romance is too torrid . . . "Patsy" Kelly says It Isn't So! . . . The Embassy has taken the Casino's heavy top-hat trade, already . . . The pals who felt so sorry for Lila Lee put John Farrow on the deportation spot . . . Lesson in Colyuming: Never worry about people who say they don't read you. They keep worried to see what next you're going to say to them . . . Lina Basquette's eyes started a long fist fight in an uptown delly . . . "The Big Six" rum syndicate which controlled prices in speaks has been broken up . . . Gin now two-bits a convulsion, as a result, and rickeys 35c . . . They insist that Jim Londos is more interested in Fifi-Dolores Colimore of Baltimore than winning a wrassling match . . . Nanci Lyon of the "Paradise" has been sexceded by another in that cameraman's affections . . . Mrs. J. J. Walker now calls choruspondents: "husbandits."

Clara's Uncertainty Blocks Film Plan

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—Clara Bow being so hard to ngure, Fox has decided to forget about "Marie Galant" for the present. At the urgent request of Jesse Lasky, they are transferring Spencer Tracy and Director William K. Howard to "The Power and the Glory," a dramatic story about the rise and fall of a railroad tycoon.

The new Lasky film, which will go into production in about three weeks, is from the typewriter of Preston Sturgess, who took a fortune out of his comedy, "Strictly Dishonorable."

Tracy will play an uneducated track-walker who rises to become a power in the railroad world. The central drama in the story is the tangled relationship between the hero, his first wife, whom he deserts, his son and his young second wife. Unlike Sturgess' famous Broadway hit, "The Power and the Glory" will be bold realism.

Mr. Tracy

The two women of the picture are not selected, but Lasky is looking for someone like Irene Dunne for the first wife and like Myrna Loy for the second.

* * *

Henry Ford asked M-G-M to send him a picture of Greta Garbo. It's to be hung in the hall of fame Ford is fixing up at his Dearborn home.

Miss Bayne

He also asked for photos of Beverly Bayne and Betty Blythe . . . Less distinguished but more determined fans were the three Empire State Building waiters who walked up 25 floors to get Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., to autograph a menu when he visited the tower of the famous skyscraper. A building rule, they say, forbade the zealots using the elevators.

* * *

Looking for temperament, the RKO publicity boys were pleasantly surprised with Ely Culbertson, the bridge expert. Mr Culbertson is installed at the town house and is expecting his wife in a short while. Interesting to note that Bill Hanneman, one of the writers working on the Culbertson shorts, doesn't even play bridge.

* * *

Did you hear about the fan letter Phil Harris received from New Zealand? The admirer writes:

"When we sit down to 6 p. m. dinner Sunday, we get your Cocoanut Grove program of 10 o'clock Saturday night."

Funny, but that's the difference in time between here and there . . .

* * *

It looks very much now as if Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. may not see each other in New York. Because of scenes added to her picture, she can't leave here until next Monday. Doug Jr. must report to Warners February 15. Their trains may pass each other . . . Madge Evans, all dressed in green, had lunch next to me at M-G-M yesterday. I asked her again about her reported engagement to Tom Gallery. She said:

Miss Evans

"When I'm ready to go back to the stage, I may get married. While I'm in pictures, never!"

Like you, I wondered, how come, and she replied:

DICK POWELL AND PATRICIA ELLIS SPY OUT A SPOT FOR A LOVE SCENE IN "THE KING'S VACATION"

Holt Renews Contract

Jack Holt, Columbia star, has signed a new long-term contract, which assures his association with the company for another extended period. Holt's first vehicle under the new contract will be "Tampico" a picturization of Joseph Hergesheimer's novel of the same title, which will shortly go into production.

Mr. Holt began his screen career as a "stunt" man and then became a star of western films. When the popularity of "cowboy" pictures began to wane, Holt on the verge of retirement was signed by Columbia. Since then he has appeared in "Flight," "Submarine," "Father and Son," "Hell's Island," "The Last Parade," "Dirigible," "Subway Express," "Fifty Fathoms Deep," "A Dangerous Affair," "War Correspondent," "This Sporting Age" and "Man Against Woman."

Patricia Farley Signed For 'Pick Up'

Patricia Farley, the extra who recently lost 15 pounds within a month to win a Paramount contract, has been assigned an important role in the B. P. Schulberg production "Pick Up," which co-stars Sylvia Sidney and George Raft under Marion Gering's direction. Miss Farley is now working in the Zane Grey western entitled "Under the Tonto Rim."

Janet Gaynor's Next To Be 'Adorable'

Janet Gaynor's next film for Fox will be "Adorable," previously announced as "Princess at Your Order," which William Dieterle is scheduled to direct. For this film Fox is bringing Henry Garat, young Continental star who recently appeared with Lillian Harvey in "Congress Dances," from Europe to appear opposite Miss Gaynor. Herbert Mundin and C. Aubrey Smith are other members of the cast.

Jailed

Barbara Stanwyck has to go to jail in "Ladies They Talk About," film coming Friday to the Warner.

Stanley Bill Remains

Kate Smith, popular radio star, making her screen debut in a feature photoplay, "Hello, Everybody," now showing in the Stanley, will continue in that theater through Thursday. "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," which had been announced to open in the Stanley today, will not be seen there until Friday. It features Lionel Atwill, Fay Wray, Glenda Farrell and Frank McHugh.

South Hills Players To Cast Comedy

A meeting of those interested in a South Hills Community Theater will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the Mt. Lebanon Municipal Building. Plans for a permanent organization will be presented and parts will be cast for a coming comedy, "Alias the Deacon." The South Hills Community Players recently presented their first play in the Washington School, Mt. Lebanon.

Radio City to Be Movie Background

Radio City, New York's spectacular entertainment center and the object of thousands of visiting sightseers, is the inspiration and locale of a picture to be produced at the RKO Radio studios. David O. Selznick, in charge of scenarists, will prepare a story outlined by H. N. Swanson, former editor of College Humor. The story is to be centered in the mammoth Music Hall, the world's largest and most modern theater, which was constructed by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in association with RKO.

Walter Abel Signs Movie Contract

Walter Abel, Broadway actor, has signed a contract to appear in two Paramount pictures. Because Abel now is playing the leading male role in "When Ladies Meet" he cannot report at Paramount until May 1. His new contract calls for the completion of his two pictures in time for him to return to Broadway by September 30. Last season Abel appeared in "Mourning Becomes Electra."

'Dead Reckoning' Cast Changed

Due to a sudden shift in Paramount production schedules, Carole Lombard, Cary Grant, Henry Stephenson and Donald Stuart have been withdrawn from the cast of "Dead Reckoning." They will be assigned to other pictures. Shirley Grey replaces Miss Lombard and Morgan Wallace takes the place of Stephenson. The rest of the cast, including John Halliday, Charlie Ruggles and Jack La Rue, retain their original roles. Paul Sloane will direct.

Broadways of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

BRISTOL HOTEL, VIENNA, Austria—The Femina and the Moulin Rouge are the rival night clubs in this interesting city of once-upon-a-time. Both of them are operated on the same principle, and each of them hates the other with an intensity that is most amazing. It gives me genuine pleasure to report, however, that they offer something new in a study of the Broadways of the world. And that, I hasten to tell you, is a definite achievement.

Let's consider the Femina first. It doesn't make very much difference because, when you've visited one, you've seen the other. The cost is the same, the shows are almost identical, the attempts to gyp you fail to vary—and even the women look alike.

So, the Femina: A block from the main thoroughfare and through a small entrance. The place looked deserted and it wasn't until later that I understood why. The show in the Femina starts at 10:30 at night and the folks are generally at their tables by 10. And here, in my ignorance, I was arriving at 11:30.

But the manager, a nervous gentleman with a face like a ferret, was kindliness personified. The moment he saw a couple of Americans walking down the stairs, he leaped to attention. He took our coats and as soon as they were checked—paid for in advance again—he became most apologetic.

The gentlemen, alas, were very late. There was a tremendous crowd that night and, alas, every available inch of space was occupied. If the gentlemen had only come a little earlier, alas, there might have been a chance for him to do something. But now, alas—

All this, mind you, after he had already checked our coats, I sighed—and with the last "alas," I placed several Austrian shillings in his eager palm. He bowed low.

"Follow me," was all he said . . .

Up a narrow staircase and into a theater; the strangest theater in which I ever sat. Built in an exact semi-circle, the place was able to hold, I should say, about 400 people. There was a double row of balcony boxes extending clear around the room. All of the customers sat at tables; said tables accommodating two, three or four people.

The stage, a very small and narrow affair that shook violently whenever too many actors stepped upon it, formed the rest of the room. A single electrician, cigaret dangling from his lips, handled the spotlights by hand and cursed vigorously whenever anything went wrong.

The show seems to go on forever. As a matter of fact, it lasts from 10:30 until 1:15 a. m., with nothing more than a short intermission to give the customers a chance to breathe.

No matter what time you arrive, you can find a girl singing a song. Nobody sings well, but none of the customers evidently expect them to. Similar to Prague, as long as they look passably well, everything is jake with the paying folks.

After a song—and if the girl's voice is particularly bad, they finish with a chorus number in which the girls do exactly as they please—they play a sketch. Although my German is very sickly, it needed no interpreter to inform me what they were all about.

In one skit, a young man found himself in a girl's room by mistake. In another skit, a young lady found herself in a man's room by mistake. In a third skit, two young men found themselves in the rooms of two young ladies by mistake. I'm glad the stage was too small or the thing would have gone on forever.

After the sketches came another female singer. The thing went on and on and on. I must admit that, although the affair seemed a bit draggy to me, the other customers seemed to be having a glorious time. They laughed at every line, applauded every number and actually cheered the stars of the show.

In both the Moulin Rouge and the Femina, the finales of the first part of the shows were absolutely identical. They were the old-fashioned parades of the girls who were dressed to represent various nations. Each little lady had a line to deliver and a small flag to wave. The comedians repeated their best jokes of the evening and two of them did a burlesque Russian dance as the customers howled their appreciation. It was all very dull.

Intermission finds the swells marching to the bar for additional refreshments. You can get anything you wish to eat or drink at your table, but the bar is the spot for which they all head. The reason for that is the fact that every performer in the show must sit in the bar during the intermission—and that gives the customers the opportunity of seeing actors at close range and, incidentally, buying all the drinks they can stand.

After the show is over, the main theater is closed and the bar again becomes the center of attraction. The orchestra comes out of the pit and sits in a corner of the bar. The male members of the show tell their best jokes of the evening and are permitted to leave, but the chorus girls have only begun to work. They must remain in the barroom as long as there is one customer left to buy another drink. They often remain until six in the morning, and they are never permitted to go before four.

There's a life for you. The average show in the Femina and the Moulin Rouge runs about two months, when a new revue is offered. A chorus girl has to fight to get into the show, and she rehearses a couple of weeks without pay before the new show opens.

After the opening comes another rehearsal period during which the show is polished up. When everything is running smoothly, a girl is permitted to arrive at the cafe around 9 o'clock at night. She works in possibly 15 or 20 numbers a night, and is later compelled by the management to sit in the bar with any male customer who might take a fancy to her. If she doesn't, she's out of a job in five minutes.

And for all that work, my friends, the average girl draws down $28 a month. If she leads a number or shows extensive ability to make the males buy wine, she is liable to run as high as $40 a month. But that—a salary of $10 a week—is quite exceptional. Few of them earn it.

Just one rather amusing episode. As I stood at the bar, one of the waiters evidently took a notion that I wasn't spending enough money. Just as though it were the most natural thing in the world, he stepped up to me, pointed to a girl at the end of the bar and said that she was hungry.

I nodded, dug into my pocket again and handed him several shillings.

"Do me a favor, buddy," I asserted. "Just permit me to be alone, will you? I'm only looking around, you understand? I don't want any company. I don't want any suggestions. And I don't want any help from you or anybody else.

"Is that all clear to you?"

He grinned happily and saluted.

"Quite, sir," he replied as he pocketed the money. "And it is my pleasure to tell you that, because of your tip to me, the girl is no longer hungry!"

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

From Simla, India, to Hollywood, by way of Alexandria, Egypt, and London, England, is the route traveled by Ursula Jeans, who plays one of the featured roles in "Calvacade," the Noel Coward movie now showing in the Nixon. Meaning that Ursula's papa was a British official in Simla when she arrived on the wings of the stork. A convent in Alexandria imparted part of her education, as did a similar institution in London. Then she was ready to attend the Academy of Dramatic Arts in the British capital. Her first stage appearance was in Nottingham, England, in "Cobra," in 1925. In the London production of "Grand Hotel" she played the stenographer throughout its run. To her credit, too, is a part opposite Mr. Coward in N. S. Behrman's "The Second Man." She has worked on both stage and screen in England, and was in the cast of the very first talkie ever made over there. "Calvacade" is her first American picture.

* * *

A word or two from Anne Ford, who generally gets to Pittsburgh in advance of Theater Guild productions, is to the effect that Rose Franken's comedy-drama, "Another Language," which she had expected to bally here shortly, will not be along as early as expected. Putting up "the-last-two-weeks" sign in New York resulted in so many mail orders for seats that the run of the play, now 10 months long, has been extended indefinitely. This postpones the road tour for a time, but it is announced that it eventually will reach the Nixon this season with the original New York cast intact, including Glenn Anders, Dorothy Stickney, Margaret Wycherly and John Beal in principal roles.

* * *

Katherine Cornell has chosen Baltimore as the scene of the premiere of her second production this season, "Alien Corn," by Sidney Howard. Its first public performance on any stage will take place in the Maryland city next Monday night. Miss Cornell will have three leading men in James Rennie, well-known American actor; Siegfried Rumann, German actor who played Preyss in "Grand Hotel," and Luther Adler, member of the prominent acting family that has appeared here frequently in Yiddish plays.

* * *

Alexandra Carlisle, who emerged from a nine-years' retirement to appear in "Criminal At Large," and was compelled to leave the cast because of a serious illness, will shortly go to Florida from her Chicago home, prior to returning to the stage in the late spring or early next fall. . . A tabloid version of "Hot Cha," with Bert Lahr in his original role, is being discussed. . . "A Trip to Pressburg," which was a dramatic possibility early in the season, and listed tentatively as one of the American Theater Society's subscription plays, now appears destined to have its premiere somewhere March 6, with Roger Pryor in one of the roles. . . Bing Crosby, who, because of radio contracts cannot immediately go to work in the film, "College Humor," meanwhile will make three short films in New York.

Additions to Cast Of 'Sweepings'

In the cast of Lionel Barrymore's starring vehicle, "Sweepings," now in production at the RKO radio studios, will be added Helen Mack, youthful character player, who will play a shop girl, and Violet Muir, well-known for her character roles. Others in the cast include Gregory Ratoff, Alan Dinehart, Gloria Stuart, Ninetta Sunderland, William Gargan, Eric Linden, George Meeker and Lucien Littlefield.

ABORT that Cold

(with lemon juice)

Sometimes you get colds that just hang on for days. That is because the remedy used does not drive the cold symptoms from the system. Try cold abortion and you'll find those stubborn colds broken up and gone within a few hours. To abort a cold, squeeze two full-sized lemons in a glass of very hot water, to be taken preferably at bedtime. Two hours before, start taking a tablet of Pape's cold compound each hour. After the third tablet take the lemon juice and hot water without sugar, and go to bed, well-covered. Sound sleep will follow, and the cold will be aborted by morning. The lemon juice treatment never fails, but you must have the cold compound to clear the head, dry the nasal passages, and allay any fever. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound; it is perfectly safe, and a tablet will check a cold at any time.

Another Heir of Mysterious Will

FOUND DEAD

NEARLY ten years had passed since the death of the man who left the strange will. But, in accordance with the will's odd terms, the heirs had not yet received their bequests. Then—just one year before the estate was to be settled—one heir passed away. It looked like suicide; but it was murder! Then another heir was found dead. This time there was no doubt. It was murder, but you'll never guess who did it—and why!

CARNEGIE BEGAN BUSINESS LIFE AS A BOBBIN BOY

POLITICS

Rivals Bid for Favor Of Democrats.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—The Democratic minority in the Legislature is something like a bit hing debutante at a dance, with Gov. Pinchot and the Republican organization rival swains each eager to swing her in a dance. So far Mr. Pinchot seems to be the favorite political gigolo. He has received the most smiles from the Democrats, and has capitalized them into an effective fight against such measures as the Prince-Chapman bill for repeal of the direct primary act.

Mr. Shields

This, of course, was brought about through the influence of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose chaperonage of his party is nation-wide in advance of taking office, due to the powers of patronage yet to be dispensed.

But there is other evidence of the rapprochement between the Governor and the Democrats. One came Monday night when a bill by Senator George Reed, of Dauphin, to revise the executive board of the state government, and deplete the Governor's powers, was passed. Of seven Democratic Senators, five voted against shearing authority from the Governor.

* * *

Organization Members Undismayed

Those voting with the Republican organization were Senators Sones, of Lycoming, and Miller, of Northumberland. Sones usually has been found with the Republicans, and Miller is actually a Republican who secured a Democratic nomination after being defeated in the Republican primary by former Senator Benjamin Apple.

But the organization members are not dismayed. They are continuing their insidious approach to the Democratic heart and hope eventually to win favor away from the Governor. Representative Wilson G. Sarig, of Berks County, the Democratic floor leader in the House, is finding that the opinions of a Democrat are considered in this session.

Heretofore a Democratic committee member has been merely some one who took up chair room at a meeting, and whose opinions and vote both, were shunted aside.

Now the views of Mr. Sarig are sought by the organization majority which controls the House committees. Until now these blandishments have not prevailed in winning the favor of the Democrats, but the organization Republicans are persistent, recalling the pleasant family relations they have enjoyed with the Democrats in the past.

One of Best Speeches of Session Undelivered

One of the best speeches of the present Legislative session was handed to newspapermen Monday night by Senator George Woodward, of Philadelphia, but it wasn't delivered. The independent Philadelphian, who wears his golf knickers in Senate sessions, had framed some thoughts in support of his bill to prevent any one being the candidate for nomination to public office in more than one primary.

Somewhere along the line organization leaders stopped the speech, explaining to Mr. Woodward the votes were present to pass his bill without debate, and his remarks might be injurious. The Senator had some pleasantries respecting Gov. Pinchot and Senator David A. Reed as rival senatorial candidates in 1934, and explained very frankly he preferred Senator Reed. He seemed fearful Mr Pinchot might get a Democratic nomination even though Senator Reed should defeat him in the Republican fight.

Woodward also poked some fun at Senator Frank J. Harris, of Allegheny, possessor of five nominations in the last election, who voted against the bill, though apparently not believing in the consistency that a voter should have the same right of expanded action and a vote in five primaries.

* * *

Pungent Parts of Woodward Speech

"In the progressive state of Kansas, they do these things better. Katherin O'Loughlin defeated her leading opponent, Daniel McCarthy, in the congressional primary. Mr. McCarthy then got even with Miss O'Loughlin by marrying her. The salary is now lodged firmly in the McCarthy family.

"Mrs. McCarthy told the reporters that Dan is now for her for better or for worse. In the Pennsylvania senatorial primary this happy solution of Reed vs. Pinchot will not work out. We might set up the attractive head of the League of Women Voters, spinister, against Joseph R. Grundy, bachelor, and let nature take its course, but such a merger is not always practical.

"I am classed as an anti-Pinchot man. If and when Senator Davis is convicted of a criminal offense, I do not expect the Governor to appoint me in his place. The Senator from Bucks, Mr. Buckman's chances are brighter than mine. Perhaps the brightest are the chances of the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Harris. It will be too bad if Senator Chapman's charge of lobbying against the Chapman - Prince - Vashti Burr bill handicaps Mr. Harris' eligibility for the high office of United States Senator.

"I much prefer the renomination of Senator David A. Reed next year to the nomination of Gov. Pinchot. If this bill brings that about, I shall rejoice."

Braddock Crowds Greeting Carnegie on His Last Pittsburgh Visit

Worked at Job He Disliked to Help Family Get Along

Andrew Carnegie's early life in Pittsburgh as a bobbin boy in a cotton mill, and later as a messenger boy for a telegraph company, is described in today's installment. Mr. Hendrick tells of the boys of the Rebecca Street neighborhood in Allegheny—Carnegie and his playmates — known as the "bottom hooshiers." Among them were Robert Pitcairn, David McCargo and Henry W. Oliver. We learn that these three, who were later to become so rich and important, began their careers as messenger boys with Carnegie, and that they got their jobs through his friendship.

In Andrew's boyhood Allegheny was celebrated for its mud, its floods, its periodical fires and its frequent visitations of cholera. Rebecca street, where the Carnegie's spent their first years, was perhaps even more ramshackle and more muddy than the rest of the town. It was part of a district that straggled along the water front, and every rising of the river — and overflows were constantly taking place—inundated the neighborhood.

Margaret's twin sisters, Mrs. Thomas Hogan and Mrs. Andrew Aitken, had preceded the Carnegies by 11 years. Between the three the warmest affection had always prevailed, and the welcome the wayfarers received was a cordial one. The fact that both Hogans and Aunt Aitken were themselves poor by no means caused them to regard their relatives as a burden. The Carnegie family had been expected for several weeks and preparation, in a humble way, had been made for them. The Scottish pioneers were persons of the homespun kind. Thomas Hogan worked as clerk in a crockery shop. Andrew Aitken, a lecturer on phrenology—a "science" that held high popular favor in the forties—had died a few years before the Carnegie migration, and his widow, the lovable "Aunt Aitken" of the early Pittsburgh days, earned her living for a time as nurse and afterward as the proprietor of a little grocery store. The Scottish thrift of the Hogans had already provided them a simple but decent home. They were the contented possessors of a small, two-storied frame house on Rebecca street; in the rear, abutting on an alley, stood a smaller structure which served as loom shop and living quarters for Andrew Hogan, a brother. The Dunfermline pilgrims were now installed in Andrew's rickety preserve.

A Bobbin Boy

William Carnegie succeeded to Andrew Hogan's loom and was soon industriously weaving table cloths of checker board pattern. Margaret Carnegie resumed her evening occupation of binding shoes, obtaining work from a nearby shoemaker who bore the now familiar name of Henry Phipps. Little Tom was put to school and Andrew, after two or three months of prospecting, secured a job as bobbin boy in a cotton mill at $1.20 a week.

* * *

Probably his mother's fondest wish would have been to have Andrew resume his education, but the family was exceedingly poor, and it was necessary to press into service any hand that could turn an honest penny. That the father was unfitted to struggle with American conditions became soon apparent. The rise of the factory system had driven him from his Scottish home, yet, as soon as William reached Allegheny, he again began laboriously working at the handloom—a craft as outworn in Pennsylvania as in Dunfermline.

Failing to increase the family income this way, he finally took a job in the Blackstock Cotton Mill. It was in this establishment that Andrew began his business life at the bobbin wheel. Every morning, even in the darkest days of winter, father and son would rise at 6 o'clock walk to the factory and work steadily until 6 in the evening. There were no eight-hour labor laws at the time, and any-

TROLLEY THEFT SUSPECTS HELD

Alleged to have confessed holding up street cars and business establishments, three Negroes were held for court today after hearings in East End and North Side police courts. They will be arraigned in police courts of other districts, and then will be turned over to the detective bureau for further investigation.

James King, 1206 Goman street, and Arthur Johnson, 313 Larimer avenue, were held for court by Magistrate Charles Papale in connection with the holdup of Robert Jones, motorman of a car in Lincoln avenue near Renfrew street, February 1. King was held on charges of robbery and pointing firearms and Johnson on robbery charges.

King, Johnson and James Steward, 47 Fullerton street, were held for court in North Side Police Court last Saturday after they were arrested as suspects in the holdup of Motorman Charles Woods at the end of the Troy Hill car line Saturday morning.

Stones on Theater Ledge Crash Down

Three stones, part of a ledge of the Lyceum Building, toppled from their positions late last night, falling into Lyceum way. The accident occurred after theater patrons had gone to their homes. A still alarm was sounded and Battalion Chief Daniel Jones and Police Lieut. Albert Florig ordered pedestrians from the vicinity of the building. Building inspectors were notified of the falling of the stones, each of which weighed over 200 pounds.

The Variety Theater, in the building, was not affected by the falling stones, the management announced it having been recently inspected and found safe.

Judge's Daughter Tries First Case

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 8.—(INS.)—To Miss Edith B. Galbreath, daughter of the late Judge James M. Galbreath, today went the distinction of being the first woman lawyer ever to address a Common Pleas Court jury in Butler County.

Miss Galbreath represented the plaintiff in a damage case resulting from an auto accident. Only one other woman has been admitted to the bar in Butler County, Miss Minnie Spero.

Our Fishermen Executives Are Often at Sea

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Got to hand Mr. Roosevelt credit for one thing. He's going to get his fishing over before he becomes President.

All our Presidents have been keen on whaling for minnows. The records show that Grover Cleveland has the best record.

He didn't catch anything. But he got his bait back.

It may be that our executives think better in boats. A hurried call for a sailor hat might indicate that a great national problem is about to be figured out.

History states that a detour of herring to the North Sea started England as a world power. The American shad has done almost as much for us. So many bones that no diplomat can talk while he's eating it.

FIGHT SCHOOL TAX CURB

The Board of Public Education has authorized the school solicitor to retain additional counsel in fighting the bill of equity filed by three taxpayers seeking an injunction to prevent the school district from collecting more than eight mills in taxes this year.

The present school tax rate is 11¾ mills, and the litigation, if successful, would curb the board's income to the extent of more than $3,000,000.

School Solicitor J. C. McIlwain has announced he will enter an appearance for the school district within the next few days, after which there will be 30 days to file an answer.

The suit against the board was brought by Attorney Frank S. Delp, Frank E. Shaughnessy and Thomas F. Breen, all connected with the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League.

Night Club Man Shot in Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—William O'Brien, in great pain from two gunshot wounds in his back, staggered into a hospital today for treatment. Once he was a roadhouse owner in an outlying suburb. Of late, the police said, he had dabbled in beer traffic in the territory claimed by the Touhy gang.

He would not discuss the shooting.

Anderson, Former Tech Grid Star, Wed

Purl Anderson, football star at Carnegie Tech a half-dozen years ago, has been married since January 28, it was learned today.

The bride is a school teacher, Miss Alice E. Sullivan, of Greenwich, Conn., where they were married. Anderson, too, is now teaching school in Conneticut. Pittsburgh friends said. He came to Carnegie Tech from Youngstown, O.

Mrs. Kohn said her husband's jealousy was without reason.

She told the court her husband smashed the furniture, clackened one of her eyes and threw hot coffee in her face. They were married March 16, 1916. She charges cruel and barbarous treatment.

Sue Carol Cleared In Child's Vanishing

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Sue Carol, screen actress, has been officially exonerated in the disappearance of the infant child of Mrs. Douglas Ris, of Brooklyn, it was announced by District Attorney Geoghan.

The child was taken in for adoption last December by a woman who represented herself as secretary to Miss Carol.

JAP PROTEST HANDED U. S.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Charging violation of the Sino-Japanese Shanghai armistice, the Japanese legislation today lodged a sharp protest with United States Consul Edwin S. Cunningham against passage of 500 Chinese troops through the city en route to Hangchow.

GENEVA, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Yosuke Matsuoka, Japanese delegate to the League of Nations, made a last, frantic effort today to prevent virtually certain Japanese resignation from the league.

With the subcommittee of nine proceeding with its report on the Sino-Japanese Manchurian conflict under paragraph 4, article 15, of the covenant, Matsuoka conferred with representatives of the major powers then pleads with Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general, to throw in his influence to prevent formulation and adoption by the league of the "dangerous" report.

Crime Expert Favors Judge for Juveniles

Dr. W. J. Hickson, for 16 years psychiatrist of the Chicago courts, here on a visit, believes the prevention of crime must begin in the juvenile courts, under a competent, understanding judge. He said:

"The ideal juvenile court judge must be trained in medicine, for primarily the cases brought before him are caused by diseased minds; in law and psychology, in order to understand the cases fully and to prescribe for them.

"It is in the juvenile courts criminals first develop, and if they are not suitably treated there, they become a menace to society. The cases of many children under 12 or 14 years brought to the juvenile courts show they are mentally diseased. The only practical thing to do is to send them to farms or other places where they will be kindly treated and taught to support themselves, rather than to reform schools and after a few years release them to prey on the community again."

The idea of close attention to and study of juvenile delinquents is a new one, Dr. Hickson says. He thinks if this plan becomes prevalent, a great amount of crime will be averted.

Fine Woman, 2 Men In Plot on Payroll

Arrested as suspects in an alleged attempt to hold up C. M. Foley, paymaster for a contractor on the new postoffice building, James Shaffer, 37, of Cleveland, O., and Frank Valenti, 22, of 1433 Fifth avenue, were fined $50 or 30 days in jail each by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today. Mrs. Mary Thompson, arrested after she told conflicting stories, also was fined.

Foley said two men attempted to shove him into a building while he was carrying $2,100 last Friday, but he fled and obtained the license number of their automobile.

Miners, Soldiers Agree on Picketing

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Picketing was scheduled to begin in the coal mine area today under an agreement reached between Col. Robert Davis, of the Illinois National Guard, and officials of the Progressive Miners of America.

At their meeting yesterday it was agreed that 12 pickets might be placed at each mine in this district. The pickets are to go unarmed, but will be permitted to carry banners.

HOSPITAL'S STOLEN DRUGS RECOVERED, FOUR MEN HELD

INQUIRY BY U. S. AGENTS NETS SUSPECTS

Morphine and other narcotic drugs with an underworld value of between $10,000 and $12,000, said to have been stolen from the Cook Hospital in Fairmont, W. Va., have been recovered in a government investigation, in which four arrests were reported. More than 20,000 tablets of morphine, cocaine and novocaine were carried away in a safe taken from the drug room of the hospital last December, it was said.

The investigation which led to the recovery and arrests was made by Narcotic Agents Joseph Celebob and Harry Sterling, operating under the direction of William T. Duffy, narcotic agent in charge of the Pittsburgh district. Those reported arrested were Wager Schumaker, 23, of Watson, W. Va., formerly employed by the hospital as an ambulance driver; Charles Hagan, of Fairmont; Robert Fockler and Claire Lohr, of Johnstown.

Schumaker, according to the government agents, removed the safe containing the narcotics from the drug room and it was carried in an automobile driven by Hagan to Johnstown, where Fockler opened it with a drill.

Lohr, government officers said, was given some of the drugs to deliver in Creek Side, Indiana County, but upon meeting Chief of Police Arthur Mahon, of Johnstown, became alarmed and threw the drug from his car. The next day he was arrested by narcotic agents.

The government officers said they found in Hagan's home a large quantity of the drugs, concealed in a barrel of hickory nuts. Hagan was released under $2,000 bond by United States Commissioner Ray Patton Smith at Johnstown.

Fockler and Lohr were brought to the Allegheny County Jail. Schumaker, under arrest in Johnstown, will be brought here tomorrow, it was said.

CUDDY'S THEFT CHARGE FAILS

The $45 riding boots of Cuddy DeMarco, former pugilist, of 304 South St. Clair street, had an inning in Criminal Court when DeMarco accused Samuel Wisner, of Third avenue, McKeesport, of stealing them. DeMarco testified before Visiting Judge Norman T. Boose, of Somerset County, that Wisner had broken into his room and taken the footgear.

Wisner denied this, saying DeMarco had loaned him the boots, which he wore the night of March 23 at a riding academy, returning them later. The jury found Wisner not guilty and divided the costs, and as DeMarco did not have ready cash to pay his share, he sat in the sheriff's office until a friend brought it to him.

STUDY SCHOOL MERGER PLAN

A Castle Shannon Business Men's Association committee today began a study of the proposed consolidation of school districts as provided by the suggested school code changes. The committee was appointed after members of the association, at its meeting last night in Odd Fellows' Hall, Castle Shannon, considered benefits and warned of possible additional tax burdens that might be shouldered on some communities if care was not exercised in the final working out of the consolidation plan.

The business men also laid plans for the annual cleanup campaign to be conducted in Castle Shannon this spring.

FOUR ARRESTED IN VET'S DEATH

Investigation of rumors of a mysterious slugging in the Hill district Saturday night had resulted early today in the arrest of four men by city detectives.

The victim was Alex Daschock, 45, homeless, jobless and starving World War veteran, who died in Mercy Hospital Sunday of a fractured skull at first believed to have been received in a fall to the ice-covered streets Saturday.

The four held in Center Avenue Police Station on suspicious person charges were Allen Rooney, 46; Riley Richardson, 29, and David Durham, 31, all Negroes, of 2204 Forbes street, and Frank Bekeix, 21, of 3211 Forbes street.

Bekeix was held as a material witness after he had told detectives he had seen Daschock talking with Rooney and another Negro in front of 2204 Forbes street, as he was en route to a pool room. When he entered the pool room and glanced to the street Daschock was prostrate on the sidewalk. Rooney denied that he had slugged the veteran.

Recreation Centers To Be Open Longer

The entire staff of the city Division of Recreation has agreed to extend its working hours to make the city recreation centers available to the unemployed during the afternoon hours.

The centers ordinarily open at 3:30 p. m. and close at 10 p. m., but under the new time schedule, effective immediately, will open at 1 p. m. The centers which will be operated under the new schedule are the Crawford, Leslie, Lewis, Ormsby, Warrington, Washington and West Penn.

DELAY CHURCH CONSOLIDATION

Observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the United Presbyterian Church of North America at the 1933 General Assembly will delay the possibility of its merger with the Presbyterian Church in the United States until 1936, it was revealed here today at a committee meeting of both denominations.

A subcommittee of the Joint Committee on Organic Union today met in the Hotel William Penn to consider additional suggestions received from both denominations in adjusting church laws agreeable under a merger. The Rev. Dr. William J. Reid, Pittsburgh, chairman of the joint group, presided.

Findings of the committee will be submitted to the general assemblies of both churches next year, it was revealed, altering the original schedule to have the plan assigned to the presbyteries this year. The delay will mean reports from the presbyteries will not be made until 1935.

TINIEST LIGHT SWITCH SHOWN

The wide range of applications of the mercury switch was demonstrated at the Westinghouse Lamp Company when an electric spark from the smallest mercury switch in the world, attached to a girl's finger, turned on a 10,000-watt bulb. The demonstration was made to a group of visitors from the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

According to J. L. McCoy, Westinghouse engineer on mercury switches, the switch consumes only five to ten milli-amperes and is too weak to operate directly on a powerful lamp which consumes 100 amperes such as used in outdoor exhibition lighting. The switch was made to operate a relay and to throw a large contact breaker sending current through the lamp.

The small switch, used to control current automatically, is designed especially for the low current uses of today.

Girl Changes Two Letters in Name By Marriage

CRESSON, Pa., Feb. 8.—Miss Hattie Flis was married in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Gallitzin, today and transposed just two letters in her name. She became the bride of Stanley Joseph Fils. The ceremony was performed by the parish pastor, the Rev. Francis Pils.

PLANES THREAT TO MUTINY SHIP

BATAVIA, Java, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Army, navy and aviation units were acting today to aid in the attempt to recapture the Dutch cruiser De Zeven Provincien, in the Indian Ocean, with mutinous crew of native Sumatrans and other Malays in command.

Authorities declared they were hopeful that planes which have joined in the pursuit might bring the runaway crew to terms since the cruiser carries no anti-aircraft guns.

The mutinous crew, holding eight Dutch officers as prisoners, did not intend to surrender until a day before they reached Sourabaya naval base, Java.

Army units were being concentrated at the western end of Java today to aid in the attempted capture and protect the populace which feared the native crew on the heavily armed warship.

HOOVERS DINE CURTIS, DOLLY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—At a table set with golden knives and forks, the President and Mrs. Hoover last night were dinner hosts to Vice President Curtis and his sister and official hostess, Mrs. Dolly Gann.

Around the huge gold-laden table in the dark-paneled state dining room were 69 other guests, many of them of national prominence and including John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone, Jr.

To Mrs. Gann went the seat of honor at Mr. Hoover's right, while the Vice President sat at the right of Mrs. Hoover. All ate from the gold-lead plate used on state occasions.

Others prominent among the guests were Will H. Hays and Mrs. Hays; Myron C. Taylor, steel magnate, and Mrs. Taylor, and Michael Gallagher, Cleveland coal operator, and Mrs. Gallagher.

FATHER M'NELIS DIES IN INDIANA

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, of the Pittsburgh Catholic diocese, will officiate at funeral services for the Very Rev. Father Neil P. McNelis, 75, of St. Bernard's Catholic Church, Indiana, who died in his rectory this morning.

Born in Donegal County, Ireland, Father McNeils was ordained here in 1893, and then served as assistant priest in Verona and New Kensington. Later he became pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Mt. Pleasant.

He became pastor of St. Bernard's Catholic Church, Indiana, in 1898, retaining that position until his death. He leaves a brother and a sister.

The services will be held Saturday morning. The office of the dead will be chanted at 10 o'clock, and solemn high mass of requiem celebrated at 10:30 o'clock.

Pair Faces Court In Freight Thefts

Joseph Lehner, 37, of 1118 Sarah street, and Edward Bialecki, 28, of 38 Enon way, arrested Monday, charged with entering three boxcars at South Twenty-first street, were held for court today. In a hearing before Magistrate J. J. Sweeney this morning at the South Side Police Court, the men admitted stealing malt, matches and butter from the cars.

Two persons were also held on $1,000 bail for receiving stolen goods. Pete Mazzie, of 1403 Sarah street, admitted exchanging a half-pint of moonshine for two cases of the malt, while Sophie Vernick, 28, of 100 South Twelfth street, it was testified, bought 20 pounds of the butter for $2.

HOOVER SPURNS TARIFF ACTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—President Hoover was represented in the highest administration circles today as feeling that unless steps are taken by the United States to slow down imports from countries with depreciated currencies, a "continuous disturbance" will be noticed in American economic life.

In quarters fully acquainted with his views, the President was described as feeling the present volume of imports is considerably greater than can be shown by available statistics, because actual imports have increased where this would not be shown by dollar figures.

Find Storekeeper Dead by Shooting

A bullet through his head and a revolver in his hand, Andrew Bothery, 59, was found dead in bed in the rear room of his confectionery at 511 Shaw avenue, McKeesport, by police last night, according to a coroner's report.

A nephew and a neighbor, finding the store locked all day, notified McKeesport police, who discovered the body.

Blasts Wreck Plant Following Threats

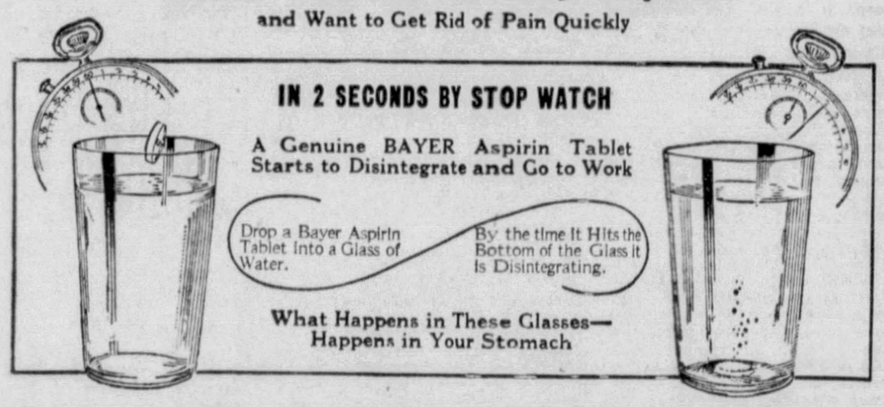
SHAMOKIN, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A short time after an Ohio automobile sped from the Trevorton shirt factory early today, two explosions and fire destroyed the plant with an estimated loss of $250,000.

Company officials said they had received threats.

KNOW THIS

When You Go to Buy Aspirin

and Want to Get Rid of Pain Quickly



IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH
A Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablet Starts to Disintegrate and Go to Work
Drop a Bayer Aspirin Tablet into a Glass of Water.
By the time It Hits the Bottom of the Glass it Is Disintegrating.
What Happens in These Glasses— Happens in Your Stomach

Because of This Quick Dissolving Property, Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablets Start "Taking Hold" of Pain a few Minutes after Taking

If you have a headache or any other common form of pain—rheumatism, neuritis, or neuralgia—you want to get rid of it as fast as possible—and in absolute safety.

Then—the first thing to know is this:

Never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But always say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

For what happens in those glasses happens in your stomach.

Because of a unique process in manufacture, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets begin to dissolve almost INSTANTLY in the stomach. They start to disintegrate within the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture.

Hence Genuine Bayer Aspirin "takes hold" of the average pain or headache within a few minutes after taking. The fastest, safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Remember, it is Genuine Bayer Aspirin which lays claim to this unique, quick-acting property.

So be sure you get the Real Article—GENUINE BAYER Aspirin when you buy. Naturally you want the fastest, possible relief—and that's the way to get it.

The sure, safe way is to see that the name BAYER is clearly stamped, in the form of a cross, on any tablet that you take.

Keep that in mind when you buy. Carry in mind, too, that Genuine Bayer Aspirin Does Not Harm the Heart.

For Pocket or Purse, Tin Boxes of 12 Tablets

For Economy, Bottles of 24 or 100 Tablets

DOCTOR ROUTS AUTO THIEVES WITH BULLET

Two Negroes attempting to steal the automobile of Dr. C. N. Spowart, of 1137 North Highland avenue, a city physician, were captured when he fired a shot at them as they fled from the machine at North Highland avenue and Bryant street shortly after midnight, according to police.

The captives, Osiah Trent, 18, of 6627 Butler street, and Andrew Hardy, 15, of 3707 Lorigan street, were held for further investigation. Detectives took Trent in charge after a hearing in Morals Court. Hardy was turned over to Juvenile Court.

The pair, police said, had shattered the glass in the door of the machine when Dr. Spowart, who had been treating a patient in the neighborhood, returned. The Negroes fled down Highland avenue as the physician fired a shot from his revolver.

KNIFED IN FIGHT OVER SOUP

A soup bowl dropped to the floor of a West End restaurant early today started an argument which ended after one of the participants had been stabbed in the stomach.

Thomas Ward, 22, of 11 Elliott street, stabbed, police say, by Jacob Smith, 18, of 138 Wabash avenue, a waiter in the Peoples Restaurant, 408 South Main street, was in South Side Hospital in a serious condition. Thirty-five stitches were required to close the wound.

Smith and Ward's companions, Thomas McCormick, 21, of 1964 Greenleaf street, and Joseph Miller, 22, of 227 West Steuben street, Crafton, were arrested on suspicious person charges. James Marshall, 18, of 148 South Main street, was held as a material witness.

Police said the trio entered the restaurant and ordered soup. McCormick knocked a bowl to the floor, Smith remonstrating. In the ensuing argument McCormick was knocked down. Ward interfered, police said, and was stabbed by Smith who had armed himself with a butcher knife.

SCHOOL TO OPEN FOR JOBLESS

A school for unemployed will be opened at the Duquesne University within the next two weeks, it was announced today by Dr. Albert Bayard Wright, director of education.

Students must be 30 years of age or more, have at least two years of high school training and be certified as unemployed and unable to pay for education by their pastors, former employers or responsible welfare group. There will be no charge.

Man Found in Store On South Side Held

Accused of breaking into a store at 1323 Carson street, early this morning, John Kawlo, 36, of 2516 Josephine street, was held for court on charges of breaking and entering after being given a hearing today before Magistrate J. J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court. Kawlo was found under a counter of the store by a policeman, after, police said, he had entered through a wire screen on the roof of the store.

Refusal to Fry Fish Held Not Barbarous

That today was the effect of a verdict given in York County Court, denying Paul A. Graham a divorce from Mrs. Mary W. Graham. Graham's principal charge was that his wife would have nothing to do with fish he caught.

Surgeon's Needle Emerges From Head

GALESVILLE, Wis., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A needle similar to that used by surgeons came out of the head of Matt Deeren today, he said, when he tried to relieve an itching scalp with a fine comb.

Eighteen years ago Deeren was operated upon for intestinal adhesions. From then until three months ago he was so ill he had to retire from his farm.

Temple University Having Gold Rush

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—For the past several days Temple University has been having a "gold rush" that has made the office of Millard E. Gladfelter, the registrar, reminiscent of the days of '49.

University officials said today more than 260 gold pieces have been paid in by students on the new semester tuition bills.

Morgantown Gets Another Baby Mayor

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—For the third successive time, the youngest member of council was named last night to be mayor of Morgantown. He is Paul O. Summers, 27.

For the last five years, Morgantown's mayors have been under 30 years of age.

STORE OWNERS GIVEN PLANS

Merchandising discussions featured a meeting of merchants who operate the Modern Food Stores at the Allegheny Y. M. C. A. last night.

The Modern Food Stores are composed of independent grocers sponsored by the Allen Kirkpatrick & Co., Inc., 80-year-old local wholesale grocers. Representatives of various national manufacturers presented merchandising ideas for use in the expansion of business.

It was cited the Modern Stores aimed to operate with the present economic condition being used as a normal basis. Upon this merchandising structure, it was pointed out, business recovery will provide the storekeepers with earlier increase in business and profit.

Widow of Promoter Kills Self With Gas

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Mrs. Virginia Herold Golden, 35, widow of Joseph Golden, New Orleans and New York fight promoter, who died seven years ago, ended her life by gas today at the Cardinal, an apartment hotel. She had checked into the hotel three days ago.

A sealed letter, addressed to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Blanche Golden, Greystone Hotel, New York, was found in the apartment. Police did not divulge its contents.

RETAIL LUMBER MEN MEET

Governmental competition with private industry and business was condemned today before the annual convention of the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association of Western Pennsylvania in Webster Hall by W. Clement Moore, Philadelphia.

Problems confronting the people today were cited by Moore as:

First—Less government in business; second—more practical business matters in government; third—definite methods whereby business may govern, limit and control its own activities; and fourth—an economic and profitable price structure for all products of agriculture, industry and service.

The convention continues through Friday morning with the annual banquet tomorrow night. Other speakers on today's program included K. K. Stevens, Carnegie Institute of Technology; A. C. Robinson, Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, and George N. Glass, Pittsburgh.

County to Fight For Bond-Jumper

Having served a five-year penitentiary sentence in Connecticut in connection with the alleged sale of bogus stock, Eugene H. Tressler, alias Roger W. Watkins, will be brought here to serve a 20-month sentence if extradition is granted.

County Detective Michael Ford will leave tonight with extradition papers to be signed by the Governors of Pennsylvania and Connecticut. Tressler was convicted in 1928 of selling bogus stock here and was released on $10,000 bond. He "jumped" his bond and disappeared, detectives said.

Do this for Your Child in

TWO WEEKS

How to rid any boy or girl of sluggishness or constipation and build a big appetite.

The trouble with children who will not eat is usually stasis. The symptoms are a tongue that's always coated, bad breath, poor color, dull eyes that are often a bilious yellow. No appetite, no ambition—even for play. Hard to get to sleep, hard to wake in the morning.

There's an absolute remedy for this condition. It gives listless youngsters the appetite and energies of a young animal! They eat! They gain! They keep well!

The California Treatment conquers Sluggishness

It's not the stomach, but the bowel condition that keeps children from eating. But the trouble is in the lower bowel—the colon. California fig syrup is the only "medicine" needed to stimulate the colon muscles. The very next day, your child is eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the fig syrup a few days and you will see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight and spirits.

Any drugstore has the real California fig syrup, all bottled, with directions. Nature never made a nicer acting or nicer tasting laxative. (It is purely vegetable.) Remember California fig syrup when sickness, a cold or any upset has clogged a child's bowels.

WARNING

Even when it's something to give children, some stores will try to substitute. So be sure the bottle says CALIFORNIA Fig Syrup.

ATTORNEY RAPS LOW JURY PAY

Penny-pinching methods of Uncle Sam in paying jurors who come to decide the rights and wrongs of trials in his courts were denounced by Attorney David L. Starr, Federal Court Jury Commissioner, in a speech to the petit jurors of the special term of Federal Court today.

Starr, speaking to the jurors before roll call, told them they deserve more than the $3 allowed for their living expenses each day of their average two-week service. He advised them to write their Congressmen and Senators in Washington and tell them it is impossible to live on their allowances.

The talk followed many complaints since the daily allowance was cut from $4, last July. Jurors also are allowed 10 cents a mile for the distance from their homes to court.

Warren, Pa., Firm Files in Bankruptcy

The Union Furniture and Novelty Company, of Warren, Pa., filed a voluntary bankruptcy petation in Federal Court, listing liabilities as $31,104.24 and assets as $62,764.74. Among the latter is real estate valued at $51,682.

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

We start off swell today with a brain puzzler. You get into arguments and I get headaches. Oh, well, think of the fun we're having. Mr. Hunter wants to know what would happen if a president-elect died. Would the vice president-elect be the next president?

The vice president-elect would be inaugurated as vice president and then automatically succeed as President. The Senate would elect its presiding officer, who then would beocme vice president ex-officio.

There are many complications. The new amendment recognizes them by providing that a bill should be introduced in Congress making new rules to be enforced in case of these exigencies.

Ah ha! An anonymous letter. Almost a threatening one, too, but it doesn't threaten me. The party has a friend who has lost a dog. The party also knows that the dog is tied up in another friend's yard and can't return home.

What are the ethics of the case? Should he tell the owner and embarrass the captors? Should he forget about it in the face of his friend's distress over the lost dog? Hence the letter, hoping perhaps that the dog will be released and his conscience spared.

'You're Another' Drama on WCAE

"You're Another," a hilarious comedy based on an article appearing in the next issue of the American Weekly, with Daphne Pollard, internationally-known comedienne, portraying the leading role, is presented from the studios of WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock. The dramatization depicts the amusing tendencies of most people to exaggerate.

Waring Band, Legion Chief, Ripley on Air

The debut of Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians in a weekly series of half-hour variety programs under the banner of Old Gold, the sponsor who first brought Paul Whiteman into the field of commercial broadcasting, heads tonight's radio bill. John P. Medbury, popular West Coast humorist and comedy writer whose articles are a feature of the March of Events section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, will occupy the comedy spot. Tom Waring, pianist and singer, and a star in his own right, has rejoined his brother's orchestra for the series, to be offered over CBS-WJAS each Wednesday at 10 p. m.

A dramatic version of Ben Hecht's story of the last grand gesture of an old actor, "Actor's Blood," with the author himself appearing for a brief curtain speech, is tonight's Five Star Theater offering on KDKA at 7:30.

Louis Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, is heard over a nationwide NBC network, including WCAE, tonight at 9:30 during a broadcast of the Department of Canada American Legion dinner, given in his honor, at Montreal.

Robert L. (Believe-it-or-Not) Ripley, whose cartoons of strange facts are published daily and Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph, comes to an NBC microphone to be interviewed by Nellie Revell at 11 p. m. WCAE carries the program locally.

VAPEX GETS TO SEAT OF COLDS

PENETRATES TO BREATHING-PASSAGES AT FIRST DEEP BREATH

Many preparations are sold today to relieve head-colds. Common sense tells you that breathing relief is more natural than forcing liquids and salves into the nasal passages. Your nose is intended for breathing. It's certainly safer to use a delightful inhalant like Vapex.

As a matter of fact, Vapex is likely to be more effective. For breathing the vapor penetrates to the seat of a cold . . . to the breathing-passages. And not only clears your head . . . stops sniffling . . . and refreshes you, but also kills germs present during a head-cold.

The remarkable germ-killing power of the Vapex vapor has been scientifically proved by a prominent medical research laboratory. Time after time, vapor from a single drop of Vapex killed dense colonies of bacteria. In similar tests, inhalants commonly substituted for Vapex showed little effect.

Insist on V-A-P-E-X at your druggist's. Millions of people breathe it for colds. It's safe . . . it's pleasant . . . it's easy to use! There are months of relief in each bottle for all the family.

Life of Andrew Carnegie

thing resembling child labor legislation had not made its presence felt on the statute book. Andrew stood the ordeal longer than his father, for, after a brief experience, the older man, whom fate had never created for a factory worker, was back again at the Hogan loom, working the treadles, singing his "Boatie Rows," now and then finishing a table cloth, which he would attempt to sell from door to door. Probably this separation from his father had much to do with the child's unhappiness.

So little did he enjoy the solitary bobbin wheel that he eagerly accepted a new place—a job, however, that added still further to his miseries. The new employer was John Hay, a manufacturer of bobbins—then much demanded in the new and short-lived spinning industry of the town. The only consoling feature of the work was that Andrew's pay was increased from $1.20 to $1.65 a week. In those hard days, the additional 45 cents represented a material gain to the family treasury. The great disadvantage, from Andy's standpoint, was that the new location robbed him of one of the things that he most loved—the free and open sunlight. He found himself installed in a cellar, to tend the engine and boiler and make himself generally useful.

* * *

'Bottom Hooshiers'

Presently, however, Andrew discovered certain compensations. Rebecca street itself developed unexpected charm. It was the headquarters of a group of lively spirits popularly known as the "bottom hooshiers." Andrew and Tom had their preliminary difficulties. In truth, the two Carnegie boys, in speech and manners, were at first strange apparitions. Poor little Tom made his initial public appearance arrayed in Scottish Highland dress, kilts and all, but the hootings that followed these exotic garments quickly caused them to be laid aside. The broad Scotch burr of Andy gave the enemy another opening. His diminutive size, his pink skin, his deep blue eyes and shock of extremely light hair, also contrasted with the more unpolished aspect of the little ruffians who ruled the neighborhood. "Next year I may drop in on you," wrote one of Carnegie's earliest friends, Thomas N. Miller, in 1903, "and, if I do, I'll remind those celtic Hieland retainers that the Laird of Skibo once had a brogue as rich as theirs—for when the wicked bottom hooshiers hollered, 'Scotchie! Scotchie! Scotchie!' did you not answer, 'Aye, I am Scotchie, and I'm prood o' the name!'?" The tension soon passed; in a brief period Andy became a "bottom hooshier" himself; the course of Americanization proved rapid, and soon "Scotchie," as he himself records, could not pronounce "sow crae" with the approved Dunfermline accent. Most of these urchins of the neighborhood, who became Carnegie's lifelong friends, had unusual business careers. The little muddy district turned out to be a nursery of millionaires and public leaders.

One was Robert Pitcairn, who became vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and one of the richest men in Pennsylvania. Another was David McCargo, likewise a railroad man, the main force in building up the Allegheny Valley Railroad. Another was Henry W. Oliver, who left a great fortune made in the northwestern ore fields, which he did so much to develop. Two boys who were Andrew's closest chums at the time died early in life, William Cowley, who perished from disease in the Civil War, and John Phipps, son of the shoemaker who gave work to Margaret Carnegie, killed in a runaway accident while still in his teens.

The Phipps Family

It was with the Phipps family, indeed, that the Carnegies became especially intimate—an intimacy that has a particular interest because of their close association as men. Like the Carnegies, the Phipps clan were immigrants, and the family head had had an even more difficult start in life than his new neighbors. By the time the Carnegies arrived, the elder Phipps was one of the established institutions of Rebecca street; he was himself a most friendly soul, a quaint character, loved by the boys, though, even with them, rather taciturn; his cobbler shop was a favorite gathering place, serving as a kind of club. For years, Phipps, the father, was a familiar sight both in Allegheny and the surrounding country; he used to carry his shoes in a bag, thrown across his shoulders, and peddle them from farmhouse to farmhouse. Even in old age, when the family had acquired vast wealth, the old man could not be dissuaded from the habits of a less prosperous period; his main enjoyment was to purchase surreptitiously a supply of shoes, put them in a bag on his shoulders, and clandestinely sell them to his old customers.

The vat and boiler room held Andrew captive for something less than a year. Suddenly the skies opened and a new life began. The happy person who wrought this great transformation was Uncle Hogan. This genial soul was able to exercise almost a decisive influence on Carnegie's career because of an excessive fondness for playing checkers. A favorite competitor at his evening bouts was David Brooks, the manager of the recently opened telegraph office in Pittsburgh. Brooks used to talk much of the telegraph, as great a wonder then as wireless is today; the invention was only about 10 years old, and telegraph poles and wires were phenomena of most recent date. Among other picturesque innovations, the Morse discovery had brought forth a new character in American life, the fleet-footed telegraph boy, whose business it was to deliver messages fresh from the wire to the appointed recipients. Pittsburgh at that time possessed only one diminutive courier of this kind. But business, Mr. Brooks now informed his rival over the checker board, was rapidly increasing; a second boy was needed and needed at once. Did Uncle Hogan know where a candidate could be found? At once rose the image of the unhappy little creature tending the boiler in the bobbin factory. The salary attached to the new job, $2.50 a week, was a vast increase over the one Andrew then received.

* * *

It was characteristic of Andrew that, after finally establishing himself in this new world, he should seek to find a similar opportunity for his friends. In a brief period a considerable part of Rebecca street crossed the river and took up its headquarters in the Pittsburgh telegraph office. Business began rapidly to grow; the line was put through to the East, and more messenger boys were required. As soon as an opening offered, Andrew came forward to name a candidate, and in this way Robert Pitcairn, David McCargo and Henry W. Oliver presently joined the staff.

* * *

Shakespeare Student

Up to that time Andrew had read little, his instruction from Uncle Lauder and his mother being chiefly by word of mouth, and Shakespeare to him was nothing more than a name. But in Pittsburgh Shakespeare was a perennial force. The city of iron and coal was even then known in theatrical circles as a "good show town," and the Pittsburgh Theater, in which the leading actors and singers of the day regularly appeared, was one of the most commodious playhouses in America. Andrew had heard much of its rose-colored boxes, its crimson seats edged with velvet and brass nails, its eight crystal chandeliers, and its gold-embroidered draperies, but 25 cents was exacted for admission to the topmost gallery, and that, in his family's straitened condition, was an unjustified expenditure. His occupation sent him frequently to this magnificent structure, and on such occasions he usually managed to delay delivering his messages until the evening performance had begun. The atmosphere of the place was indulgent to telegraph boys; the manager genially winked when Andrew, after fulfilling his duty, quietly tripped upstairs to "nigger heaven" and took one of the unoccupied seats. To this early experience Carnegie traced a literary enthusiasm that was almost as deep as his absorption in Burns.

* * *

One day he was walking along Fifth avenue with a friend, when William H. Vanderbilt passed on the other side. His companion pointed out the great railroad capitalist.

"I would not exchange his millions," commented Carnegie, "for my knowledge of Shakespeare!"

SPORT COMMENT

Waiver Trick Succeeds.
Judge Likely to Start.

CLUBS NEEDING JOHNSON MISS CHANCE

AN OLD WAIVER trick in the big baseball leagues, when it is desired to place a man of more than ordinary ability in the minors, is to request waivers on a group of performers at one time and to include this particular athlete among a number of better-grade players. The other names are merely decoys. It is figured that when the heads of rival clubs scan the list, they will grab immediately at the more attractive bait, claim the better pastimers and forget about the man the waiver-seeker actually intends to ship out of the big show.

Sylvester Johnson

That explains how the Cardinals managed to get such a serviceable relief pitcher as Sylvester Johnson out of the majors. Rival managers grabbed at several other worth-while Redbirds on the same waiver list and overlooked Johnson. Then the others were withdrawn and Johnson was sent to the Columbus farm. Now some of those who passed up Sylvester are kicking themselves. It develops that the Giants, Braves, Dodgers and Reds would have been glad to make room for him, but it's too late. They'll have to experiment with less capable relief flingers while a reliable mop-up man than whom there are few better for four or five innings has been allowed to get away.

THE PREVAILING OPINION is that 39-year-old Joe Judge will start the season at first base for Brooklyn, as the outcome of the situation that shows three candidates aspiring to that position, the two others seeking the post being Del Bissonette and Bud Clancy.

It's not that the Dodger management has given up hope that Bissonnette will be able to make a successful comeback. But it is figured that Del, even if he recovers his old form in the hard course of training he has mapped out for himself, will not be ready until a month or longer after the season's start.

MAX CAREY has lopped one off the number of pitchers to be carried by the Brooklyn Club this year. Instead of retaining 10 of his 17 hurlers for the season he will keep only nine. He expects Walter Beck, Memphis recruit, to be one of his starting regulars.

The three others counted on to be regular starters are Bill Clark, Van Mungo and Ray Benge. From among Dazzy Vance, Babe Phelps, Hollis Thurston, Fred Heimach, Rosy Ryan, Joe Shaute and Jack Quinn five will be selected for relief duty or spot pitching.

AMONG THE NOVEL answers brought by the query "What's Wrong With Baseball?" is one to the effect that the trouble is partly due to the color line in the big leagues. The writer goes on to explain: "There have been good baseball players in the majors who were Indians, or part Indians, Mexicans, Cubans, and the like. A Chinese Hawaiian tried out for the Giants a few years ago, and would have made the team if he had been able to play a little better ball. But good colored ball players aren't eligible. And so, as concerns New York, for instance, there must be a lot of possible fans in Harlem who won't step over to the Stadium or the Polo Grounds to baseball games. It's a trend of the times, this decline of baseball, and it's hard to tell what could be done to arrest the trend, unless the big league chiefs could bring themselves to erase the color line and fans in every state burdened with blue laws could be lined up to fight these laws."

Bill Terry

THE PIRATES MAY be pennant favorites in the betting books and the choice of most of the dopesters, but Bill Terry refuses to admit that they outclass the rest of the clubs. Nor will he give that ranking to the Cubs or any other team.

The Giant manager declares there is no standout club in the National League. He concedes that the Buccaneers and Bruins now appear to be the strongest, but he predicts that neither of them will make a runaway race of it after the real fighting begins.

SIZING UP THE other clubs, Terry says the Braves have good pitchers, but could stand more hitting power. The Phillies have batting power but lack pitching strength and will feel the loss of Davis and Benge.

The Dodgers should have good batting strength in O'Doul and Wilson, but are short on pitching material and reserve timber. The Cardinals are too jumbled in the infield to look dangerous.

YOU MAY THINK there is no great strain in such a sport as archery, but the experts insist the pressure of major competition is so heavy that few archers ever survive the title hunt longer than two years. Stamina, strength, keenness of eye, control of muscles and nerves, and the ability to remember some 200 things while shooting, all are needed in the make-up of a champion, they assert. Strength might not be considered an important factor, when one observes how easily an experienced archer draws back the string of his bow to his chin. It must be remembered, however, that the archer uses only the tips of his first three fingers to do this, and the drawing back of the string is equivalent to pulling 45 to 55 pounds.

TO HOLD UP the string at one's chin for six to eight seconds, while lining up the route of the arrow's flight, takes a tremendous amount of strength, and the average top-notch archer has a pair of arms and shoulders as well leveloped as any found in an athlete in other branches of sport.

The nerves, too, play an important part, as in golf. When taking aim, the archer, like the golfer at the tee, demands silence, for any slight motion or sound distracts his attention and spells failure for that shot. In the last eastern championship tournament, the title holder was taking aim when a spectator jumped from the stand and shouted to a companion. As a result the archer missed the target for the only time in 180 shots.

CANADIAN FOOTBALL IS becoming more and more like the American kind. The latest change proposed in the rules is to permit the linemen to interfere behind the line of scrimmage, this plan being substituted for the change which would permit the backs to block.

Frank Morganweck

Until now, the Canadian linemen have been permitted to block three yards ahead of the line of scrimmage, but not behind the line. The ball carrier has received no assistance. The object of the proposed change is to help the running attack, the linemen pulling out and blocking on end runs.

FRANK MORGANWECK, manager and coach of the Paterson (N. J.) professional basketball team meeting the Rosenblum Celtics at Motor Square Garden tomorrow night, is one of the oldest authorities on the pro game in the East. He has been playing or promoting since the '90's, and has had many great fives in eastern cities. Morganweck was manager of several of the American League clubs, and his teams always were in money positions. Pop, as they call him, was here last spring with Bill Keenan and Harry Hough for the first basketball old-timers' banquet. His team is now representing two cities in the two big leagues down East, Paterson in the Metropolitan and Bridgeton in the Eastern. Morgaweck asserts that in Husta and Borgeman, he has the best pair of forwards developed in the last 10 years.

Langley	5	5	.375

By JULIUS LEVIN

Apparently just as formidable as they were during the first half race, the Perry and South High School quintets have added strength to their positions at the top of their respective sections in the City League championship basketball race.

Yesterday, both teams won decisive victories. Perry made it eight in a row by crushing Allegheny Vocational, 20 to 13. South had even easier sailing in beating Fifth Avenue, 46 to 36. Jesko, South's star forward, cut nine points from the lead Bob Kornick, of Perry, holds in the race for individual scoring honors by scoring 18 of South's 46 points, while Kornick got nine for Perry. Jesko threw eight field goals.

In other league games, South Hills nosed out Allegheny, 26 to 25; Oliver defeated Langley, 38 to 24; Westinghouse won over Connelley, 30 to 23, and Schenley trounced Peabody, 28 to 13.

FAVORITES ADVANCE

The favorites, those that saw action, continued to hang up victories in the W. P. I. A. L. scramble. Yesterday's league program was somewhat lighter than usual, with several teams holding off until Friday.

Johnny Reed's Scott team, making a game bid for honors, defeated Swissvale, 33 to 25, in a Section VIII battle. Dormont took over McKees Rocks, 34 to 14; Monessen won from West Newton, 49 to 5; Crafton beat Coraopolis, 28 to 22; Etna upset Avalon, 24 to 22, and Hurst checked Scottdale, 24 to 19.

New Kensington, Section I favorites, defeated Verona, 39 to 19; Har-Brack tripped Arnold by a single point, 31 to 30; Leetsdale decisioned Bellevue, 22 to 19; Ben Avon won over Millvale, 30 to 15; Connellsville beat East Huntingdon in a low score game, 15 to 13; California downed Bellevernon, 34 to 10; Edgewood crushed Turtle Creek Union, 40 to 10; Dunbar nosed out Mt. Pleasant, 31 to 28; Jeannette defeated Derry, 29 to 17; East Pike Run beat Ellsworth-Cokeburg, 25 to 23, and Centerville walloped East Bethlehem, 20 to 6.

CARRICK VICTOR

In non-league tussles, Carrick downed Shady Side, 16 to 9; Tarentum beat Vandergrift, 20 to 18; East Pittsburgh defeated Freedom, 18 to 11; McDonald whipped Trinity, 33 to 19; Burgettstown beat Washington, 29 to 19, and Midway took Hickory, 23 to 17.

Fifth Avenue beat Gladstone, 16-10; Latimer won over Knoxville by the same count; Schenley defeated Peabody, 14-11; Shady Side took Carrick, 22-3; Braddock downed Baxter, 28 to 4; Liberty walloped Arsenal, 19-8, and Neville upset South, 27 to 16, in junior high school tussles.

St. Mary's defeated St. Justin, 33 to 12, in the Catholic High School League.

Woman to Apply For Trainer's License

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—The Jockey Club at its next meeting will consider, for the first time in its history, an application from a woman for a license as a trainer.

Mary Hirsch, who for the past three years has been assisting her father, Max Hirsch, widely-known trainer, is the applicant. She owns Tullihoo, 2-year-old filly.

Dashbach To Play With Crookston In New Loop

George (Dash) Dashbach, of Oakland, versatile athlete of Villanova College, today signed a contract to play with the Crookston (Minn.) club of the newly organized Northern League. George is a catcher.

Dashbach worked out with the Pirates for more than a month last season. His actions made a marked impression on Gibson and other veterans. Boone, who expects to get another player or two from Gibson, has promised the Pittsburgh club the first chance to acquire Dashbach. George, aged 20, is almost six feet in height and he weighs 175. He is extremely fast.

The Oakland youth starred on the diamond for Villanova and he also took part in football, basketball and boxing.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE SHIP THAT CLIMBED A HILL—The oddly-placed wreck of a lake steamer, now lying on top of a hill more than 300 feet above the lake, is the only remaining relic of a terrible landslide which took place in 1906, when the entire side of a mountain surrounding Lake Leon, Norway, suddenly fell into the lake. The slide caused a tremendous wave, more than 300 feet high, the ship being carried on the wave crest and deposited atop the precipice on the opposite side. It is a torn and battered wreck, with all the wood fittings wrenched off, and the twisted steel-work bears evidence of the force which cast it upon its high perch. The entire population of the lake shore district, 60 in all, perished during the catastrophe. THE BAROMETER HOUSE—Situated near the main lines of two railroads is the home of A. H. Ferguson, in Yale, Okla., appropriately known as the "Barometer House" because of its strange rumblings before storms. From eight to 12 hours in advance of a storm the house always trembles, rattling windows and doors, when trains enter or leave the city, even though there is no visual evidence of approaching bad weathers. The strange phenomenon has been confirmed by many residents of Yale.

TOMORROW: THE FASTEST PIANIST

SLAVIAS BOAST STRONG TEAM

By TOM BIRKS

The Cleveland Slavias will present a lineup of first string players intact as they meet Curry at Greenlee Field here Sunday afternoon in the second round of the national open challenge cup competition.

The backers of the big professional club from the Buckeye State have been having tough sledding this year, but have managed to keep all of last season's stars with the club.

Joe Summers will be in goal, with Jack Thomson and Jimmy Fair at fullback. Coyle, Wier and Jim Jackson will be the halfbacks; Griffith and Pie Caraffi will do their stuff on the right wing, Bill McManus will be at center and Jimmy Dunn and Ralph Caraffi on the left wing.

Dave Wier and Jackson are the men that the Buckeyes are counting on to stop Buff Donnelli and Mike Bookie.

Wier is classed as the outstanding performer of the club. He has had considerable experience on first-class teams. He will have the toughest assignment of his career when he tackles Buff Donnelli.

Rangers Pass Up Chance to Gain

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—The New York Rangers, tied with Detroit for first place in the American division of the National Hockey League, muffed a chance to gain on the Red Wings when they lost to the Boston Bruins here last night, 2 to 1.

The winning goal was scored in the second period by Nels Stewart, who took the puck in center ice and beat Aitkenhead with a shot from a difficult angle. Attendance was 15,000.

Metcalfe to Run In W. Va. Games

MOGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Storm or no storm, Ralph Metcalfe, Negro speedster at Marquette University, will run in the fifth annual West Virginia indoor games this week-end.

H. A. Stansbury, athletic director at West Virginia University, said today that if the storm now raging in Wisconsin prevents Metcalfe from making the trip by motor, he will arrange railroad transportation.

SCHOOL HEADS MEET

The basketball committee of the W. P. I. A. L. will meet this evening in the Fort Pitt Hotel to arrange tentative dates for the annual elimination series.

COAST TO DROP REGATTA IDEA

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Efforts to stage a national regatta on the Olympic rowing course at Long Beach in June, virtually have been dropped when Los Angeles and Long Beach civic organizations, which planned to stage the event, were informed that only two eastern crews could make the trip.

In a letter to Steve Cunningham, Graduate Manager of the University of California at Los Angeles, John Arthur Brown, secretary of the American Rowing Association, said only Massachusetts Institute of Technology found it possible to participate should the event be staged.

Canadiens Announce Player Changes

MONTREAL, Quebec, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Leo Dandurand, managing director of the Montreal Canadiens, of the National Hockey League, announced a number of player changes early today.

Leo Murray, center, and Bob Trapp, defenseman, will rejoin the Providence Reds at Quebec today; Gizzy Hart, wing, and Arthur Alexandre, center, obtained from Providence earlier in the week, will be retained by the Canadiens, at least temporarily.

Rice and Beach Score Golf Victories

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Grantland Rice, the medalist, and Rex Beach, defending champion, came through with easy victories in the first round of match play in the annual Artists' and Writers' Association golf tournament.

Rice defeated Charles McAdams, 6 and 5. Beach won over Billy DeBeck, 4 and 2.

Pitt's Golden Panthers will be uncaged tonight and sent on a prowl of revenge as they test their claws on the hides of the Western Reserve University Red Cats here in the Pitt Stadium pavilion. Not only will they be out to make up for two defeats in previous scraps with the Red Cats, but they'll be seeking to emulate the record of Duquesne University's Dukes and annex the seventh triumph in succession.

Since suffering their second defeat of the campaign, when the Dukes took 'em over by a single point about a month ago, the Panthers have won six games hand running, having beaten Carnegie Tech, Wash-Jeff, Notre Dame, West Virginia, Fordham and the Army.

PITT AFTER REVENGE

Last year and the year previous, the Red Kitties messed up the Panthers rather decisively. They have the same team that beat Pitt a year ago intact for tonight's encounter, and come here with a fine record, including victories over the strong Ohio Wesleyan outfit, which in turn beat Ohio State and Colgate.

Coach Carlson will start his regular lineup tonight, using Don Smith, Skippy Hughes, Claire Cribbs, Russ Ochsenhirt and Don McCamant. For Reserve, the veterans Bernardie and Charlillo are booked for forward jobs, with Berwald at center and Finnegan and Burke at the guards.

These are very busy days for the athletes at Pitt generally. The basketballers have the Notre Dame game at South Bend to keep in mind for this Saturday. The boxers, beaten by West Virginia and the Army in successive meets, are to swap socks with the Dukes in the pavilion Friday night, and the track and field men are being prepped for their appearance in the West Virginia University indoor games at Morgantown Saturday.

Pat Corr, the erudite swimming coach, is to lead his splashers out of town for Eastern Intercollegiate League meets with Franklin and Marshall and Delaware University. F. & M. will be met Friday at Lancaster, and Delaware at Newark Saturday.

Dukes Easy Victors

Duquesne University's Dukes are busy today celebrating their seventh consecutive basketball victory; the driving of another nail into the district championship and lining up radios so as to be able to hear Coach Chick Davies broadcast over the Trained Seals' program at 7 o'clock this evening over WCAE.

The Dukes had little trouble in taking Geneva last night at Beaver Falls, making their second appearance in four nights on the valley court. They piled up 15 field goals to 9 for the Covenanters, swept away to a 21-to-11 lead at the half, and then easily fought off a belated and somewhat tepid Geneva rally in the second half to win by 10 points at 37 to 27.

BIRCH GAME'S STAR

Midway in the second half, or perhaps, a trifle past the midway stage, Paul Birch, crack Duquesne sophomore, suffered an ankle injury and had to leave the game.

The Dukes already were somewhat handicapped by the absence from the lineup of Marty Reiter, who is suffering with a sore throat and Birch's departure gave the Genevans the chance they needed. They

Local Woman Trails In Pinehurst Play

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Helen Waring, of Pinehurst, scored an 84 over the No. 1 course of the Pinehurst Golf Club yesterday to win the qualifying medal in the twenty-eighth annual St. Valentine's tournament.

She led Mrs. Sara Fownes Wadsworth, of Pittsburgh, by two strokes. Mrs. Gail Maxwell, of Spring Lake, N. J., with 89, was the only other player in the field of 25 to break 90.

Other qualifiers were Mrs. Emmett French, Youngstown, O., with 92; Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Bryn Wawr, Pa., 93; Mrs. James Given, Jr., Brooklyn, 95; Barbara Lane, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 95, and Mrs. L. B. Stanton, Great Neck, N. Y., 97.

CHAMP HOLDS LEAD

MAJOR LEAGUES SAVE HUGE SUM IN SALARY REDUCTIONS

NATIONAL LOOP ACTS AGAINST BONUS PLAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Salary cuts for 1932 and the coming 1933 season represent an aggregate saving of a million and a quarter to harassed major league club owners and the end is not yet in sight.

Even though they lopped about $400,000 off player salaries last year and virtually double that amount for 1933, the magnates declare that baseball wages, generally speaking, still are higher than in other lines of business.

One club owner, attending the mid-winter meeting here, said he had slashed his salaries 25 per cent in the last two years as compared with the 1931 level, but that the total still was twice what it was when his team won a pennant right after the war.

MORE CUTS COMING

Barring a decisive upturn in receipts and attendance this year, club owners are virtually committed to further retrenchment next season.

National League owners, gathering here in mid-winter session yesterday, discussed their most pressing problems for nearly five hours, but actually decided definitely upon only two questions:

First, they tightened the regulations against the granting of player bonuses by adopting a rule forbidding any club to deal with its players contingent on where the club finishes in the pennant race.

Second, they land plans to start East-West competition earlier in the season.

The anti-bonus rule, heretofore simply forbade clubs to grant extra money for playing achievements such as healthy batting averages, number of home runs, or number of pitching victories.

SCHEDULE PLANS CHANGED

Revised schedule plans provide that National League clubs in the West shall invade the East on May 2, eight days earlier than usual, and that Eastern clubs shall make their first Western trip May 16, two weeks earlier than custom.

This change is directed toward stimulating interest in the race and helping to prevent any dominant club in one section from getting a big early lead.

Although adoption of the schedule awaits action of the Pennsylvania Legislature on a bill to permit Sunday baseball in that state, alternative schedules already have been drawn, each calling for the season to open April 12 and close October 1. The opening day pairings will find New York at Boston; Brooklyn at Philadelphia; St. Louis at Chicago, and Pittsburgh at Cincinnati.

DODGERS SIGN SIEBERT

The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the signing of their fourth first baseman, Recruit Dick Siebert, who was purchased from Dayton of the Central League last fall. He lives in St. Paul.

Among major leaguers who came to terms yesterday were Leslie Mallon, Phillies' second baseman, and Pitchers Milton Gaston and Ted Kowalik, of the Chicago White Sox.

Charley Jamieson, veteran outfielder who was given his unconditional release by the Cleveland Indians, will get a chance to go South with the club after all. President Alva Bradley has ordered that Jamieson's training expenses be paid and that he be given every chance to stick with the team.

Gibby and Honus Brush Up on Coaching Signals

MANAGER GEORGE GIBSON — COACH HONUS WAGNER

Manager Gibson, of the Pirates, and Honus Wagner, who has just rejoined his old team in the role of coach already are going over the signs they will use from the coaching lines. The glove the coach wears plays a big part in the signalling. Gibby, a former catcher, uses a first baseman's mitt for the purpose. This is an exclusive Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture taken in the locker room at Forbes Field. Wagner will appear, along with Chick Davies, the Duquesne University basketball coach, on the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

W.-J. PASSERS PLAY JUNIATA TONIGHT

GAMES TONIGHT

Western Reserve vs. Pitt, Stadium Pavilion.
Clarion vs. Slippery Rock at Slippery Rock.
Juniata vs. Wash-Jeff at Washington, Pa.
Lafayette vs. Penn State at State College.
Fairmont vs. Salem at Salem.

Wash-Jeff returns to the basketball wars tonight by taking on Juniata in a return game on the Presidents' court. The Juniata passers defeated Wash-Jeff at Huntingdon, Pa., two weeks ago.

West Virginia continues its eastern trip by meeting N. Y. U. in New York City tonight. Slippery Rock plays its second game in as many nights, being at home to the Clarion State Teachers. Marshall invades Ohio for a battle with Ohio University. Salem and Fairmont clash at Salem and Lafayette and Penn State meet at State College.

THIEL, GROVERS WIN

Harter, Thiel center, was the leading point-getter with 10 markers as his team scored its first Tri-State Conference victory over Bethany at Greenville, 34 to 27.

At Grove City, the Crimson passers took an early lead to defeat Slippery Rock State Teachers, 40-30, while Davis and Elkins defeated West Virginia Wesleyan, 42-33, despite the 19 points compiled by Hull, Bobcat forward.

W. VA. BOXERS WIN

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 8.—West Virginia University continued its march towards the championship of the Intercollegiate Boxing Conference last night by defeating the boxing team of W. & J. 5 to 2. It was the third straight conference win for the Mountaineers.

The summary:

165 pounds—Dallis, W. & J., defeated Voorhees, decision.
Referee—Joe Orsini, Pitt.

Canadian Pinmen Claim World Doubles Mark

REGINA, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Pete Gottselig and Sandy Kid, of Regina, have laid claim to world bowling record for two-men teams.

Pete, brother of Johnny Gottselig, of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, and his partner rolled a total of 1,512 pins. Available records indicate the best previous mark for two-men teams was the 1,504 rolled by S. Merchurio and E. Koepp at Cleveland in 1930.

Manuel Quintero vs. Ray Lyle, 8 rounds; Mickey Stanish vs. Mickey Burns and Jack Kelly vs. Skitch Hershberger, 6 rounds each, and Jackie Coogan vs. Don Salvadore, 4 rounds, East Liverpool, O.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Eddie Zivic, of Lawrenceville, after only a brief career out of the amateur ranks, blossoms forth as a professional main bouter in his own right tonight, when he headlines a card of battles in the Moose Temple Arena, downtown, against Don Asto, of Uniontown, fighting over the eight-round route.

Eddie Zivic

Brother Fritzie Zivic is in the four-round semi-final, against Steve Senich, an old rival, and there are eight other four-round bouts, as listed above, matching local talent to provide close bouts.

Luke Carney, veteran local boxing manager, who formerly was with Jack and Pete Zivic, is handling Eddie and Fritzie, and he insists they will make their mark in the fistic hall of fame in even better fashion than their illustrious brothers before them. Eddie particularly has come along rapidly, and, if he wins decisively tonight, will be set for some good matches.

This is the first show to be put on by Bill Dummer in the role of promoter at the Moose, which he has taken over from Jim McGirr, for whom he served as matchmaker. He is offering the action battles at the low prices of 60 cents and $1.15.

Between Rounds

They say Harry Dublinsky, the Chicago lightweight boxer, who undeservedly lost a decision to Tony Falco at the Garden Monday night, is an excellent mouth organist.

Jackie Wilson, who got a draw with Midget Wolgast, the flyweight champion, at the Arena last Friday night, would like to fight the Midget again. He says it took him several rounds to get over the thrill of being in the ring with a champion before he got his bearings, and he feels he could step out with confidence against Wolgast in another engagement. However, it is doubtful if Wolgast would be welcomed back here in view of his listless work in their bout. Wilson also is out with a challenge to the winner of next Monday night's Mose Butch-Fidel LaBarba bout at Motor Square Garden.

Charley Jones, manager of Charley Baxter, local junior-welterweight, who boxes Willard Brown, of Muncie, Ind., in the main bout at the Arena, Friday night, wants it to be known that Brown defeated Harry Dublinsky as recently as last December, and, in addition, claims victories over Santiago Zorilla, Lou Terry, Danny Delmont, Lou Fallon, Nick Ellenwood, Eddie Speaks, Mickey Cohen and two draws with Pee Wee Jarrell.

Matchmaker Jim Buchanan, of the Arena, has signed Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, to box Jimmy Sayers, of Lafayette, Ind., in a 10-rounder bout on Friday night's card, giving him a double windup bill. Mike Scarpuzzi, of Canton, O., boxes Johnny Durso, local lightweight, in the second bout, and Bearcat Jones meets Joe Lovasky in the opener.

Fidel LaBarba and his manager, George Blake, are due to arrive in town today or tomorrow for the Coast boxer's bout with Mose Butch at the Garden next Monday night.

LEHIGH DROPS LACROSSE

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Feb. 8.—Faced with the necessity of holding down an inevitable deficit in the athletic budget at Lehigh University, the athletic authorities today dropped lacrosse from Lehigh's roster of sports. The graduate manager has been instructed to cancel games scheduled for this spring.

LEAGUE TO MEET

The Pine Creek Baseball League will be organized at a meeting to be held Friday evening in the Allison Park Rose House on route No. 8. Allison Park, Sample, Wildwood, Etna, Glenshaw, Millvale, State Highway and Aspinwall will be represented.

DOCTOR GIVES UP HOPE FOR JIM CORBETT

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—James J. Corbett, exhibiting the same type of courage that sent him into the ring against the great John L. Sullivan and brought him the heavyweight boxing championship, is waging what appeared to be a losing fight with death.

The former heavyweight champion has been gravely ill from a heart affliction for eight days. His physician, Dr. G. Willard Dickie, has abandoned hope for his recovery.

IN SIXTY-SEVENTH YEAR

Since last Tuesday he has been confined to his bed in his suburban home on Long Island, above Little Neck Bay, with a diseased heart, which has bothered him for several years and lately had been overburdened by activities incident to his return to the boxing world as a promoter. He is in his sixty-seventh year.

Attended by Mrs. Corbett and an old friend of his ring days, John Kelleher, of Boston, he has been able to hold his own for seven days. Dr. Dickie said:

"It is difficult to say about heart cases. They may go on indefinitely, but Mr. Corbett is weakened now and it is improbable he will live long. He felt a little better if anything last night, but he has his good hours and his bad hours and it is hard to say what each succeeding hour will bring."

LOCALS LOSE IN FLORIDA

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8.—Mrs. L. G. Riley, of the Edgewood Country Club, Pittsburgh, withdrew from the Bay Shore-La Gorce women's championship golf turnament here yesterday. After finishing well up among the leaders in the qualifying round, Mrs. Riley defaulted to Mrs. Jack Hagen, of Salisbury, N. Y., in the first round of match play.

Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, Mo., the medalist, scored an overwhelming victory over Miss Lorna Blackburn, of Ottawa, Canada, 8 and 7. Miss Bea Gottlieb, of New York, a former holder of the Miami Beach title, also chalked up an easy win, her victim being Mrs. W. M. Funk, of Decatur, Ill., 6 and 4.

C. M. SCOTT LOSES

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8.—C. M. Scott, of Pittsburgh, failed to survive the first round of match play for the twenty-first annual South Florida golf championship over the Palm Beach Golf Club course yesterday. He succumbed to the veteran William B. Langford, of Chicago, 3 and 2, in the title flight.

Albert R. Hakes, of Dunkirk, N. Y., the defending titleholder and medalist, continued his sub-par golf to eliminate J. H. Witman, of Palm Beach, 5 and 3. Tommy Goodwin, New York State amateur champion, put out a Canadian entry, E. W. Tattersall, of Toronto, 6 and 5.

MANNY KESTNER SUCCUMBS

Thousands of South Hills residents today mourned the sad death of Charles (Manny) Kestner, aged 51, star catcher of the Beltzhoover A. C. of 30 years ago, who died at the South Side Hospital as a result of a fall. Kestner was an engineer in the employ of the Pittsburgh City Water Company at the Mission Street Pumping Station. He was engaged in his duties and was on a high ladder when he met with the fatal fall.

Manny Kestner was a prominent member of a team that featured Otto Knabe, Hans and John Lobert, Hugo Swartling, Joe Gallic, Cy Dawson, Elmer Knetzer and others who became luminaries in the diamond sport. The departed South Hills citizen was the father of Shortstop Elmer Kestner, who played with New Orleans in the Southern Association. Besides Elmer, he leaves his widow and one daughter, Miss Laverne Kestner. The family resides at 243 Climax street, Beltzhoover.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at St. George's Catholic Church, Allentown, where a high mass will be sung.

Miss Van Wie Wins In Coast Tourney

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Flashing the form that has made her one of the world's greatest feminine golfers, Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, National titleholder, had little trouble defeating Mrs. C. C. Cary, of Los Angeles, in the first round of the mid-winter Southern California tournament, 8 and 7, yesterday.

Mickey Riley Plans To Turn Professional

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Michael Galitzen, Mickey Riley to the sport world, will turn professional.

The Olympic games springboard diving champion said he had received several offers last summer and all of them still are good. He intends to think them over and accept the best.

Riley has held all of the National A. A. U. diving titles at one time or another. He placed third in the spring-board event at Amsterdam in 1928, although only 17 years old.

Canadian Player Protest Overruled

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A protest against the participation of Canadian players in the National amateur championships has been overruled by the hockey committee of the Amateur Athletic Union. Directed especially at the Atlantic City Sea Gulls, present title-holders, it was filed by the Michigan Association of the A. A. U.

BIG FELLOWS PLAY HERE

GAMES TONIGHT

Willigs at North Siders.
Brentwood at Goose Goslins.
Doc Gannons at Question Club.
J. J. Hurleys at Senators.
Olympic A. C. at Ferris "B."
St. Pauls at Yaska Club.
GIRLS
Goldenson Vanities at Canonsburg.

Three of the biggest basketball performers in the game, both in point of size and reputation, will be in view at Motor Square Garden tomorrow night as the Cleveland Celtic-Rosenblums and the Paterson (N. J.) passers clash in the city's initial professional game of the season.

The Paterson team will show the tallest lad in the game in Tiny Hearn, former southern intercollegiate star. Hearn stands six feet, nine and one-half inches in his socks. Not only is he tall, but he is fast and a good shot.

Cleveland has the veteran Joe Lapchick, the six-foot, five and one-half-inch veteran, and Pat Herlihy, who goes six feet, five and one-quarter inches. Herlihy is the veteran Joe's understudy and an accomplished performer.

In leading independent tussles tonight, the Brentwood quintet meets the Goose Goslins on the Market House floor; Williigs tackle the North Siders; Doc Gannons meet the Question Club; Hurleys take on the Senators, and Olympics face the Ferris Reserves.

GOLFER SCORES ACE

E. E. Taylor, playing in a foursome, scored a hole in one at the Highland Country Club yesterday. It was made on the 130-yard No. 4 green.

HONUS, CHICK SEALS' GUESTS

Two old favorites of the local fans will appear with the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph during their weekly radio review over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

Chick Davies

Honus Wagner, who has just signed to return to his old club, the Pittsburgh Pirates, in the capacity of coach, and Chick Davies, basketball coach of Duquesne University, will be guest stars.

Wagner, whose return has been hailed as the most popular stroke of the Pirates in years, will be interviewed by Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle, baseball expert of the Sun-Telegraph, while Davies will discuss the floor sport with Jess Carver, editor of collegiate sports for your favorite newspaper.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Red Grange, Galloping Ghost of the gridiron, would be a rich man today but for the fact that he made the mistake of over-expansion . . . He says he had $200,000 at one time, but he lost half of it trying to float the American Professional Football League with his partner and sponsor, Charley Pyle, and dropped the remainder in pushing professional tennis and cross-country foot races with Pyle . . . He says if he had it to do over again he would quit the University of Illinois at the height of his college career, as he did, but would be satisfied to reap the returns as an athlete and would steer clear of the promoting shoals . . . He would accept all of the movie offers he could pry out of the Hollywood producers and would wind up on Easy street.

A. A. Stagg, former Chicago coach, who, at 71, begins all over again by accepting a coaching berth at The College of the Pacific, is not well fixed financially . . . He says he saved for 23 years to buy his home in Chicago, which now will be sold . . . He will get a modest salary in his new job and has a small pension coming to him from Chicago.

Who is this Jimmy Columbo, 140-pound boxer of Clarksburg, W. Va., who recently startled the fans by getting a decision over Battling Gizzy at Clarksburg? . . . He is the kid brother of Joe Columbo, who boxed around here some five years ago while attending the University of Kentucky at Louisville . . . Joe now is a dentist in Clarksburg . . . Two other brothers, Louie and Sam, also did some boxing and Sam now is the boxing promoter in Clarksburg, while Louie is in the Marines and still dons the mitts on occasions . . . Jimmy is 20 years old. Louie 23, Joe 25 and Sam 28 . . . Jimmy, who will make his local debut soon, is no overnight flash . . . He was under the tutelage of the late Jimmy DeForest for three months before the famous trainer's fatal illness and also served an apprenticeship under Charley Doesserick, Brooklyn promoter, and was with Frank Klaus' stable in Braddock for a time . . . He is a dark and curly-haired good-looking youngster.

Midshipman John R. McNaugher, of Charleroi, a middleweight, is one of the best boxers at the Naval Academy at Annapolis . . . He prepped at Culver Military Academy, where he lost his first bout and then was undefeated for three seasons . . . He has not lost a match since joining Coach Spike Webb's Navy team, and has run his string of consecutive victories up to 23.—HARRY KECK.

Women Stars Win In Squash Tourney

HAVERFORD, Pa., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Two champions, Mrs. William F. Howe, Jr., of Boston, American titlist, and 20-year-old Susan Noel, England's crown-holder, led the way past the second round barrier in the annual women's national squash racquets championship tourney.

The 14 survivors today of the 64 who began play at the Merion Cricket Club included all the ranking stars, both American and foreign.

For the second consecutive day yesterday, Mrs. Howe swept through her match without being extended at any time, defeating Margaret Anderson, Plainfield, N. J., 15-7, 15-3, 15-10.

YALE FIVE WINS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Yale emerged on the long end of a 23-to-20 score after a closely fought basketball game with Columbia, in which the lead changed seven times, last night to gain a tighter hold on first place in the Eastern Intercollegiate League.

PANTHERS PLAY RED CATS

whitted down the Pittsburghers' 13-point lead to seven with three quick goals, Art Grahame flipping one and Cliff Aultman two in rapid succession, but Trainer Brue Jackson worked heroically on Birch's ankle and the big fellow returned to the game to score three goals in four minutes and ice the game for the Dukes.

Nave, by the way, caught the officials, Cal Bolster and Buck Snyder, sound asleep on a goofy play. He was out of bounds by two feet under his own hoop when he pulled in a wild pass, two steps and tossed in a goal which was allowed. Cal and Buck apparently were counting the house on that one. BAMBINO READY TO GO SOUTH

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—For the first time in several years, Babe Ruth held his birthday party at home yesterday instead of celebrating the occasion under Florida's famous palms. But he put in most of the day preparing to leave for the South.

Although he didn't especially care to be reminded of the fact, the Babe was 39 years old.

Ruth expects to leave with his family for St. Petersburg, Fla., tomorrow to get in some golf before the regular spring training season opens next month. They will travel by train this year instead of by automobile.

British Withhold Action on Wethered

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—The Ladies' Golf Union announced today the question of the amateur status of Joyce Wethered, Britain's greatest woman golfer, will remain unanswered indefinitely unless she reconsiders her decision to retire from championship competition.

YANK NETTERS VICTORS

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, February 8.—(AP.)—The United States touring tennis team today opened its New Zealand invasion by winning four singles and one doubles match against a New Zealand squad.

Ellsworth Vines, Jr., defeated E. D. Andrews, 6-4, 7-5; Wilmer Allison won from C. E. Malfroy, 10-8, 6-4; Keith Gledhill defeated C. Angas, 5-7, 7-5, 8-6, and John Van Ryn won from D. G. France, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1. Vines and Gledhill, American doubles titleholders, then joined to defeat Malfroy and France at that style of play, 6-4, 6-4.

The lone New Zealand victory went to Andrews and Angas, who defeated Allison and Van Ryn, veteran Davis Cup pair, 6-4, 6-8, 6-3.

Semi-Finals Today In Handball Play

The semi-finals of the novice A. M. A. doubles handball tournament will be played today on the Keystone Athletic Club courts. Gish and Reno, K. A. C. stars, meet Marcin and Poling, of Downtown Y., while Koubek and Wallace, unattached, oppose Miller and Roche, P. A. A.

In the quarter-finals yesterday Gish and Reno eliminated Arnold and Reindle, Allegheny Y. M. C. A., 21-14, 21-11; Marcin and Poling defeated Hankey and Hofer, K. A. C., 21-3, 31-13; Koubek and Wallace put out Richards and Schneider, K. A. C., 21-18, 7-21, 21-20, and Miller and Roche advanced at the expense of Ashcraft and Burgwin, Westinghouse Club, 21-11, 16-21, 21-14.

Fight Results

At Rochester, N. Y.—Connie Morris defeated Freddie Mitchell, 6 rounds.

LEAGUE ISSUES ULTIMATUM

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—After attempting for hours to bring order out of chaos in Jersey City's tangled financial and managerial affairs, the International Baseball League has issued a final ultimatum to Sam Colacurcio, giving the youthful owner until February 17 either to prove to the directors he can operate the club or sell the franchise.

Apparently the situation at the end of the long sessions yesterday was no further advanced than it was a month ago when a committee of three, headed by President Charles A. Knapp, and including George Weiss, of Newark, and Warren Giles, of Rochester, was empowered to act.

Dartmouth Track Stars Quit School

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Dartmouth's track prospects suffered a severe blow when Capt. Valcin Milans, of Washington, D. C., one of the most consistent high jumpers in college ranks; Bill Barrett, of Youngstown, O., the Green's best hurdler, and Charley Pyewell, of Reading, Pa., withdrew from college.

Athletic officials did not announce the reasons for their withdrawals, which came just after the mid-year examinations.

Six-Day Footrace Is Planned for Two-Men Teams

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Plans for a six-day footrace, one of the most unusual athletic contests ever attempted, were announced today by W. D. Griffith, athletic publicity director for Ohio State University and manager of the former Ohio relays.

The event will open March 3 at the Columbus Auditorium and continue until midnight March 9. Griffith said several former Ohio State track men have signified their intention of entering.

FRESH SELLING BLOCKS RALLY IN STOCKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The stock market tried to rally for a time today, but found the way to higher prices blocked by further selling of the tobacco issues.

Rails acted fairly well, and American Telephone resisted selling, but the market as a whole developed an easy tone after midday, although most losses were limited to fractions.

The rails were evidently helped by such individual loadings reports as have appeared for the last week, indicating a check to the decline of the previous week. New York Central reported that it handled 79,444 cars last week, a gain of 3,101 cars over the previous week. The complete report of operating revenues for class 1 roads for December was published, showing aggregate net operating income of $32,856,895, a substantial increase over December of 1931, when the figure was $27,618,392. The figures for the whole year showed that 59 class 1 roads operated at a loss, but indicated striking progress in reducing expenses as the year wore on.

American Telephone was helped by the more optimistic attitude toward the prospect of maintaining the dividend, when directors meet next week. General Motors issued a January sales report showing that purchases by consumers in the United States aggregated 50,653 cars, actually above the 47,942 reported in January of 1932, and of course well over the extremely low level of December, when only 19,992 cars were sold. With the dying down of speculation in South African gold mining issues in London, the recent flurry in the gold stocks in this market appeared to have ended.

The selling of the tobaccos was a continuation of the recent movement, and was still accompanied by rumors of another cut in wholesale cigaret prices by the principal makers. Oils held up reasonably well, in view of fresh cutting of gasoline prices in some areas, and weekly statistics showing moderate increases in crude output and in motor fuel stocks.

Commodity markets were still watched closely in Wall street, sugar has shown considerable firmness in recent sessions. The improvement in hog prices, butter and eggs, and the better tone in wheat at Chicago, resulting from extremely cold temperatures over much of the Middle West, has been watched hopefully.

GRAIN VALUES TURN UP

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Grain prices tended upward early today, influenced by Liverpool reports that China was buying Argentine wheat. An additional stimulus was sub-zero temperatures Southwest and continued absence of snow over large areas. Opening at a shade to ⅜c up, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started unchanged to ⅛@¼c advance, and later held near the initial limits.

Forecasts of persistent cold throughout the United States winter wheat belt led to increased uneasiness regarding likelihood of crop damage, and were an incentive to higher prices. Corn and oats were responsive to wheat gains and to bullish corn crop estimates from Argentina.

SMALL ORDERS BUOY STEEL OUTPUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—With a 4.1 per cent gain in pig iron production and a 19.1 per cent increase in steel ingot output, January fulfilled the usual seasonal expectations on a percentage basis, though the actual tonnage improvement was small owing to the low December base with which January figures are compared, Iron Age points out in its weekly review.

Pig iron production last month amounted to 568,785 gross tons against 546,080 tons in December, or a daily rate of 18,348 tons compared with 17,615 tons in the preceding month. Merchant iron output declined last month, the gain in steel-making iron having amounted to almost 13 per cent. On Feb. 1 there were 46 furnaces in blast making iron at the rate of 19,220 tons a day against 42 in blast on Jan. 1 with a daily producing rate of 15,810 tons.

Steel ingot production last month was better than in any month since last May excepting October and November. However, January did not quite recover to the level of November.

PRODUCTION LAGS

This week's steel ingot producing rate for the entire country is estimated at a shade under 19 per cent, a slight recession from last week, which is mainly accounted for by a falling off in orders from some automobile manufacturers and the continued suspension of a part of the Ford Motor Company's steel releases.

However, in some districts, notably in Chicago, an increase in miscellaneous business is taking up some of the slack caused by a declines in automobile tonnage. Plate rollings at Pittsburgh have been improved by recent orders aggregating several thousand tons for caisson pipe, river barges and Hoover dam work.

Railroad buying of steel is still lacking, but there are some assurances of inquiries for rails about March 1. The Chevrolet Company, which has released orders for 45,000 tons of steel, continues the center of attention in the motor car trade.

Scrap prices are showing a firmer tendency in some markets even without the benefit of much consumer buying. At Pittsburgh an advance of 25 cents in the average price of heavy melting steel has occurred. Finished steel prices are still weak.

JANUARY TOPS DECEMBER

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Steel ingot production in the United States, as calculated for January by the American Iron and Steel Institute, showed a substantial gain over December, and was well above the low levels of last summer, but somewhat under the totals for October and November.

Output for January was placed at 1,006,297 tons, or 17.78 per cent of capacity, against 844,618 in December, 1,014,794 in November, 1,068,550 in October, 975,061 in September, 832,402 in August, 792,533 in July and 897,275 in June.

The January output of 1,006,297 tons was substantially under the 1,459,450 reported for January of 1932, but the first month of last year saw the largest tonnage of any, the volume then shrinking steadily until it reached its low point in July. Steel production ordinarily reaches its seasonal peak in the first half of the year in March, and occasionally later.

W. L. Phipps to Head Reliance Life Club

W. L. Phipps was elected president of the Century Club of the Reliance Life Insurance Company of Pittsburgh at its annual meeting yesterday in Kaufmann's. Other new officers are: Vice president, Louis H. Rosenthal; secretary, S. M. Rosenthal; treasurer, James W. McKelvie. C. H. Weaver was elected to the executive committee, which also includes Frank A. Smith, S. B. Cummings, Joseph F. Weber and Saul Alexandre. This organization is composed of Western Pennsylvania representatives of Reliance Life who produce at least $100,000 of insurance a year.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 8. — Bonds showed a disposition today to enter higher territory. Yesterday's advance apparently served as a stimulus to a somewhat wider investment interest. Most of the foreign loans held recent gains. Some of the United States governments slipped off a little.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

CHAPTER IX.

Charlie leaped toward Sue. Only a little of that scream came out, only the beginning of it, for he clapped a firm hand over her mouth. She struggled, pulling desperately at his hand. She was wild enough by this time to bite it. She's always had a healthy temper, quick to rise and, usually, as quick to pass. Swiftly, half carrying and half dragging her, he got her down into the cabin. She was clawing and striking, but with small effect. He thrust her down on a berth, darted up the steps, slammed shut the doors and the companion slide, and quickly slipped the padlock through the hasps. Then, out of breath, tingling with an exalted madness, he stumbled aft to the wheel, headed the Sue off (she had swung, flapping, into the wind) and steered straight for the open sea.

Sue's cigaret holder lay broken on the cockpit floor. He picked up the pieces and put them in his pocket. She was screaming now, and beating on the doors. But the ports were closed. Nobody would hear.

What, what had he done? And having done it, what on earth was he going to do next? For the first time in his life he was afraid, and of himself. Sue, of course, would loathe him as long as she lived. And in a queerly haunted, tortured way he'd dislike her. He'd almost have to.

Up to this moment he hadn't considered possible consequences. He had thought of the simple, natural Sue he'd known and loved. He had thought of Mr. Hemingway's broken spirit and the hopeless, aged look on his face, sitting in a mahogany armchair with red cushions. And he had thought of himself. But those reporters . . . suddenly it began to seem as if the whole world were watching Sue. Her disappearance would create a scandal.

BECOMES ENRAGED

Why, it would stir the world! They'd know fast enough who'd done it, too. He had no right to interfere in her life. Even if that tremendous windfall had demoralized her? Even if she were hardening? . . . He'd taken that strange little outbreak of her father's too literally. It had set him afire. Of course you couldn't kidnap people. Not in these days. He wasn't a caveman. He'd simply have to turn back.

Then he thought of Dick, waiting at the East Boston airport, and red rage seized him. He shook. He muttered aloud.

She was still, every now and then, beating on the door of the cabin. And screaming. And each time those sounds came, he'd wince and mutter. It was awful. He'd done a shameless thing. A perfectly hopeless thing. To his young mind it seemed that his whole life lay about him in ruins. Hers too. He'd done that. He'd utterly lost his head.

The boat was feeling the long swells of the open sea, now, and riding them like a gull. The Nantasket peninsula lay low, a bluish irregular line, far astern. The feel of the boat stirred him. Yes, he felt that in his very marrow. The blood of those old sea captains tingled lustily, crazily, in him. He loved it.

Off ahead, beyond 3,000 miles of water, lay Spain. The whole wide world, indeed, lay out there, just beyond Cape Cod. It was his for the asking. A world of color, of contrast, of adventure. Bermuda—the West Indies and the Spanish Main—Panama and the Pacific—coral atolls and dark-skinned people with soft brown eyes.

HIT WITH PLATE

But he couldn't do it. She was quiet now, and that puzzled him. Lashing the wheel, he stepped to the companion, took off the padlock and quickly threw open the doors and the slide. He could land her at Nantasket, see that she got a boat or a train to Boston, and then sail away. Let her go plumb to the devil, since she was set on it. However tragic it might be. The weight of it, at that moment, was more than he could bear. There was a choke in his throat.

Sue was sitting hunched up on the steps, her head in her hands. She got up slowly. Caught at the end of the folding table that fitted over the centerboard trunk. Stared up at him. She'd thrown her little Parisian hat aside, and her hair was rumpled. Her face was white, and bluish about the mouth.

Then, before he could put his confused racing thoughts into words, she sprang forward, snatched a plate from the rack by the companion, and with all her strength hurled it at him. It struck his thigh, bounced off against the woodwork and fell in fragments down the steps.

It hurt, but he didn't care about that. He simply stood there, looking down. And she, instead of rushing at him as he'd supposed she would, caught again at the table and stood weakly swaying and crying.

PRIMITIVE INSTINCT

Funny, he had changed again. All at once, something in the back of his head, or perhaps something in his bones, quieted his crazy brain. A primitive instinct that had iron in it; the blood-call of a breed that had never bowed in defeat. So it was to be a battle. All right, he'd fight. Fight it out. Maybe he was right after all. Though it hardly mattered.

"Take me back!" she cried.

"No," said he. "Never."

She was still staring at him, through her frenzied tears. But after a moment she staggered to a berth and sank down there, resting a weary head against the high, cushioned back.

He looked out and about. Not a craft in sight. The boat was driving along; pertly, airily, sailing herself. He went down into the cabin.

"Now," he said, "you're going to listen to me."

"I hate you for this!"

"I realize that, Sue. And I'm not sure I'm not beginning to hate you. But never mind about that. The thing you've got to understand—and the sooner you make up your mind to it the better—is that I happen to be the master of this little ship. It isn't going to help you any to act up. Oh, if you feel like smashing the china, go ahead. It'll only mean that you won't have it to eat off of."

"You're perfectly contemptible!"

He ignored that. "I didn't know I was going to do this, Sue. It was in my mind just to sail round Boston Light and then take you back."

"Why aren't you doing it, then?"

"Oh, I don't know. It popped into my head when you told me you weren't planning to marry that precious aviator of yours. If you'd told me you loved him—meant to marry him—why, that would have been different. Altogether different. You see that?"

Sue sniffed. But she looked oddly weak and unhappy.

Synopsis

Young Charlie Janes, formerly engaged to Sue Hemingway, finds that sudden wealth and a prolonged trip to Europe have turned her head and taken her out of his world. Charlie buys a boat, intending to try forgetfulness in voyaging. Sue returns unexpectedly. Her father tells Charlie she is planning a trans-Atlantic flight with a young aviator she met abroad. Sue goes for a sail with Charlie to talk things over. He fails to return with her when she wants to.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR COMIC CLUB

Evelyn Parker, "official reporter" of the Manor Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club reports that at Saturday's meeting she noticed many new members. Some of them were: Patsy Walker, John McClean, Florence Rice and William Jordan.

Several of the girl members have organized a club, calling themselves the "Connecting Y's." The members already signed are Eleanor Mervis, DeVera Syna, Rhea Wolk and Reva Rosenberg.

Eleanor Jones saw her first snow storm of the winter Saturday when she arrived back in Pittsburgh after more than three months in Florida. Eleanor arrived Saturday morning and after taking a little nap at her home, hurried over to the Manor Theater to renew old acquaintances.

Marjorie Braun, who recently had an accident while riding her bicycle, which resulted in a broken ankle, attended the meeting Saturday with the aid of crutches. Marjorie said that it would take more than a broken ankle to keep her away.

The Sigma Tau Sorority, a group of girls who are all Komic Club members, held a charity raffle before the meeting. The committee in charge included Myrille Nevins, Marcelle Rice, Jean Tenenbaum, Florence Ruttenberg, Ruth Shapiro and Evelyn Parker.

Still Harvesting Election Crops

Got to hand credit to some of the cities for their painstaking efforts to make two and two add up to four.

Here it is all of February. And they are still checking up November's votes.

Seems that every time they count the ballots a different man is elected. But they're doing it right. They are going to get at the truth if it takes 'em 50 years. A conservative estimate.

There was some slight tincture of effervescent scandal connected with the late autumn registrations. Like the cat with three tails it was possible for your ward leader to prove that every man had three votes.

No cat has two tails. Therefore, every cat with one tail has one more tail than no cat with two tails. That's three votes for the right man who has been indorsed by the lad on the top rung.

In this broad and liberal land of patronage and barter it was possible to roll up a plurality of a hundred thousand votes in a district where 62 would have been unanimous.

zen votes for you all his life and leaves 16 votes to you in his will.

In our distinguished and thoroughly honest precinct the successful candidate called up headquarters a week after election and said:

"Tell the boys to stop voting. I've been elected on the reform ticket for the last six days."

But when the boys go on a balloting rampage they don't know Fritz from Hans. They take no chances. They can have 80 per cent of their votes tossed out and still win with the balance. That's putting water wings on a drowned mouse.

In New York City they claim McKee would have been elected if the cohorts hadn't spelled his name 47 different ways. That's sour grapes when you realize that Paderwiski was elected President of Poland.

In our neighborhood we take no chances on gumming up the name of our candidate. We hand the boys a rubber stamp and two ink pads each.

Congress Sleeps While Foreigners Break Down Our Tariff Barriers

THE PEOPLE of the United States are prone to forget the gap which separates them from Congress.

There may be nation-wide unanimity as to the need of Congressional action to protect the vital interests of the country,—as for instance, the need of checking the influx of cheap goods from depreciated-currency countries.

The injury to the country may be manifest. It could be stopped overnight.

But as a result of Congressional torpidity or worse, the wrong is suffered to continue. Its evil consequences pile up in the shape of increasing unemployment, cessation of labor, industries annihilated and business bankrupted.

It makes no difference to Congress that a perfect case has been made out. Lengthy schedules have been submitted to Congress showing the landed cost in the United States of innumerable articles of foreign manufacture to be from twenty per cent to four hundred per cent lower than the domestic cost of producing similar articles.

Authentic tables have been filed showing the depreciation of currencies in twenty or more countries, amounts on the average to thirty per cent and reaches as high as fifty-five per cent.

It has even been demonstrated that the assessment of duties upon the basis of depreciated currency costs entails a loss to the United States of hundreds of millions of easily available revenue from import duties.

* * *

THE effects of this weekly tolerated outrage upon our people—the blight upon business and the tragic effect upon unemployment—have been certified to Congress from the most authoritative sources.

AND WHAT IS THE RESPONSE OF CONGRESS?

NO!

On the contrary, we are reminded in so many words by the leaders in the Senate and House that this is a "do nothing Congress." We are even scolded for supposing that it is anything else.

The Republican floor leader, Senator Watson, of Indiana, says that Congress "WILL NOT PASS A SINGLE CONSTRUCTIVE MEASURE unless the Philippine independence measure can be considered constructive," which it certainly is not.

The DEMOCRATIC FLOOR LEADER, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, is of the same opinion.

From the House the amazing report comes that the rule of the caucus is to be invoked, to suppress the patriotic disposition of many Democrats to co-operate with the Republican membership in passing this crucially needed legislation.

* * *

IN THEIR apparent intention to assume the responsibility for betraying the interests as well as the wishes of the country, the Democrats are blinding themselves to the actualities of the situation,—TO NEW and CONTROLLING FACTS.

They are sacrificing realities to the visionary idea of a horizontal reduction in world tariffs. We have seen ten per cent mentioned as the reduction aimed at—a figure that is perfectly meaningless in the light of world conditions.

Do the Democrats think that American export trade can be revived in the face of and despite depreciated currency competition the world over and the exaggeratedly low wage scales which such depreciation makes possible?

Will the United States, like a little Red Riding Hood in a forest of anti-American tariffs and such anti-American movements as "buy French," "buy Empire products only" and "buy British," hold the gates of its home market wide open while, as a result of so doing, our trade languishes and our workers starve?

The determination of our debtors among the nations of the world is to bring us to our knees.

* * *

They are trying to inoculate American labor with the wasting disorders that afflict their own.

They think that we are so simple, so ignorant of trade and finance, and so enfeebled by a political system which refuses to work, that they can make OUR OWN SOIL THEIR BATTLE GROUND and FIGHT US FROM WITHIN.

But, to their wonderment and delight, they find they can do much more. They can even reach across our FEEBLE TARIFF BARRIERS and WITH THEIR OWN HANDS, BANK THE FIRES IN OUR FACTORIES, PUT UP THE SHUTTERS of our MERCHANTS and LOCK OUT OUR WORKMEN from their LONG ACCUSTOMED EMPLOYMENT.

To show how this conspiracy against our trade spreads, we print today an Italian placard.

It does not differ from the similar appeals with which Great Britain and France are plastered from one end to the other.

The legend is like the others—"BUY ITALIAN. BUY ONLY ITALIAN PRODUCTS." There is the same pictoral appeal to patriotic emotions.

* * *

DOES this united policy of Europe mean nothing to us?

Can this campaign against our trade, both at home and abroad, be pursued without our lifting a finger either in self-defense or retaliation?

The American people are alive to the menace. They are giving patriotic and enthusiastic support to the drive to "buy American."

WILL CONGRESS WAKE UP, OR WILL THE PEOPLE—WITH THE MIGHTY STRENGTH THAT IS THEIRS WHEN THEY DECIDE TO USE IT—HAVE TO WAKE IT UP?

Not Broad Enough

The Schwartz Bill, Authorizing Blue Law Modification, Does Not Permit Sunday Movies

The House has passed, by a vote of 126 to 77, the Schwartz bill, which authorizes municipalities, with the consent of a majority of the voters, as determined by a referendum, to permit outdoor sports on Sunday afternoons.

It is regrettable that 77 of the representatives were so narrow-minded as to be unwilling even to permit the people to decide for themselves if the Blue Law should be modified to this limited extent.

The Schwartz bill is a step forward, to be sure; but it does not go nearly far enough.

The people want Sunday movies as well as ball games, and the Legislature will be recreant to its duty if it ignores this just and widespread demand.

To Stop Straddling

The Proposal to Limit a Candidate to One Party Will Help to Fix Responsibility

Clyde Kelly ran for Congress in the Thirty-first District last November as the nominee of the Prohibitionist Party. He also ran as the nominee of the Democratic Party, which is committed to the repeal of Prohibition. He also was the nominee of the Republican Party, and of the Independent Party.

The parties that he represents stand for conflicting points of view on numerous subjects. Consequently Mr. Kelly cannot uphold the policy of one of his parties without doing violence to the principles of another. He has to be "all things to all men."

Congressman Kelly is cited merely as an example of the evil of permitting a candidate to enter the primaries of more than one party. The practice makes it possible to dodge issues, and to escape responsibility for actions.

The fact that Mr. Kelly was the only one of Allegheny County's five congressmen to be re-elected will tend to encourage other candidates to seek the nomination of opposing parties.

That should be discouraged, and no better way can be found to discourage it than to forbid it, as is proposed by the Woodward bill, passed Monday night by the State Senate.

Self-Liquidating Loans

Why Not Obtain Some from the R. F. C. for Meritorious Local Projects?

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation last year loaned $1,156,000,000 to banks, insurance companies and other financial institutions, and $272,000,000 to railroad companies.

But it has another function besides protecting business, and that is to furnish credit for productive work. It is authorized to lend money for self-liquidating public projects, but so far has disbursed only $17,700,000 for such purposes.

The County Commissioners have been talking of asking for loans with which to construct toll bridges across the Monongahela to Homestead and across the Allegheny to Aspinwall.

There are a number of other self-liquidating jobs in this territory that might be brought to the attention of the R. F. C. The proposed Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal is one.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Before America was, as Bill Hogg put it, "unboomed," the Army recruiting office, on Whitehall street, often went for days without an enlistment. Now, an average of 300 applications show up daily, and about fifty are chosen.

Recruits, these days, are of superior type. They frequently come from high places—men who have lost responsible jobs, those unable to finish college, artists, writers, architects, theological and medical students. The Army is a haven in the enveloping storm.

Enlistment is for three years. After one year, it is possible to buy back the contract and go into whatever business is desired. The pay is $21 a month, but this includes substantial food, clothes and shelter. Necessity has drawn many, instead of the tug for adventure.

New York recruits once were salvaged largely among down-and-outers on the Bowery and water fronts. So pronounced is the uptake in sturdier stuff, the Bowery station has been closed. Men may enlist between ages of 18 and 36, unmarried and without dependents.

A current diversion of afternoon teas is the presentation of "Freckles," a white pig with gilded hooves and a red ribbon neck bow. It was trained by a girl on an Illinois farm, and rolls over, squeals, fires off cap pistols, and shimmies to music.

Few vaudeville combinations have had such astonishing success as Burns and Allen. Miss Allen and Burns met while playing a split week in Jersey, fell in love—and married. They became headliners in vaudeville and big movie houses, then went to even greater success on the radio. She, a San Francisco girl, is the gloriously baffled dumbbell, and he, an East Side boy, is the accomplished feeder.

* * *

By contrast, comes a cheery petit-blue from a vaudeville headliner of a few years ago. "I am marooned in a little town in the state of Washington," she writes, "chaperoning clothes up and down a washboard. My applause is the crickets that chirp at sundown. But I'm still in love with living."

In almost every cafe, recently, one notices Japanese gazing at life in a characteristic expressionless survey. It may be self-consciousness or custom, but they rarely talk while dining. A waiter tells me that, in his place, a tony sort, the Jap is the most extravagant tipper of all. Invariably, those partaking of American meals order vanilla ice cream for dessert.

In a roaming espial downtown the other day, I dropped into old Trinity. It was near 4 p. m., and, with the outside rush, it seemed a calm in the vortex. In such fretful days, there is no place where one may feel such affection as a church offers the pilgrim. Yet, there was only a handful about. A man, whom I took to be a kindly verger, tip-toed toward me. A thin note of organ music was quivering and I whispered that I just wanted to look in a minute. "A minute or all day," he whispered back, "you are mighty welcome." And, leaving in such a mood, I popped up three times to offer my seat to tired women strap-hangers between Fulton and Grand Central.

* * *

In this spurt of retrospection, I idled by a mid-town square where groups of children, under eyes of nurses, were having final romps. They were squirming, acquisitive creatures, gathering sticks and stones, a prenatal instinct, often flowering into greed for possessions. Just now, they would willingly divide with anyone. One of life's tragic complexities is that so many of us show the finest character before reaching the age of reason. And, if I keep on in this mental tack, I'll get myself melancholy again.

* * *

* * *

But I'll never be completely happy until one of those long bell-pull ropes, used to summon servants in drawing room dramas, gives way. And leaves a bewildered British matinee idol standing there holding it in his hand.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

You envy those lucky beings who move through life so easily, always saying and doing just the right thing. If you could only be like that!

But you can't. People frighten you—make you feel all hands and feet. Of course you know that's silly. No one's going to harm you. But you can't help it. As soon as you get with people, you're lost; sit there in misery; run away as soon as you can—and crawl home, back to the terrible loneliness you can't escape.

Do I understand? Yes, my dear, I understand, more than you can know. I'm thinking back—

What a mess I was at twenty! A tall, skinny, pigeon-toed country girl, newly married into a circle of staid New Englanders who surveyed me with silent, searing scorn.

I don't blame them now. How irritating I must have been—trying to hide my shyness with shrillness—covering up bewilderment with braggadocia. Outwardly defiant; inwardly afraid of everyone; sobbing with fear.

Twenty to thirty—what dreadful years they were! No poor devil serving time "in solitary" ever went through more agony. Was all life to be like that—terrified and lonely? Would I never be able to be at ease with people; to break through to them?

If only I could find someone who would understand. Then, maybe, I could forget myself—be natural. But, of course, that was impossible.

(How familiar that sounds, doesn't it? You're reading each word with almost shocked surprise. Why, that's just the way you feel! I'm describing your own symptoms! But how can I know them? Read on—you'll see.)

Dark years. Dark thoughts. Thoughts that were like a cell, shutting me in. Then gradually life, with its inevitable pressure of experience, began to break down that cell. Faintly at first, and in far intervals, I began to see other people—to really see them.

Always I had thought that I saw other people; but now I began to realize that hitherto I had seen them only in relation to myself—as part of my own background. And I had been interested in them only as they affected me and my life. But now I began to see people apart from myself—as individuals, with problems and programs of their own.

I began to see other girls bewildered, trembling in loneliness—as I was bewildered, trembling in loneliness. I began to see other wives, weary of the monotony of housework, as I was weary; longing for color and joy, as I was longing.

It was like a curtain lifting. A little while before I had seen people as an alien mass, with natures and interests entirely foreign to mine, all standing apart from my life. And now I saw that their strangeness was only a mask.

BENEATH THAT MASK WE WERE ALL ALIKE!

I didn't need to understand them. They didn't need to understand me. Beneath our strangeness, we were all of a piece. And if I would only remember that, I did not need to fear them any more—need no longer wonder what I should say or do.

I COULD SPEAK TO THEM AS IF I WERE SPEAKING TO MYSELF. I COULD TREAT THEM AS I, MYSELF, WISHED TO BE TREATED, FOR THEY WERE PART OF ME—AND I WAS PART OF THEM—AND WE WERE ALL PART OF THE SAME EXPERIENCE.

That was, and has continued to be, the greatest discovery of my life. It is the secret of any wisdom or any power which I may possess. It has opened every door to me. It has steadied me through every tragedy.

FOR I KNOW NOW THAT I AM NEVER A STRANGER, NOT EVEN WITH STRANGERS.

EVERYTHING THAT HAS HAPPENED TO ME HAS HAPPENED TO SOMEBODY ELSE. EVERYTHING THAT I HAVE DONE — NO MATTER HOW SILLY OR SINFUL, NOBLE OR BRAVE—HAS BEEN DONE BY SOMEBODY ELSE.

How could I — how can you—get along with people?

By NO LONGER THINKING OF THEM AS PEOPLE. BY REALIZING THAT THEY ARE SIMPLY PART OF MYSELF.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Danger Ahead!

This is the time of year when a woman begins to observe that her husband looks a little pale and tired, and to plan secretly to make him start taking a tonic. Something to invigorate and pep him up and ward off the spring fever.

* * *

It's a sweet wifely thought—but you never know what dangerous effect a few ounces of iron-quinine-and-strychnine, or a patent "elixir" or a little bottle of gland-extract may have on a man.

* * *

Many a woman who has plied her husband with a spring tonic to "give him a fresh start" has had to stay at home all SUMMER to wait for him to RUN DOWN, so that she could trust him to follow the dotted line, again.

* * *

Just a mild tonic may make a good husband feel "wicked" and a wild husband altogether unmanageable. It puts pep in his step, response in his eyes, new alibis in his mouth, and a boutonniere in his button-hole! It acts on him like catnip on a cat, and makes him positively playful!

* * *

It may set him up so that he is inspired to buy himself a gay checkered cravat, and a pair of blond spats and cock a snappy beige hat over one eye.

* * *

And this flattering outfit may lead him to the manicurist for a glittering finish on his finger-nails, and a little flourish as a "gay devil" along the avenue.

* * *

A "settled" married man is one whose emotions have all temporarily settled to the bottom of Life's glass. But when his wife pours a tonic into him, it may have such an effervescent effect that he will bubble over into a fountain of renewed youth, sentiment and sex-appeal!

* * *

Sometimes the effects of a Spring tonic on a man lasts all summer! And it takes a hard cold in the Fall to bring him back to normalcy and the realization that many may love and admire him—but only a Wife will NURSE him!

When a woman gives her husband an appetizer, it is, of course with a view to making him take more interest in his meals, his work and his family.

* * *

But the effect it seems to have on him is to make him take more interest in his haberdashery, the parting of his hair, his stenographer, and his wife's approaching vacation in the country.

* * *

Calvin Coolidge's Advice

Only a few days before his death, Calvin Coolidge penned what proved to be his last message to the American people when inditing a letter to Bradley Kelley, of the American Radio News Corporation, director of Hearst station WINS, New York. The former President's farewell counsel was read over the radio by Claude G. Bowers, special writer for Hearst newspapers, as a part of a New Year's broadcast. Looking prophetically to the present day, it said:

"For the year 1933 it seems to me that we need co-operation and charity. The resources of our country are sufficient to meet our requirements if we can use them to help each other. We should co-operate to promote all kinds of business activity. We should do what we can in the way of charity. If all that is implied in these two words could be put into operation, not only would our economic condition begin steadily to improve, but our destitute would secure ample relief. I can think of no better resolution for the new year than to work in these directions."
